Parish Superintendent Clarifies Statements Concerning Division Of Revenues; Says No Interest Was Lost To Board

Distribution of funds derived by the Ouachita parish school board from the sale of timber of five Sixteenth Sections was under state law governing such sale, the parish will not lose any interest money as the result of holding the money in its treasury instead of turning it over to the state and there is no controversy between the parishes of Ouachita and Caldwell over such distribution, according to a formal statement issued yesterday by G. S. Manning, superintendent of Ouachita parish schools.

The statement was issued by Mr. Manning, who has remained aloof from factional fights which have plagued the board for several months, to clarify and deny reports made earlier in the week in which it was charged that the parish had lost some $20,000 in interest because the sum derived from timber sales had not been deposited with the state, and the Ouachita and Caldwell parishes were in a "fiery dispute" over $72,000 of the money which had been allocated Caldwell parish under the law governing sixteenth sections, which was in effect at the time of the sale.

Charles G. Wall, Jr., president of the school board, had stated that he "personally would protest the state's action" in allocating the $72,000 to Caldwell parish. Mr. Wall had stated that State Treasurer Pat Tugwell had allocated the money to Caldwell, whereas the allocation actually was made by State Auditor L. B. Baynard, who was not mentioned in Mr. Wall's statement, it was said.

Mr. Manning said parts of three of the five sixteenth section townships from which timber was cut and

HEAD-ON AUTO CRASH INJURES L. PUCKETT

A 32-year-old Sterlington man was injured and another slightly bruised in a head-on automobile collision nine miles north of Monroe on Highway U. S. 165 shortly after 11:30 a. m., according to state police.

Hospitalized was Leonard F. Puckett, 32, who was taken by Hall's ambulance to the St. Francis Sanitarium where he is being treated for lacerations on his forehead and knee. Leon C. Scott, 25, also of Sterlington, was released from the hospital following treatment.

The accident occurred when Scott traveling north on Highway 165 attempted to pass three vehicles crashing headon with Puckett who was traveling south on the Sterlington road, troopers said.

State police charged Scott late Saturday afternoon with careless and reckless driving, causing personal injury and property damage. Both vehicles were damaged considerably.

LABOR RELATIONS PANEL ORGANIZED

Atomic Energy Labor Control Device Comes Just Before Oak Ridge Strike

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(AP)—President Truman completed establishing an atomic energy labor relations panel today, just in time for possible intervention in a threatened strike at Oak Ridge, Tenn.

On April 26 he appointed William H. Davis as chairman. Today he announced the other two members. They are:

Dr. Edwin E. Witte, economics professor at the University of Wisconsin.

Aaron Horvitz, New York lawyer and labor relations consultant.

Davis, a New York lawyer, served during the war as chairman of the war labor board and later as economic stabilization director.

Davis, Witte, and Horvitz made up a commission which studied labor-management relations in the atomic

MAY REVEAL ATOM BOMB STOCK-PILE AT INVESTIGATION

Move Will Be To Continue Committee Investigation Of Lilienthal

HICKENLOOPER THINKS PUBLICITY IS UNSAFE

By Jack Bell

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(AP)—The size of America's atomic bomb stockpile might have to be disclosed to get a proper assessment of the work of the atomic energy commission, Senator McMahon (D.-Conn.) said today.

McMahon is chairman of the senate-house atomic energy committee which is investigating charges of "incredible mismanagement" leveled by Senator Hickenlooper (R.-Iowa) at A. E. C. Chairman Daavid E. Lilienthal.

The current investigation, McMahon said, "gives point and meaning" to his earlier suggestion for a study of the effects of lifting the secrecy ban on the number of bombs.

However, Hickenlooper told reporters he doesn't think that is "a safe area for publicity."

McMahon noted he had pointed out in a February speech "that it would be impossible to properly assess the conduct of the atomic energy commission's affairs unless the congress and the American people had a pretty reliable idea of what our stockpile of atomic bombs is."

"We must carefully weigh the

Recapture 8 Convicts; 6 Still Being Sought

Authorities Start Herding Up Dangerous Escaped Convicts Who Broke West Virginia Prison Friday

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., June 4.—(AP)—Eight of the 14 long term convicts who cut their way out of West Virginia's old state penitentiary were recaptured today.

Planes, jeeps and road blocks were being employed by law enforcement officials to flush the six still at large.

The mass break was engineered before dawn yesterday.

The latest two to fall into the net tightening around this upper Ohio river area were captured by Police Chief Earl W. Walker of Belpre, O.

They were Everett Leroy Roble, 28, and Elmer Tichnell, 28, holdup men from Parkersburg, W. V., who had escaped once before.

Walker picked them up as they were walking along a Belpre street.

One of those captured after less than a day and a half of uncertain freedom was shot in the shoulder by an Ohio state highway patrolman after he was spotted walking along a highway in nearby Powhatten, O. H. was identified as Mike Ables, 34-year-old lifer.

Holly Starcher, a kidnapper, was captured with him.

A combination of hunger pangs and the alertness of a country storekeeper sent the other four back to the 83-year-old penitentiary.

They were Dennis P. Taylor, 27;

War With Germany, Japan Is Legally Still Underway

By Edward E. Bomar

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(AP)—Five years after D-Day in Normandy, the war with Germany and Japan is still legally on for more than two score nations.

Though the United States and most of the other allies have formally declared actual hostilities to be at an end, the technical windup of World War II is still waiting for an agreement between the west and Soviet Russia to go ahead with the drafting of peace treaties.

The progress of the big four foreign minister conference at Paris thus far has failed to encourage hopes that such an agreement may be in sight. American official experts meantime are trying to master the legal and diplomatic tangles resulting from a situation which countributes materially to post-war instability.

Just how many nations are still at war cannot be stated positively. The state department figured at the time of the Japanese surrender that 46 countries were official enemies of Japan and 47 remained at war with Germany. It is standing by that figure, subject to a number of special interpretations.

Numerous side issues remain unsettled. Greece and neighboring Albania appear uncertain whether they are in a hangover state of war. While the big four allies never declared war on Austria they have been unable to agree on a treaty restoring the country as a victim of Nazi aggression, to full independence. Meanwhile allied troops occupy it in the same way as Germany.

The peace treaties already signed with five axis satellite countries have proved only partially satisfactory to the west. The United States and Britain are pressing charges just now that Communist-run Romania, Bulgaria and Hungary have flouted their treaty pledges to give their peoples such human rights as fair trails and free speech.

Based on a state department survey, these countries are in a "state of armistice relations" with Germany and

BATTLE TO KEEP BIG PORTION OF TAFT-HARTLEY BILL

Say Democrats' Move To Obtain Compromise Plays Into Hands

SENATE ACTION ON BILL TO BE DEBATED MONDAY

By Marvin L. Arrowsmith

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(AP)—Senate Republicans battling to keep a big part of the Taft-Hartley law contended today that a Democratic compromise drive plays into their hands.

But Senator Douglas (D-Ill.), a leader of the move to revise the Truman labor bill, took a sharply different view. He said:

"I think we've got a very good chance to put our program across."

Senate debate on the administration bill is scheduled to start Monday. It would repeal the Taft-Hartley act and replace it with a slightly modified version of the old Wagner act.

Three Republicans, Senators Taft (Ohio), Donnell (Mo.) and Smith (N. J.), are sponsoring a substitute measure which would retain the basic provisions of the T.-H. law.

Both their substitute and the administration bill amendments backed by Douglas and a group of other senators—including both Democrats and Republicans—provide for presidential seizure of struck plants in national emergency disputes.

That proposal came under bitter attack by the National Coal Association. John D. Battle, the association's executive vice-president, said in a statement that "seizure does not solve labor

HOUSE TO TACKLE FIRST SPY CASE

Probers To Determine Russian Effort To Pick Secrets At Bell Aircraft

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(AP)—House spy probers are set to break their first big case of industrial espionage next week—one involving asserted Russian efforts to pick off wartime military secrets at the Bell Aircraft plant.

The un-American activities committee disclosed today it had subpoened at least three witnesses, from Buffalo and Niagara Falls, N. Y., for hearings starting Monday. The Bell factory is at Buffalo.

Those named as witnesses—all described by the committee as "loyal Americans"—are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Franey of Niagara Falls, and Loren Haas of Buffalo. The committee said there may be others.

The story is that they were approached by a Russian official, a member of a wartime Russian military commission in the United States to buy Bell Airacobra planes. The official is now in Moscow, it was stated.

The Russians picked the wrong people to talk to, committee officials said. Instead of providing information on other U. S. military air developments, the three "played along" with the Russian agent while keeping U. S. security officials informed.

The committee identified Mrs. Franey as a librarian for the Bell company. Her husband was described as an employe of the Hooker Electro-Chemical Company. Haas was identified as a former employe of Bell and Westinghouse Electric Company, now associated with a research engineering firm.

The committee would like to know why the Russian never was arrested and prosecuted. A member told reporters the committee will bring out details on how he operated and what he was after.

Apparently the Russian wanted information on jet aircraft, then in the experimental stage. The witnesses said that over a considerable time they fed him batches of phoney material or information of "no real value."

The Russian, the story goes, paid off in cash. The committee says it has

LOCAL BANK TELLER FINDS BOGUS BILLS

At least three counterfeit $20 bills were detected by a Monroe bank teller early Saturday morning after two local merchants made their deposits at the Central Savings Bank and Trust Company.

The teller, James G. Guthrie said, the bills all bore identicial serial numbers which were 69795899C.

Monroe business houses were warned to be on the lookout for the fake green backs.

Close examination of the $20 bills reveals that they are printed on a much courser paper, the letters are more blurred and the shading much lighter.

The Ouachita National Bank was contacted but reported at noon, so far as had been determined, they had received none of the illegal $20 bills.

FULLER PETITION UP TO GOVERNOR

Recall Election Must Be Called By Chief Executive By June 7

The petition seeking the recall of C. C. Fuller, member of the Ouachita parish school board from Ward 7, has been delivered to the office of Gov. Earl K. Long and the governor, under Louisiana law, must call an election by June 7, it was learned yesterday.

The petition, said to bear the signatures of more than half the qualified voters of the ward, has been certified by the secretary of state and has been approved by the attorney general, it was said. It was delivered to the governor's office on June 1, and the law governing such procedure specities that the governor must call an election within five days after receipt of the duly certified petition.

Governor Long has been out of his office for the past two weeks, but it is expected that he will return by Monday. If not, Lieut.-Gov. Bill Dodd will call the election, the date of which, of course, will not be known until officia' action is taken by the governor or lieutenant-governor.

The petition seeking Fuller's recall was circulated early last month. It was said that a total of 108 names were written in on the petition. This is more than half the total of voters who cast their ballot in the last election held in the ward, which was in November, 1948 and the vote totaled 204. The law requires that 25 per cent of voters in the last election be signed to any petition seeking recall of an elected official.

The voters who signed the petition were first certified as being qualified by Miss Lillian Collins, parish registrar of voters, and it was then taken to Baton Rouge, where the secretary

BLOOD SWAPPED BY CONVICT AND CHILD

OSSINING, N..Y., June 4.—(AP)—A life-term Sing Sing prisoner—with no promise of reward—has risked his life in a daring effort to save that of a dying child.

In a last-resort experiment, the blood of the prisoner and an eight-year-old girl has been co-mingled to try to pump new life into the child's veins.

The child is dying of dread leukemia, a blood disease in which the white blood cells keep increasing.

Dr. Charles C. Sweet, chief prison doctor, told of the strange experiment yesterday.

At one-hour intervals on four successive days this week the prisoner allowed the poisoned blood of the child to flow through his own blood stream while his blood circulated through her. Eighteen quarts of blood flowed between the two during the course of the experiment, it was estimated.

Outcome of the test still is undetermined. Doctors hoped, however, that the prisoner could absorb enough of the diseased blood to save the child without being stricken by the disease. Their names were not divulged.

Prison officials said a number of inmates volunteered for the experiment after Dr. Sweet heard of the case. The one elected was chosen because his blood "typed up" with that of the child's.

S. W. GAS BLDG. FORMALLY OPENS

New $150,000 Administration Building Visited By 300 Persons

More than 300 persons attended the formal opening of the Southwest Gas Company's new $150,000 administration building on Louisville avenue during the hours of 10 a. m. and 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

The building, one of Monroe's most modern structures, was decorated throughout with baskets of roses, carnations, lilies and spring flowers, all compliments of friends and local business concerns.

Though the company moved into its new home a few weeks ago, the general public had its first opportunity of viewing the interior Saturday.

Within the twenty-five offices of the building, the company directs the operation of their interests over an era covering north Louisiana and a part of Texas.

Among the officials of the company receiving guests at the opening were Z. C. Ambrose, vice-president and general manager, T. B. Snodgrass, treasurer, J. H. Crump, geologist, and Max L. Riley, chief engineer.

The new building was began last Sept., and final touches were completed several days ago.

Among the interesting features of this all-modern construction, is the newest thing in dual-purpose air conditioning and heating systems, a push button radio network enabling the office force of 25 to contact, with the flip of their finger, workers in the field, and an inter-dial telephone system.

Operations of the company centers around Dubach, the Monroe field in Union parish and points in Lincoln parish.

Cost of the building alone totaled approximately $100,000, with added improvements to the lot, and new equipment bringing the sum to a total of approximately $150,000.

Included in the office are the general department consisting of management and supervision, the accounting department, gas measurements department, geological, purchasing and land departments.

LITTLE AGREEMENT REACHED IN FOUR POWER DISCUSSION

Session To Determine Berlin Unification Is Longest Yet Held

BERLIN BECOMING TOKEN OF WHO WINS COLD WAR

By Preston Grover

PARIS, June 4.—(AP)—Four weary foreign ministers broke up tonight a four and a half hour secret session on uniting Berlin and an American source said a "little progress was made.'

"It was just a little," the informant added.

Western officials said there definitely was an "area of agreement" between Russia and the west, but this concerned broad general principles and could come to nothing in consideration of details.

Barely had the foreign ministers broken up their formal meeting at 8 p. m. when U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky went into a less formal huddle over their dinner plates at the American embassy. They were delayed getting to their dinner by the formal session—the longest the foreign ministers have had yet.

U. S. Ambassador David K. Bruce was official host. Charles. Bohlen, German specialist in the state department, and Vladimir Pavlov; Russian interpreter, were at the elbows of their chiefs.

French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman left the four-power meeting before it was over to catch a train for

Foul Play Suspected After Suffocated Youths Are Found By Mother

WALNUT RIDGE, Ark., June 4.—(AP)—How did the door of a wooden ice box close on three children at a farmhouse near here and bring them death?

Authorities in this little northeastern Arkansas county set were pondering that question tonight.

Mrs. Ed Chastain, mother of two of the children found them late yesterday tightly wedged in an ice box compartment—a space of 34 inches high, 12 inches wide and 16 inches in depth.

James Delbert Chastain, two, and Shirley Ramsey, six, were dead when a doctor arrived, Joyce Ann Chaistain, nine died early today in a hospital without regaining consciousness.

Millard Hardin, prosecuting attorney, said a coroner's jury found two suffocated by a cause or circumstance not yet known. The third child, who survived several hours after the ordeal, died from a cause not yet established.

Hardin said it was possible the children themselves locekd the doors, "but it is highly improbable." He said state and county authorities are continuing their investigation.

An autopsy had been performed on one of the younger children but Hardin said he had not yet received a report.

"I don't see how in the world those children locked themselves in that box. We are going to have to go a lot deeper in this case. I believe there has been foul play."

Hardin said the older girl had bruises on her legs and a possible bruise on her head. He said it was

500 March In Protest To Jailing Of 3 Communists

NEW YORK, June 4.—(AP)—A police-estimated crowd of 500 persons marched outside the federal house of detention today in protest against the jailing of three of 11 top U. S. Communists on trial for conspiracy.

The wives of six of the accused Communist leaders, including two of those remanded to jail, paraded in the demonstration. Children of two of the 11 defendants carried placards reading, "Our Fathers Fought Fascism; Free Them Now."

The three, John Gates, Harry Winston and Gus Hall, were ordered imprisoned yesterday after their hectic, 20-week trial, exploded into a new outburst of disorder and confusion in the federal courtroom here. They, along with the other defendants, are charged with conspiracy to advocate the violent overthrow of the U. S. government. Gates, editor of the Daily Worker, was jailed for contempt of court and Winston and Hall for denouncing his sentence.

Meanwhile, through one of the battery of defense attorneys defending them at the trial, they issued a statement saying they were "tremendously gratified" over sharp protests from some quarters against their detention.

The attorney, Harry Sacher, visited the imprisoned men today. After releasing their statement, he condemned the refusal of prison authorities to permit "an adequate conference" with his clients. He said he had to talk to them through "an aperture which made real consultation impossible."

The jail Communists said they had "noted with special satisfaction" comment by Henry Wallace in which the Progressive party leader termed their detention "shocking" and a threat to American political liberties.

Their statement added: "Americans recognize that the purpose of this jailing is to deprive the defense of the opportunity to present its case and to railroad the defendants to jail."

The immediate cause of the trio's confinement was the refusal of Gates to answer a question regarding iden-

POLISH WARN U. S.

Statements Conflict On Whether Action Is Seizure Or Inspection

PASSENGERS WILL FACE ELLIS ISLAND HEARING

NEW YORK, June 4.—(AP)—The government sent a swarm of agents aboard the Gerhart Eisler escape ship today, surrounded her with guards, detained the crew and held 111 passengers for Ellis Island hearings.

As the Polish liner Batory docked on her first trip here since the Eisler escape, there were conflicting statements on whether the government was seizing the ship or only inspecting it.

The Polish embassy in Washington said it would use "all legal means against any unjustified or illegal action."

The number of retentions was unusually large. Officials said from 12 to 20 would be normal for a ship of the Batory's size.

The final number to be detained still was uncertain as immigration officials continued to examine the liner's nearly 700 passengers.

An immigration official said those detained would be taken to Ellis Island by barge. They will remain there at least over the week-end, as a special inquiry board is to start hearings Monday.

Crying babies and older men and women were among the passengers lined up on the Batory's promenade deck. Small children shuffled about impatiently.

District Immigration Director Edward Shaughnessy said a majority of those held were "of doubtful American citizenship."

He said they lacked documentary proof of citizenship but might be able to produce it at the hearings.

Officials said others were detained for lack of bonds, travelling on visitors passports although not legitimate visitors, and other causes.

A squad of more than 30 city policemen joined others described only as "government men"—it was unknown whether they were from the F. B. I., immigration or customs—to guard the pier.

A police official said they were ordered "to assist government men and see that no member of the crew leaves the ship."

Aboard the ship, it was learned, crew members were undergoing more than ordinary scrutiny.

It was believed government agents were questioning them to find out if any had helped Eisler stowaway.

Shortly after the crowd of immigration agents boarded the Batory, Pete Esperdy, assistant district immigration enforcement officer, told reporters the Batory "may be in the process of being seized."

But District Director Edward Shaughnessy met the seizure reports thus:

"As far as seizure is concerned, from an immigration standpoint, we immigration people have no such thing in mind.'

Shaughnessy later said Esperdy had told him he had made no such statement.

"We recognize the unusual interest there would be in the first arrival of the ship on which Eisler went out and put a larger crew on duty to be sure that things went off in the least possible confusion," Shaughnessy added.

Earlier John Donovan, assistant U. S. attorney had said:

"I understand the ship is under government control."

In a later statement, however, Donovan merely said he had been advised by customs official that "government agents boarded the Batory."

The Batory's master, Captain Jan Cwiklinsky, had countered Donovan's earlier statement with an assertion that he was "still in command of my ship."

Later, after he had talked to officials of the line, he was asked if he planned to sail Monday as scheduled.

"Why not?" he replied. "Business as usual."

In Washington Polish Ambassador Jozef Winiewicz said he had cabled the captain before arrival that it would be "in the best interest of the line that you give U. S. authorities fullest aid in endeavoring to discover how Eisler succeeded stowing away

HEAD-ON AUTO CRASH INJURES L. PUCKETT

A 32-year-old Sterlington man was injured and another slightly bruised in a head-on automobile collision nine miles north of Monroe on Highway U. S. 165 shortly after 11:30 a. m., according to state police.

Hospitalized was Leonard F. Puckett, 32, who was taken by Hall's ambulance to the St. Francis Sanitarium where he is being treated for lacerations on his forehead and knee. Leon C. Scott, 25, also of Sterlington, was released from the hospital following treatment.

The accident occurred when Scott traveling north on Highway 165 attempted to pass three vehicles crashing headon with Puckett who was traveling south on the Sterlington road, troopers said.

State police charged Scott late Saturday afternoon with careless and reckless driving, causing personal injury and property damage. Both vehicles were damaged considerably.

MAY REVEAL ATOM BOMB STOCK-PILE AT INVESTIGATION

Move Will Be To Continue Committee Investigation Of Lilienthal

HICKENLOOPER THINKS PUBLICITY IS UNSAFE

By Jack Bell

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(AP)—The size of America's atomic bomb stockpile might have to be disclosed to get a proper assessment of the work of the atomic energy commission, Senator McMahon (D.-Conn.) said today.

McMahon is chairman of the senate-house atomic energy committee which is investigating charges of "incredible mismanagement" leveled by Senator Hickenlooper (R.-Iowa) at A. E. C. Chairman Daavid E. Lilienthal.

The current investigation, McMahon said, "gives point and meaning" to his earlier suggestion for a study of the effects of lifting the secrecy ban on the number of bombs.

However, Hickenlooper told reporters he doesn't think that is "a safe area for publicity."

McMahon noted he had pointed out in a February speech "that it would be impossible to properly assess the conduct of the atomic energy commission's affairs unless the congress and the American people had a pretty reliable idea of what our stockpile of atomic bombs is."

Recapture 8 Convicts; 6 Still Being Sought

Authorities Start Herding Up Dangerous Escaped Convicts Who Broke West Virginia Prison Friday

MOUNDSVILLE, W. Va., June 4.—(AP)—Eight of the 14 long term convicts who cut their way out of West Virginia's old state penitentiary were recaptured today.

Planes, jeeps and road blocks were being employed by law enforcement officials to flush the six still at large.

The mass break was engineered before dawn yesterday.

The latest two to fall into the net tightening around this upper Ohio river area were captured by Police Chief Earl W. Walker of Belpre, O.

They were Everett Leroy Roble, 28, and Elmer Tichnell, 28, holdup men from Parkersburg, W. V., who had escaped once before.

Walker picked them up as they were walking along a Belpre street.

One of those captured after less than a day and a half of uncertain freedom was shot in the shoulder by an Ohio state highway patrolman after he was spotted walking along a highway in nearby Powhatten, O. H. was identified as Mike Ables, 34-year-old lifer.

Holly Starcher, a kidnapper, was captured with him.

A combination of hunger pangs and the alertness of a country storekeeper sent the other four back to the 83-year-old penitentiary.

They were Dennis P. Taylor, 27;

Supt. J. M. Boyet commended Miss Katherine Key and Mrs. John B. Johnston for their fine cooperation with him in his first year as superintendent. Former Supt. E. L. War With Germany, Japan Is Legally Still Underway

By Edward E. Bomar

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(AP)—Five years after D-Day in Normandy, the war with Germany and Japan is still legally on for more than two score nations.

Though the United States and most of the other allies have formally declared actual hostilities to be at an end, the technical windup of World War II is still waiting for an agreement between the west and Soviet Russia to go ahead with the drafting of peace treaties.

The progress of the big four foreign minister conference at Paris thus far has failed to encourage hopes that such an agreement may be in sight. American official experts meantime are trying to master the legal and diplomatic tangles resulting from a situation which countributes materially to post-war instability.

Just how many nations are still at war cannot be stated positively. The state department figured at the time of the Japanese surrender that 46 countries were official enemies of Japan and 47 remained at war with Germany. It is standing by that figure, subject to a number of special interpretations.

Numerous side issues remain unsettled. Greece and neighboring Albania appear uncertain whether they are in a hangover state of war. While the big four allies never declared war on Austria they have been unable to agree on a treaty restoring the country as a victim of Nazi aggression, to full independence. Meanwhile allied troops occupy it in the same way as Germany.

The peace treaties already signed with five axis satellite countries have proved only partially satisfactory to the west. The United States and Britain are pressing charges just now that Communist-run Romania, Bulgaria and Hungary have flouted their treaty pledges to give their peoples such human rights as fair trails and free speech.

Based on a state department survey, these countries are in a "state of armistice relations" with Germany and

BATTLE TO KEEP BIG PORTION OF TAFT-HARTLEY BILL

SENATE ACTION ON BILL TO BE DEBATED MONDAY

By Marvin L. Arrowsmith

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(AP)—Senate Republicans battling to keep a big part of the Taft-Hartley law contended today that a Democratic compromise drive plays into their hands.

But Senator Douglas (D-Ill.), a leader of the move to revise the Truman labor bill, took a sharply different view. He said:

"I think we've got a very good chance to put our program across."

Senate debate on the administration bill is scheduled to start Monday. It would repeal the Taft-Hartley act and replace it with a slightly modified version of the old Wagner act.

Three Republicans, Senators Taft (Ohio), Donnell (Mo.) and Smith (N. J.), are sponsoring a substitute measure which would retain the basic provisions of the T.-H. law.

Both their substitute and the administration bill amendments backed by Douglas and a group of other senators—including both Democrats and Republicans—provide for presidential seizure of struck plants in national emergency disputes.

That proposal came under bitter attack by the National Coal Association. John D. Battle, the association's executive vice-president, said in a statement that "seizure does not solve labor

HOUSE TO TACKLE FIRST SPY CASE

Probers To Determine Russian Effort To Pick Secrets At Bell Aircraft

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(AP)—House spy probers are set to break their first big case of industrial espionage next week—one involving asserted Russian efforts to pick off wartime military secrets at the Bell Aircraft plant.

The un-American activities committee disclosed today it had subpoened at least three witnesses, from Buffalo and Niagara Falls, N. Y., for hearings starting Monday. The Bell factory is at Buffalo.

Those named as witnesses—all described by the committee as "loyal Americans"—are Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Franey of Niagara Falls, and Loren Haas of Buffalo. The committee said there may be others.

The story is that they were approached by a Russian official, a member of a wartime Russian military commission in the United States to buy Bell Airacobra planes. The official is now in Moscow, it was stated.

The Russians picked the wrong people to talk to, committee officials said. Instead of providing information on other U. S. military air developments, the three "played along" with the Russian agent while keeping U. S. security officials informed.

The committee identified Mrs. Franey as a librarian for the Bell company. Her husband was described as an employe of the Hooker Electro-Chemical Company. Haas was identified as a former employe of Bell and Westinghouse Electric Company, now associated with a research engineering firm.

The committee would like to know why the Russian never was arrested and prosecuted. A member told reporters the committee will bring out details on how he operated and what he was after.

Apparently the Russian wanted information on jet aircraft, then in the experimental stage. The witnesses said that over a considerable time they fed him batches of phoney material or information of "no real value."

The Russian, the story goes, paid off in cash. The committee says it has

LOCAL BANK TELLER FINDS BOGUS BILLS

At least three counterfeit $20 bills were detected by a Monroe bank teller early Saturday morning after two local merchants made their deposits at the Central Savings Bank and Trust Company.

The teller, James G. Guthrie said, the bills all bore identicial serial numbers which were 63735899C.

Monroe business houses were warned to be on the lookout for the fake green backs.

Close examination of the $20 bills reveals that they are printed on a much courser paper, the letters are more blurred and the shading much lighter.

The Ouachita National Bank was contacted but reported at noon, so far as had been determined, they had received none of the illegal $20 bills.

FULLER PETITION UP TO GOVERNOR

Recall Election Must Be Called By Chief Executive By June 7

The petition seeking the recall of C. C. Fuller, member of the Ouachita parish school board from Ward 7, has been delivered to the office of Gov. Earl K. Long and the governor, under Louisiana law, must call an election by June 7, it was learned yesterday.

The petition, said to bear the signatures of more than half the qualified voters of the ward, has been certified by the secretary of state and has been approved by the attorney general, it was said. It was delivered to the governor's office on June 1, and the law governing such procedure specifies that the governor must call an election within five days after receipt of the duly certified petition.

Governor Long has been out of his office for the past two weeks, but it is expected that he will return by Monday. If not, Lieut.-Gov. Bill Dodd will call the election, the date of which, of course, will not be known until officia' action is taken by the governor or lieutenant-governor.

The petition seeking Fuller's recall was circulated early last month. It was said that a total of 108 names were written in on the petition. This is more than half the total of voters who cast their ballot in the last election held in the ward, which was in November, 1948 and the vote totaled 204. The law requires that 25 per cent of voters in the last election be signed to any petition seeking recall of an elected official.

The voters who signed the petition were first certified as being qualified by Miss Lillian Collins, parish registrar of voters, and it was then taken to Baton Rouge, where the secretary

BLOOD SWAPPED BY CONVICT AND CHILD

OSSINING, N. Y., June 4.—(AP)—A life-term Sing Sing prisoner—with no promise of reward—has risked his life in a daring effort to save that of a dying child.

In a last-resort experiment, the blood of the prisoner and an eight-year-old girl has been co-mingled to try to pump new life into the child's veins.

The child is dying of dread leukemia, a blood disease in which the white blood cells keep increasing.

Dr. Charles C. Sweet, chief prison doctor, told of the strange experiment yesterday.

At one-hour intervals on four successive days this week the prisoner allowed the poisoned blood of the child to flow through his own blood stream while his blood circulated through her. Eighteen quarts of blood flowed between the two during the course of the experiment, it was estimated.

Outcome of the test still is undetermined. Doctors hoped, however, that the prisoner could absorb enough of the diseased blood to save the child without being stricken by the disease. Their names were not divulged.

Prison officials said a number of inmates volunteered for the experiment after Dr. Sweet heard of the case. The one elected was chosen because his blood "typed up" with that of the child's.

S. W. GAS BLDG. FORMALLY OPENS

New $150,000 Administration Building Visited By 300 Persons

More than 300 persons attended the formal opening of the Southwest Gas Company's new $150,000 administration building on Louisville avenue during the hours of 10 a. m. and 4 o'clock Saturday afternoon.

The building, one of Monroe's most modern structures, was decorated throughout with baskets of roses, carnations, lilies and spring flowers, all compliments of friends and local business concerns.

Though the company moved into its new home a few weeks ago, the general public had its first opportunity of viewing the interior Saturday.

Within the twenty-five offices of the building, the company directs the operation of their interests over an era covering north Louisiana and a part of Texas.

Among the officials of the company receiving guests at the opening were Z. C. Ambrose, vice-president and general manager, T. B. Snodgrass, treasurer, J. H. Crump, geologist, and Max L. Riley, chief engineer.

The new building was began last Sept., and final touches were completed several days ago.

Among the interesting features of this all-modern construction, is the newest thing in dual-purpose air conditioning and heating systems, a push button radio network enabling the office force of 25 to contact, with the flip of their finger, workers in the field, and an inter-dia', telephone system.

Operations of the company centers around Dubach, the Monroe field in Union parish and points in Lincoln parish.

Cost of the building alone totaled approximately $100,000, with added improvements to the lot, and new equipment bringing the sum to a total of approximately $150,000.

Included in the office are the general department consisting of management and supervision, the accounting department, gas measurements department, geological, purchasing and land departments.

LITTLE AGREEMENT REACHED IN FOUR POWER DISCUSSION

Session To Determine Berlin Unification Is Longest Yet Held

BERLIN BECOMING TOKEN OF WHO WINS COLD WAR

By Preston Grover

PARIS, June 4.—(AP)—Four weary foreign ministers broke up tonight a four and a half hour secret session on uniting Berlin and an American source said a "little progress was made.'

"It was just a little," the informant added.

Western officials said there definitely was an "area of agreement" between Russia and the west, but this concerned broad general principles and could come to nothing in consideration of details.

Barely had the foreign ministers broken up their formal meeting at 8 p. m. when U. S. Secretary of State Dean Acheson and Soviet Foreign Minister Andrei Vishinsky went into a less formal huddle over their dinner plates at the American embassy. They were delayed getting to their dinner by the formal session—the longest the foreign ministers have had yet.

U. S. Ambassador David K. Bruce was official host. Charles Bohlen, German specialist in the state department, and Vladimir Pavlov, Russian interpreter, were at the elbows of their chiefs.

French Foreign Minister Robert Schuman left the four-power meeting before it was over to catch a train for

Foul Play Suspected After Suffocated Youths Are Found By Mother

WALNUT RIDGE, Ark., June 4.—(AP)—How did the door of a wooden ice box close on three children at a farmhouse near here and bring them death?

Authorities in this little northeastern Arkansas county set were pondering that question tonight.

Mrs. Ed Chastain, mother of two of the children found them late yesterday tightly wedged in an ice box compartment—a space of 34 inches high, 12 inches wide and 16 inches in depth.

James Delbert Chastain, two, and Shirley Ramsey, six, were dead when a doctor arrived, Joyce Ann Chaistain, nine died early today in a hospital without regaining consciousness.

Millard Hardin, prosecuting attorney, said a coroner's jury found two suffocated by a cause or circumstance not yet known. The third child, who survived several hours after the ordeal, died from a cause not yet established.

Hardin said it was possible the children themselves locekd the doors, "but it is highly improbable." He said state and county authorities are continuing their investigation.

An autopsy had been performed on one of the younger children but Hardin said he had not yet received a report.

"I don't see how in the world those children locked themselves in that box. We are going to have to go a lot deeper in this case. I believe there has been foul play."

Hardin said the older girl had bruises on her legs and a possible bruise on her head. He said it was

500 March In Protest To Jailing Of 3 Communists

NEW YORK, June 4.—(AP)—A police-estimated crowd of 500 persons marched outside the federal house of detention today in protest against the jailing of three of 11 top U. S. Communists on trial for conspiracy.

The wives of six of the accused Communist leaders, including two of those remanded to jail, paraded in the demonstration. Children of two of the 11 defendants carried placards reading, "Our Fathers Fought Fascism; Free Them Now."

The three, John Gates, Harry Winston and Gus Hall, were ordered imprisoned yesterday after their hectic, 20-week trial exploded into a new outburst of disorder and confusion in the federal courtroom here. They, along with the other defendants, are charged with conspiracy to advocate the violent overthrow of the U. S. government. Gates, editor of the Daily Worker, was jailed for contempt of court and Winston and Hall for denouncing his sentence.

Meanwhile, through one of the battery of defense attorneys defending them at the trial, they issued a statement saying they were "tremendously gratified" over sharp protests from some quarters against their detention.

The attorney, Harry Sacher, visited the imprisoned men today. After releasing their statement, he condemned the refusal of prison authorities to permit "an adequate conference" with his clients. He said he had to talk to them through "an aperture which made real consultation impossible."

The jail Communists said they had "noted with special satisfaction" comment by Henry Wallace in which the Progressive party leader termed their detention "shocking" and a threat to American political liberties.

Their statement added: "Americans recognize that the purpose of this jailing is to deprive the defense of the opportunity to present its case and to railroad the defendants to jail."

The immediate cause of the trio's confinement was the refusal of gates to answer a question regarding iden-

POLISH WARN U. S.

PASSENGERS WILL FACE ELLIS ISLAND HEARING

NEW YORK, June 4.—(AP)—The government sent a swarm of agents aboard the Gerhart Eisler escape ship today, surrounded her with guards, detained the crew and held 111 passengers for Ellis Island hearings.

As the Polish liner Batory docked on her first trip here since the Eisler escape, there were conflicting statements on whether the government was seizing the ship or only inspecting it.

The Polish embassy in Washington said it would use "all legal means against any unjustified or illegal action."

The number of retentions was unusually large. Officials said from 12 to 20 would be normal for a ship of the Batory's size.

The final number to be detained still was uncertain as immigration officials continued to examine the liner's nearly 700 passengers.

An immigration official said those detained would be taken to Ellis Island by barge. They will remain there at least over the week-end, as a special inquiry board is to start hearings Monday.

Crying babies and older men and women were among the passengers lined up on the Batory's promenade deck. Small children shuffled about impatiently.

District Immigration Director Edward Shaughnessy said a majority of those held were "of doubtful American citizenship."

He said they lacked documentary proof of citizenship but might be able to produce it at the hearings.

Officials said others were detained for lack of bonds, travelling on visitors passports although not legitimate visitors, and other causes.

A squad of more than 30 city policemen joined others described only as "government men"—it was unknown whether they were from the F. B. I., immigration or customs—to guard the pier.

A police official said they were ordered "to assist government men and see that no member of the crew leaves the ship."

Aboard the ship, it was learned, crew members were undergoing more than ordinary scrutiny.

It was believed government agents were questioning them to find out if any had helped Eisler stoaway.

Shortly after the crowd of immigration agents boarded the Batory, Pete Esperdy, assistant district immigration enforcement officer, told reporters the Batory "may be in the process of being seized."

But District Director Edward Shaughnessy met the seizure reports thus:

"As far as seizure is concerned, from an immigration standpoint, we immigration people have no such thing in mind.'

Shaughnessy later said Esperdy had told him he had made no such statement.

"We recognize the unusual interest there would be in the first arrival of the ship on which Eisler went out and put a larger crew on duty to be sure that things went off in the least possible confusion," Shaughnessy added.

Earlier John Donovan, assistant U. S. attorney had said:

"I understand the ship is under government control."

In a later statement, however, Donovan merely said he had been advised by customs official that "government agents boarded the Batory."

The Batory's master, Captain Jan Cwiklinsky, had countered Donovan's earlier statement with an assertion that he was "still in command of my ship."

Later, after he had talked to officials of the line, he was asked if he planned to sail Monday as scheduled.

"Why not?" he replied. "Business as usual."

In Washington Polish Ambassador Jozef Winiewicz said he had cabled the captain before arrival that it would be "in the best interest of the line that you give U. S. authorities fullest aid in endeavoring to discover how Eisler succeeded stowing away

40 Million In War Surplus Transferred To La., Miss.

By Gordon Brown

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(AP)—Since the end of the war surplus property which originally cost the government over $40,000,000 has been transferred to Louisiana and Mississippi for educational purposes.

This is shown in a report of federal agencies dealing with disposal of surplus property, including real estate, which can be used for education.

Of the total, Mississippi has received the greater amount, some $33,448,000. Louisiana's total is $6,890,000.

While the property involved had an original cost in excess of $40,000,000, its fair value as set by the war assets administration was considerably less —approximately $4,000,000.

Even so, the states acquired the property at little cost since congress, in setting up the disposal program, staid states, cities, counties and educational institutions could receive discounts up to 100 per cent.

For Mississippi, the property which originally cost $33,448,000 and had a fair value of $3,239,000 went to the state and its subdivisions for $99,793.

Louisiana and its subdivisions paid $50,888 for property originally costing $6,890,000 and for which fair value was placed at $718,000.

Much of the property involved included buildings which were dismantled and moved to educational institutions or elsewhere for housing, schools and the like.

In all, Mississippi acquired, up to last March 31. a total of 3,139 acres of land and 2,503 buildings; Louisiana 800 acres and 761 buildings.

The bulk of Mississippi's acquisitions represented property which once was part of the Gulf Ordnance plant. The state of Mississippi took 350 buildings and 3,120 acres. Prairie school district acquired one building and 19 acres. There were transferred at the full 100 per cent discount.

In Louisiana Southeasten Louisiana College received 752 acreas of land and 26 buildings which formed a part of the old Hammond Army Air Field, and the state school for spastics acquired 48 acres and 40 buildings once part of the Alexandria Army Air Field.

When the senate approved a bill this week to give the District of Columbia a measure of home rule, Senator Eastland (D.-Miss.) tried unsuccessfully to make it provide that before any ordinance abolishing segregation could become effective in the district it would have to be approved by a referendum vote.

Eastland, who had the aid of Senator Stennis and other southerners in the debate, argued that his amendment merely left the segregation question up to the people and not politicians to decide.

"It is peculiar indeed," he told the senate, "that the men who advocate the abolition of segregation here, the big politicians, the men in the upper income-tax brackets, believe in and practice segregation themselves."

Eastland said he was amazed at the number of high government officials "who give statements to the press that they desire to see segregation abolished and insist that we must adopt a progressive course, whose own children nevertheless, beyond the reach of racial mixture, are placed in private schools where it is known the color line will be maintained, even though there should be a mixture in the schools of Washington."

Stennis, urging adoption of the eastland amendment, told the senate that "if we proceed under a system which fails to provide for a vote of the people on such a far-reaching and serious change, we shall be headed for most serious trouble in the district, a trouble which will perhaps spread to other areas and prejudice the minds of many calm, thinking people against the rights of the colored race to a fair share in the educational opportunities in the times."

Senators Long and Ellender, Democrat, Louisiana, voted for the Eastland amendment which failed 27 to 49.

The civil functions appropriation bill, which carries flood control funds for the lower Mississippi river and its tributaries, still is tied up in a house-senate conference committee with no indication when an agreement will be reached.

This committee is attempting to reconcile various differences between the house and senate versions of the bill.

Louisiana and Mississippi are interested principally in the lower Mississippi item. Here the house voted $63,000,000 for the work while the senate allowed $73,000,000.

Since the budget recommended only $70,000,000, the senate group likely will have difficulty convincing the house conferees that the entire $73,000,000 should stay in the bill.

The Louisiana and Mississippi delegations would like to keep the full amount but undoubtedly would be willing to compromise on $70,000,000.

Louisiana would like that extra $3,000,000 since it would be earmarked for the Atchafalaya flood way. Until this project is completed southern Louisiana lives with the uneasy feeling that a serious flood might change the river's course into the Atchafalaya and inundate a vast area.

BONUS RIVER OF GOLD DRYING UP

Job Of Sending Checks To War Veterans 85 Per Cent Completed

By Edmond LeBreton

BATON ROUGE, La., June 4.—(AP)—A golden river that has been fertilizing Louisiana's economy for three months is beginning to run dry.

The bonus division of the state department of veterans' affairs estimates that its job is 85 per cent done. In about three months after the bonus funds became available it has paid out approximately $46,700,000 to 217,194 Louisiana veterans and dependents of war casualties.

Payments began March 11. At that time, a backlog of approved bonus applications had accumulated and more than $11,000,000 went out at once. Payments have averaged more than $11,000,000 a month since.

It may be coincidence, or the usual seasonal upswing in hiring and sales, but the indices of Louisiana business turned upwards in March, the first month of bonus payments, after slumping since the beginning of the year. Nobody but the 200,000-odd veterans knows definitely how much bonus money was saved, how much spent and how much went to pay off debts, and nobody has polled the veterans on the subject.

Statisticians in various state departments show the usual professional caution in expressing opinions as to whether the business upswing was largely attributable to bonus payments or not. However, one of them pointed out that $11,000,000 a month represents about a 5 1/2 per cent addition to the amount usually estimated to represent the collective buying power of Louisianians.

At any rate, the end of bonus payments is in sight and there will be time to see whether the state's economy reacts again. The flow won't be shut off all at once. The bonus division still has about $13,000,000 to disburse from the $60,000,000 produced by bonus bond sales. Veterans and death beneficiaries have until December 1 to file their claims.

Veterans Affairs Director J. L. Golsan sticks to his prediction that the $60,000,000 will comfortably cover the state's requirements for the $50 to $250 bonuses, $1,000 death benefits provided by the bonus amendment, as well as costs of administration. Some estimates of the number of servicemen from Louisiana indicated that more might be required. In any case, the beer tax is providing much more than enough to service the bonds and some administration spokesmen privately say they see no legal difficulty in the way of using some of this surplus for bonus payments, if this should be necessary.

The bonus division is beginning to taper off its force. In its intensive three months of full activity it has received 241,000 applications. It expects about 8,000 more. Nearly 236,000 applications had been processed by this week, including 5,037 applications for death benefits. The section that handles applications about which there is a question had received 34,163, approved 19,820 and disapproved 2,011, leaving about 19,000 still under study.

The division began accepting death benefit claims several weeks after the bonus application period opened and so far has paid about 600 of these. It expects to find a total of about 2,500 of these claims valid, and since each is for $1,000, a substantial part of the remaining funds will go to pay them.

HOLLYWOOD, June 4.—(AP)—"Little trace of the American motion picture industry has come down to us," Dr. Adam Fission told a historians' meeting at Uranium University in the year 2049.

"And much that remains is confusing," he added.

"For instance, motion pictures appear to have been popular, with millions watching the flickering screens every night. And yet, judging from the printed records of the critics of the time, the quality of entertainment was very poor.

"There is also confusion about the so-called stars—the men and women who took leading roles in the photoplays. We have unearthed records from the studio files and 'fan' magazines, all of which indicate the stars were paragons of virtue.

"There is conflicting evidence from microfilms of the era's newspapers."

"Unlike the solar system," Dr. Fission said with a smile, "the motion picture industry seems to have revolved around the stars. They were public heroes. Each time they got married, which was often, the wedding appeared to have been a kind of national festival.

"One of these events took place just 100 years ago when a star named Rita Hayworth wed an eastern potentate. Another occurred the year before when Lana Turner also married a man from the east.

"The stars earned fantastic salaries, even more than interplanetary pilots do today. In fact," he added with irony, "more in a week than a college professor makes in a year."

The historian commented on the lack of monuments left by the motion picture makers.

"They appear to have been too busy to erect monuments for the future," he said. "In a Hollywood graveyard we have found a statue in honor of Rudolph Valentino, an early deity.

"Amid the ruins of the studios were discovered plaques dedicating the stages (on which the pictures were filmed) to such figures as Tom Mix, Will Rogers and Mabel Normand. But otherwise there is little to mark the once-great industry.

"There is no rememberance to D. W. Griffith, who seems to have been the Columbus of the motion picture."

Dr. Fission traced the decline of the industry:

"The motion picture was born when it started to move. It flourished when it started to talk. It died when it started to smell."

40 Million In War Surplus Transferred To La., Miss.

By Gordon Brown

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(AP)—Since the end of the war surplus property which originally cost the government over $40,000,000 has been transferred to Louisiana and Mississippi for educational purposes.

This is shown in a report of federal agencies dealing with disposal of surplus property, including real estate, which can be used for education.

Of the total, Mississippi has received the greater amount, some $33,448,000. Louisiana's total is $6,890,000.

While the property involved had an original cost in excess of $40,000,000, its fair value as set by the war assets administration was considerably less —approximately $4,000,000.

Even so, the states acquired the property at little cost since congress, in setting up the disposal program, staid states, cities, counties and educational institutions could receive discounts up to 100 per cent.

For Mississippi, the property which originally cost $33,448,000 and had a fair value of $3,239,000 went to the state and its subdivisions for $99,793.

Louisiana and its subdivisions paid $50,888 for property originally costing $5,890,000 and for which fair value was placed at $718,000.

Much of the property involved included buildings which were dismantled and moved to educational institutions or elsewhere for housing, schools and the like.

In all, Mississippi acquired, up to last March 31, a total of 3,139 acres of land and 2,503 buildings; Louisiana 800 acres and 761 buildings.

The bulk of Mississippi's acquisitions represented property which once was part of the Gulf Ordnance plant. The state of Mississippi took 350 buildings and 3,120 acres. Prairie school district acquired one building and 19 acres. There were transferred at the full 100 per cent discount.

In Louisiana Southeasten Louisiana College received 752 acreas of land and 26 buildings which formed a part of the old Hammond Army Air Field, and the state school for spastics acquired 48 acres and 40 buildings once part of the Alexandria Army Air Field.

When the senate approved a bill this week to give the District of Columbia a measure of home rule, Senator Eastland (D.-Miss.) tried unsuccessfully to make it provide that before any ordinance abolishing segregation could become effective in the district it would have to be approved by a referendum vote.

Eastland, who had the aid of Senator Stennis and other southerners in the debate, argued that his amendment merely left the segregation question up to the people and not politicians to decide.

"It is peculiar indeed," he told the senate, "that the men who advocate the abolition of segregation here, the big politicians, the men in the upper income-tax brackets, believe in and practice segregation themselves."

Eastland said he was amazed at the number of high government officials "who give statements to the press that they desire to see segregation abolished and insist that we must adopt a progressive course, whose own children nevertheless, beyond the reach of racial mixture, are placed in private schools where it is known the color line will be maintained, even though there should be a mixture in the schools of Washington."

Stennis, urging adoption of the eastland amendment, told the senate that "if we proceed under a system which fails to provide for a vote of the people on such a far-reaching and serious change, we shall be headed for most serious trouble in the district, a trouble which will perhaps spread to other areas and prejudice the minds of many calm, thinking people against the rights of the colored race to a fair share in the educational opportunities in the times."

Senators Long and Ellender, Democrat, Louisiana, voted for the Eastland amendment which failed 27 to 49.

The civil functions appropriation bill, which carries flood control funds for the lower Mississippi river and its tributaries, still is tied up in a house-senate conference committee with no indication when an agreement will be reached.

This committee is attempting to reconcile various differences between the house and senate versions of the bill.

Louisiana and Mississippi are interested principally in the lower Mississippi item. Here the house voted $63,000,000 for the work while the senate allowed $73,000,000.

Since the budget recommended only $70,000,000, the senate group likely will have difficulty convincing the house conferees that the entire $73,000,000 should stay in the bill.

The Louisiana and Mississippi delegations would like to keep the full amount but undoubtedly would be willing to compromise on $70,000,000.

Louisiana would like that extra $3,000,000 since it would be earmarked for the Atchafalaya flood way. Until this project is completed southern Louisiana lives with the uneasy feeling that a serious flood might change the river's course into the Atchafalaya and inundate a vast area.

BONUS RIVER OF GOLD DRYING UP

Job Of Sending Checks To War Veterans 85 Per Cent Completed

By Edmond LeBreton

BATON ROUGE, La., June 4.—(AP)—A golden river that has been fertilizing Louisiana's economy for three months is beginning to run dry.

The bonus division of the state department of veterans' affairs estimates that its job is 85 per cent done. In about three months after the bonus funds became available it has paid out approximately $46,700,000 to 217,194 Louisiana veterans and dependents of war casualties.

Payments began March 11. At that time, a backlog of approved bonus applications had accumulated and more than $11,000,000 went out at once. Payments have averaged more than $11,000,000 a month since.

It may be coincidence, or the usual seasonal upswing in hiring and sales, but the indices of Louisiana business turned upwards in March, the first month of bonus payments, after slumping since the beginning of the year. Nobody but the 200,000-odd veterans knows definitely how much bonus money was saved, how much spent and how much went to pay off debts, and nobody has polled the veterans on the subject.

Statisticians in various state departments show the usual professional caution in expressing opinions as to whether the business upswing was largely attributable to bonus payments or not. However, one of them pointed out that $11,000,000 a month represents about a 5 1/2 per cent addition to the amount usually estimated to represent the collective buying power of Louisianians.

At any rate, the end of bonus payments is in sight and there will be time to see whether the state's economy reacts again. The flow won't be shut off all at once. The bonus division still has about $13,000,000 to disburse from the $60,000,000 produced by bonus bond sales. Veterans and death beneficiaries have until December 1 to file their claims.

Veterans Affairs Director J. L. Golsan sticks to his prediction that the $60,000,000 will comfortably cover the state's requirements for the $50 to $250 bonuses, $1,000 death benefits provided by the bonus amendment, as well as costs of administration. Some estimates of the number of servicemen from Louisiana indicated that more might be required. In any case, the beer tax is providing much more than enough to service the bonds and some administration spokesmen privately say they see no legal difficulty in the way of using some of this surplus for bonus payments, if this should be necessary.

The bonus division is beginning to taper off its force. In its intensive three months of full activity it has received 241,000 applications. It expects about 8,000 more. Nearly 236,000 applications had been processed by this week, including 5,037 applications for death benefits. The section that handles applications about which there is a question had received 34,163, approved 19,820 and disapproved 2,011, leaving about 19,000 still under study.

The division began accepting death benefit claims several weeks after the bonus application period opened and so far has paid about 600 of these. It expects to find a total of about 2,500 of these claims valid, and since each is for $1,000, a substantial part of the remaining funds will go to pay them.

ALTRUSA WILL MEET IN CANADA

260 World Wide Clubs To Assemble In Biennial Convention

A summer journey to the mountains usually implies leaving problems at home. But Altrusa International, of which the Monroe Altrusa Club is a member group, is taking problems of all community and world sizes and shapes to its biennial convention to be held June 21 to June 26, in the Canadian Rockies, at the Banff Springs Hotel, Banff, Alberta, Canada. To this convention, from 260 Altrusa Clubs throughout the world, will come representatives of some 8,200 women leaders who are doctors, librarians, dietitians, educators, department store heads, bankers, authors, legislators, farmers, poets, manufacturers, corporation heads, artists, to name a few of the countless classifications that make up membership in Altrusa. Representing the Monroe Altrusa Club will be Mrs. Thelma Bond, delegate, Miss Bernice McCoy, alternate; Miss Emma Lee Short and Miss Mary Benoit.

Club action to be discussed at convention will include a campaign to eliminate quackery in vocational counseling, through public enlightenment about quacks, and by the support of qualified counseling services and laws to certificate suitably trained personnel workers. In its program of vocational assistance to youth and adults, Altrusa will: Help to provide work opportunities for the part or fulltime placement of students; help to create work opportunities for the handicapped; conduct career conferences in schools and colleges; encourage women to enter new, less crowded fields of work; promote the exchange between countries of women in similar occupations; join in the fight to eliminate discrimination in employment.

Altrusa will elect international officers for 1949-1951 at the Banff convention. Ruth Kramer, president-elect, will be officially installed as president of Altrusa International at the formal banquet on Saturday evening, June 25. Every two years Altrusa International honors some woman who has distinguished herself in her field. The recipient of the 1949 Altrusa Distinguished Service Award will be announced at the convention, by the chairman of this committee. The 1947 recipient was Mrs. Pearl Wanamaker, then president of the National Education Association. In 1945 the award went to Anne O'Hare McCormick of the New York Times.

Since its last convention, held in June 1947, Altrusa International has added 51 new clubs. Membership is limited to one outstanding representative of a business or a profession. Altrusa will have its own special train, with a vista dome car, that leaves Chicago June 19, to take members to and from convention. Following convention there will be a special tour to Vancouver, Victoria, Seattle, Portland, San Francisco, Los Angeles, Tijuana, Grand Canyon and back to Chicago. A number of Altrusans will also go on a trip to Alaska. A convention program of top speakers is being arranged. Included among them are: Helen Kirkpatrick, foreign correspondent, and a member of the Washington, D. C., Altrusa Club; Dr. Evelyn Koh, charter president of the Seoul, Korea, Altrusa Club, who is doing research work in the U. S., and Eulalia Guzmar chief of archeologists, National Museum of Mexico., Tenth District Altrusa Clubs will be hostesses at the Altrusa convention at Banff.

CORRESPONDENTS PAY HONORS TO WAR DEAD

ST. LAURENT, France, June 4.—(AP)—American correspondents visiting Normandy for the fifth anniversary of D-Day visited the grave today of George (Bebe) Irving, Associated Press photographer killed during the St. Lo breakthrough in 1944.

A group of 40 correspondents gathered at the grave in the U. S. Army Cemetery overlooking Omaha beach for an informal ceremony at which flowers were placed on Irvin's grave.

A spray of carnations was placed by Lee McCardell of the Baltimore Sun who was with Irvin when he was killed. A basket of hydrangias was put beside the white cross by Hal Boyle and Peter J. Carroll of the Associated Press.

Others present included Henry B. Jameson, former Associated Press war correspondent and now editor of the Abeline, Kans. Reflector-Chronicle. Irving's grave was one of the more than 8,000 in the cemetery, which is one of the two permanent cemeteries in Normandy.

Among the graves are those of Brig. Gen. Theodore Roosevelt who died of a heart attack after the D-Day landing, June 6, and Lt. Gen. Lesley McNair who was killed in the same battle in which Irvin lost his life.

ARMY CAMPAIGN TO BE CONTINUED

Building Fund Drive Has Netted $29,000 To Date, Report States

At the conclusion of several report meetings held by the Salvation Army building fund campaign organization, a total of $29,010.49 has been turned in by leaders and workers.

While there will be no additional reports meetings, the campaign is officially continued through the month of June, according to announcement made by the campaign planning committee.

In the approval given by the Twin City Community Chest to the Salvation Army last spring to put on this financial appeal, it was understood that the campaign could run until June 30 and, as stated by F. N. (Stickey) Steele, chairman of the advisory board, "This is a distinct advantage because there are many calls and solicitations yet to be made by workers who were assigned prospects on which no reports have been made. It is obvious from the record that the potential is yet tremendous and that the total should reach, conservatively, $75,000 by he time all subscriptions are in. Many of the Twin Cities most generous citizens and concerns have not yet been contacted for subscriptions."

Campaign headquarters on the mezzanine floor of the Virginia Hotel will continue in operation with a full time secretary during the entire month of June. Campaign leaders and workers are requested to bring all reports to headquarters and it is suggested that citizens and concerns who have not yet subscribed may send or deliver their contributions to headquarters. In this way, all citizens, concerns and organizations still have an opportunity to contribute toward the building fund in event the worker has been unable to solicit them for subscriptions. According to information at headquarters, many industrial and business concerns and organizations to whom appeals have been made are expected to act upon this appeal at executive meetings to be held during the month of June or soon thereafter.

The planning committee in answer to inquiries said Saturday that in event the total raised in the campaign is less than the original goal set, the plan is to erect a small building so that the Salvation Army will have a home and headquarters at least in which to carry on its program of relief and youth activities in the most efficient and satisfactory manner possible. The more money raised, the bigger building can be put up, said this committee.

Beta Sigma Phi sorority had a successful benefit recently in which they received better than $700 from sale of tickets. The executive committee of this group of some of the Twin Cities young business women met at headquarters following the benefit and paid $400 on their original $1,500 subscription. This committee is composed of Mary Damron, president; Joyce Duchesne, vice - president; Louise Johnson, treasurer; Ezell Gentry, recording secretary and Nan Evans, corresponding secretary. It is the plan of this committee to organize another chapter of Beta Sigma Phi and according to plans, the new chapter will assist Beta Sigma Phi in raising funds with which to pay their subscription in full.

ROONEY WILL NOT HAVE HONEYMOON

NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Calif., June 4.—(AP)—Because he is scheduled to start a picture next week, pint-sized Mickey Rooney and his third wife will have no honeymoon.

But it doesn't seem to make much difference to the newlyweds, who today are comfortably settled in Rooney's newly purchased one bedroom home.

The wedding, a sort of impromptu affair which ran into last-minute complications, went off in unpretentious fashion yesterday at Christ Memorial Unity Church here.

The third Mrs. Rooney, the former Martha Vickers, wore spike heels which made her three inches taller than her husband. And she was 25 minutes late for the ceremony.

Rooney, who gave his age as 28, said he didn't know until yesterday morning where the proceedings were to take place.

The couple appeared at the Glendale marriage license bureau at 12:05 p.m. and were told they would have to wait until the end of the attendant's lunch hour at 1 p.m. Then the actress had trouble proving she was of age. She is 24.

Rooney's first marital venture involved Actress Ava Gardner. Shortly before yesterday's wedding, a final divorce decree from wife No. 2, beauteous Betty Jane Rase, was entered in court records. Wife No. 3 recently shed Movie Agent A. C. Lyles.

The couple exchanged plain gold bands bearing the inscription "Today, Tomorrow and Always I Love You—M. R. to M. R." Quipped Rooney after the ceremony:

"If this one doesn't work, there must be something wrong with me."

At the conclusion of several report meetings held by the Salvation Army building fund campaign organization, a total of $29,010.49 has been turned in by leaders and workers.

While there will be no additional reports meetings, the campaign is officially continued through the month of June, according to announcement made by the campaign planning committee.

In the approval given by the Twin City Community Chest to the Salvation Army last spring to put on this financial appeal, it was understood that the campaign could run until June 30 and, as stated by F. N. (Stickey) Steele, chairman of the advisory board, "This is a distinct advantage because there are many calls and solicitations yet to be made by workers who were assigned prospects on which no reports have been made. It is obvious from the record that the potential is yet tremendous and that the total should reach, conservatively, $75,000 by he time all subscriptions are in. Many of the Twin Cities most generous citizens and concerns have not yet been contacted for subscriptions."

Campaign headquarters on the mezzanine floor of the Virginia Hotel will continue in operation with a full time secretary during the entire month of June. Campaign leaders and workers are requested to bring all reports to headquarters and it is suggested that citizens and concerns who have not yet subscribed may send or deliver their contributions to headquarters. In this way, all citizens, concerns and organizations still have an opportunity to contribute toward the building fund in event the worker has been unable to solicit them for subscriptions. According to information at headquarters, many industrial and business concerns and organizations to whom appeals have been made are expected to act upon this appeal at executive meetings to be held during the month of June or soon thereafter.

The planning committee in answer to inquiries said Saturday that in event the total raised in the campaign is less than the original goal set, the plan is to erect a small building, so that the Salvation Army will have a home and headquarters at least in which to carry on its program of relief and youth activities in the most efficient and satisfactory manner possible. The more money raised, the bigger building can be put up, said this committee.

Beta Sigma Phi sorority had a successful benefit recently in which they received better than $700 from sale of tickets. The executive committee of this group of some of the Twin Cities young business women met at headquarters following the benefit and paid $400 on their original $1,500 subscription. This committee is composed of Mary Damron, president; Joyce Duchesne, vice - president; Louise Johnson, treasurer; Ezell Gentry, recording secretary and Nan Evans, corresponding secretary. It is the plan of this committee to organize another chapter of Beta Sigma Phi and according to plans, the new chapter will assist Beta Sigma Phi in raising funds with which to pay their subscription in full.

ROONEY WILL NOT HAVE HONEYMOON

NORTH HOLLYWOOD, Calif., June 4.—(AP)—Because he is scheduled to start a picture next week, pint-sized Mickey Rooney and his third wife will have no honeymoon.

But it doesn't seem to make much difference to the newlyweds, who today are comfortably settled in Rooney's newly purchased one bedroom home.

The wedding, a sort of impromptu affair which ran into last-minute complications, went off in unpretentious fashion yesterday at Christ Memorial Unity Church here.

The third Mrs. Rooney, the former Martha Vickers, wore spike heels which made her three inches taller than her husband. And she was 25 minutes late for the ceremony.

Rooney, who gave his age as 28, said he didn't know until yesterday morning where the proceedings were to take place.

The couple appeared at the Glendale marriage license bureau at 12:05 p.m. and were told they would have to wait until the end of the attendant's lunch hour at 1 p.m. Then the actress had trouble proving she was of age. She is 24.

Rooney's first marital venture involved Actress Ava Gardner. Shortly before yesterday's wedding, a final divorce decree from wife No. 2, beauteous Betty Jane Rase, was entered in court records. Wife No. 3 recently shed Movie Agent A. C. Lyles.

The couple exchanged plain gold bands bearing the inscription "Today, Tomorrow and Always I Love You—M. R. to M. R." Quipped Rooney after the ceremony:

"If this one doesn't work, there must be something wrong with me."

Insurance For The Future

Monroe property owners are to be congratulated for their foresight in overwhelmingly approving the $7,000,000 utilities bond issue last Tuesday. It was indeed a victory for the people—and not only for those who own taxable property here or for any one political group.

The World is glad to have had a part in bringing the various issues involved before the public through the columns of this newspaper. We thought, just as did 10 out of every 11 voters, that Monroe faced a crisis which could be successfully combatted only through voting the money with which to expand and improve our water and light plants. As we stated editorially, there was no questioning the fact that our utilities must be expanded to care for the present population of the city, let alone its future growth, and that we'd have to do the improving ourselves or turn the plants over to someone who could do the job. The voters "seconded the motion" by a 10-to-1 majority. They demonstrated that, first, they were solidly behind a sane, logical program for the advancement of the community and, second, that they have no idea of giving up the utilities which have been financing the city for these many years.

There was some resentment over the fact that only property owners were permitted to vote. The election, as we pointed out, was called under Act 218 of the state of Louisiana which governs such voting, and the city council had no alternative in the matter. That act was passed by the state legislature for two basic reasons: If an addition tax were involved (which wasn't the case in this election), the property owners would have to pay that tax; second, the property owners, those who pay taxes, are the owners of the utilities and they and they alone are authorized to pledge revenues from the two plants for retirement of the bonds to be voted.

Expansion of our utilities will mean much to all of us. As soon as the improvement program is in full swing, all residents of the city will be assured of adequate power for air conditioning systems, attic fans and other electrically-operated accessories which are a necessity. Our water facilities will be stepped up to where the supply will exceed the demand. where the pressure will be normal instead of providing the mere trickle which has been the rule rather than the exception in some parts of the city, and where there'll be no doubt of plenty of pressure for fire department equipment. And we'll have enough power and water supply to intelligently seek industries for Monroe which require large amounts of such power—something we dared not do in the past because we didn't have any additional power to offer.

The progressiveness of our people has been demonstrated in no uncertain terms by the magnificent majority given the bond issue, and it is one more step in the ladder of advancement which will assure the future growth of the community.

Our Methodist Ministers Return

Methodists throughout the Twin Cities yesterday read with pleasure the announcement that their ministers who have been so faithfully serving them for the past few years will return to their pastorates here. All were returned by the Louisiana Methodist General Conference at the closing meeting of the state group at Shreveport Friday.

These men have made an outstanding contribution to the moral and civic advancement of the Twin Cities. Ministers, for instance, like Rev. A. M. Serex, who is pastor of the First Church of Monroe, the oldest and largest in the city, are distinct assets to our community. All have had an equal part in spiritual guidance of their congregations, and their influence has spread much farther than the confines of their own churches.

It is generally agreed that the conference rendered an inestimable service to the entire community when it decided to return our Methodist ministers to their chosen fields, and we commend this choice most heartily.

Agreement All But Hopeless

Barring the unforeseen, an agreement at Paris between Russia and the West on German unity and peace terms is apparently impossible.

Russia has rejected the western powers' plan for a Germany united under the Bonn constitution adopted by the western zones of the country.

France, Britain and the United States have turned down the Soviet Union's proposal for an all-German state council to handle economic and "government" matters subject to veto by a revived four-power control agency. One nation could dictate a veto.

There is no surprise in these developments In her self-imposed isolation, Russia sometimes misjudges the likely western response to her moves. But she must have had no illusion that the West would accept German unity of the sort she might propose. The plan she actually offered at Paris was not even taken seriously as a program for unity.

By the same token, the western nations must have had no genuine hope that Russia would accept the Bonn constitution as a basis for cementing all Germany. It would mean un-Russian freedoms in the eastern zone, plus a merciless spotlight on Soviet activities there.

If these things are so, why did Russia seek the Paris conference?

Western spokesmen believe the continuing sessions will show her true goals to be much more limited than the basic German issues. They think she wants better East-West economic arrangements in Germany. The Soviet zone suffered badly from the western counter-blockade; it needs western trade.

Other relatively minor gains may come out of the conference. And Russia is of course not blind to its value as a propaganda springboard.

We have learned from the discussions thus far that the lifting of the Berlin blockade marked no drastic shift in Russia's policy or attitude toward the West. Foreign Minister Vishinsky may smile and clown, but his words are no more conciliatory than were Molotov's at London 18 months ago.

To reach an accord among nations, as among individuals, you must first have a will to agree on the part of all. There is no sign whatsoever that Russia desires agreement on fundamentals in Germany.

Even if she did, there could be little confidence of major progress under present circumstances. For this is a clash between two systems of thought—communistic and democratic. The two seem as repellent to each other as oil and water.

Life With Father

The U. S. Children's Bureau is out with new advice to expectant fathers. Its program sounds downright militant.

Gone are the days when a father could discharge his responsibilities just by looking properly worried as he paced the hospital floor at the baby's birth.

The bureau wants the would-be dad to go to class to learn how to make a dependable tri-corner and handle baby powder deftly. It wants him to busy himself putting together play pens and the like. It suggests he pitch in and help with the housework in the trying days. And it thinks he should provide Mother with a mental uplift.

Much more advice like this and father will need a play pen for his own use.

DOWN SOUTH

THE RIGHT OF OWNERSHIP

It is an historic fact that the human race made its first step out of a tribal society when the individual was granted the right to possess things and call them his own. Progress may be based on a number of factors, but none of them is stronger than the right to own property. Without this right, recognized and guaranteed by government, incentive is dead, and the individual in society is either entirely subjugated or society itself reverts to the law of the jungle.

The amazing and tragic thing that is happening in the world right now in many places is that this right of the individual to the ownership of property is being violated by the government itself. Property can be taken from a man in other ways than by a thief in the night or by hold-up in the day. Property can just as effectively be taken by taxation by the government—and whether the purposes for which it is taken are good or bad, the one thing we must remember is that the taking of it kills incentive and stops progress.

The Socialist government of Great Britain embarked upon a program of redistribution of wealth when it came into power in 1945. Such a program is a deliberate violation of the right to the ownership of property. They have already reached the limit of the amount they can obtain by taxation from this source, and yet the people as a whole are no better off than when the program was started. In addition to that, this policy has penalized superior ability and leadership and it has condemned the whole national to a life of mediocrity.

We must be careful else we be deluded into a similar program here in our own nation. One of the comments often heard these days is that the distinguishing characteristic of the social progress we have learned to place human rights above poperty rights. That may sound good on the face of it, but it is vital that we not be deceived into believing there is a difference between property rights and human rights. Property right is one of the most important of human rights, and any philosophy to the contrary stems directly from the ideology of the Communists. The Communists know that the existing order, which it is their purpose to overthrow throughout the world, is based on the sanctity of ownership of property, and they know that if they can overthrow this order and violate this sanctity they will be well on the way to accomplishing their aims.

Such a philosophy also confuses many otherwise well-intentioned persons. It has a humanitarian flavor that deceives them when they do not stop to analyze it. However, such persons would do well to listen to one of our greatest humanitarians, Abraham Lincoln, on this point, when he said:

". . . Property is the fruit of labor; property is desirable; it is a positive good in the world. That some should be rich shows that others may become rich, and hence is just encouragement to industry tnd enterprise. Let not him who is houseless pull down the house of another, but let him work diligently and build one for himself, thus by example assuming that his own shall be safe from violence when built."

The attempt to overthrow and violate the right to the ownership of property, the observance of which is the basis of all sound and decent society, is nothing new in the life of the world—it is simply presented in new form. When we consider those who attempt it, therefore, we may well say of them, as did Daniel Webster when he stood up in the senate of the United States 111 years ago:

"Sir, what can such men want? What do they mean? They can want nothing, sir, but to enjoy the fruits of other men's labor. They can mean nothing but disturbance and disorder. the diffusion of corrupt principles and the destruction of the moral sentiments and moral habits of society."

OUR CHILDREN

AN IDEAL PATTERN

Boys and girls are inclined to settle on some personality that is before the public as a pattern for them to imitate. The girls select a woman and the boys a man. They try to be like them in every way; walk, talk, dress and look like them. This is one of the important phases of a child's growth and it should be watched and tended with intelligent care.

When a girl begins trying out a new hairdo in imitation of an artist of the stage or screen, don't laugh. It is a serious business with the girl. Study the artist's career a little to discover whether or no it is the sort that will have a good influence on the girl and if it is, encourage her. If it is not, begin with the wisdom of the serpent to wean her toward a better one.

Do the same with the boy. Help him to find the hero he will want to imitate. Talk about good men, pointing out their fine qualities and their great service to the world, and accent the admiration they won. Have good books handy and talk about them.

Fathers have a chance here. Their sons look up to them and follow their patterns in every way. What father likes they will like, so if father will cheer for fine men, praise their work, speak highly of their characters, the boys will be likely to follow their lead.

Dramatic personalities catch the interest of the boys and girls first. They are far more interested in a soldier at war, a cowboy on the range, a detective on the trail of a villain than they are in the work of a clergyman, a scientist, a statesman, a selfless physician, but father can make the stories of these useful, heroic men and women as dramatic as any other and so lead the boys and girls to look for the higher values in human beings.

Praise good men and women. But where the children are concerned, accent the dramatics of their lives first and foremost. Goodness must be made as interesting as badness. Goodness is normal to humanity, so it is likely to be considered commonplace. Make it dramatic. Susan B. Anthony struggling to give women a decent place in life, Mary Lyon fighting valiantly to get the funds to build a college for women when no such thing was to be thought of, Nurse Cavell dying for her countrymen's cause—history is full of such stories.

Nathan Hale, Lincoln, Theodore Roosevelt, Rickenbacher, the men afloat on the raft for days and holding fast to their faith in rescue, the story of Walter Reid—we are rich in such men—are dramatic and inspiring. Praise good men and women that their lives may become patterns for children in search of ideals.

Children may learn unpleasant words and names in literature not suited to them. Dr. Patri recommends good books in a special leaflet, P-8, giving a list of more than 50 books. REPLY TO ROGERS
Ward 7,
June 4, 1949.

To The Editor:

We resent the statement made by A. A. Rogers accusing W. O. Roberts of circulating petitions seeking a recall election against C. C. Fuller.

On March 23, C. G. Wall, Jr., requested Fuller to ask Mr. Roberts to come to his office to try to settle a disturbance caused by three or four families connected with the school. Mr. Roberts, accompanied by 11 patrons of the school, went to see Mr. Wall, and in this meeting Mr. Wall made several erroneous changes against the principal of the Okaloosa School.

Wall informed Roberts and the patrons to go home and forget the whole affair, and if there was any trouble at Okaloosa, the school would be closed. Whereupon the patrons went home and held a citizens' meeting. It was then decided to seek a recall election against Fuller. Fuller, in their opinion, had fully demonstrated that he did not believe in a democratic rule. The citizens of Ward 7 were truthfully informed why a recall election was instigated.

We wanted to call a patrons' meeting at the school with Fuller presiding, but he flatly refused. He went so far as to go to our police juror, Mr. Roberts, asking him to use his influence to stop the meeting. Then is when Mr. Roberts made his statement that he believed in the majority ruling. Mr. Manning, Ouachita parish superintendent, had the affairs of the children settled, but then Fuller and Wall came out to the Okaloosa School and there was a disturbance with the principal of the school on the grounds.

The affair has hurt the community, churches and other community organizations. The leading citizens of Ward 7 are ashamed of the uproar and feel that Fuller could have prevented the whole affair had he left off his personal prejudices toward certain personnel of the school.

If Fuller is recalled it won't mean that our school board member will not work for the interests of the schools of the west side and the entire parish. We believe that West Monroe needs a high school, and that there are enough students to justify retaining and improving our high school at Okaloosa.

Rogers has made the statement publicly that he can purchase votes, but he can't buy all the votes. We are a self sustaining citizens committee, self supporting and under no obligations to any political faction.

BIBLE THOUGHTS

For now we live, if ye stand fast in the Lord.—I thessalonians 3:8.

No grace is more necessary to the Christian worker than fidelity; the humble grace that marches on in sunshine and storm, when no banners are waving, and there is no music to cheer the weary feet.—S. J. Nicholls.

William E. Gilroy, D. D.

Sunday School Lesson

The cup, that in Gethsemane Jesus prayed so earnestly might pass, did not pass. We know how He drank it, and drank it to the very lees of sacrifice and suffering. It is the mystery of God and the universe that the life-giving powers, alike of nature and of grace, are intimately bound up with suffering and death.

Jesus emphasized this very strongly in His conversation with "certain Greeks," recorded in John 12:23-25. "Except a grain of wheat fall into the ground and die," He said, "it abideth alone; but if it die it beareth much fruit." And He proceeded to apply this to human life, with undoubtedly prophetic reference to Himself: "He that loveth his life loseth it."

In Gethsemane it was the humanity of Jesus, struggling in the last dark hour against all that He had set forth to saddened disciples in preceding days, recorded in the conversations and discourses of the chapters in John's Gospel. Was this not, also, an expression of His humanity, sharing with us an experience that is common, and never so much emphasized as in recent years when so many reluctant, peaceable young men, hating war, have nevertheless had to make the supreme sacrifice?

It is one thing to recognize a general law of sacrifice, but how different when we are faced with a real, insistent danger, or demand for sacrifice ourselves? Then comes a real testing. Many find the faith and power to face it; others fail.

Out of Gethsemane the Master came with the serenity of a profound faith in the destiny that the Father had for Him, and with a quiet, sublime courage, that could endure alike the buffetings of His aggressors, the taunts of the cowardly, and the cynical contempt of the worldly-minded Pilate. It was the proud, self-confident Roman who cringed in that interview before the uncrowned King, who was yet to wear the crown of thorns.

Were trial and death ever so dominated by a courage and composure, born of inward peace, and a consciousness of spiritual presence and power? How often has that peace of God that made the Master strong upheld His followers in persecution and peril!

From Gethsemane to Calvary! We must go with Jesus all the way, if we would get the inspiration of that divine tragedy and its fulfillment of blessing for mankind. Here, again, we may speak of "mankind," but, as we may have to face danger and sacrifice not in general but in a very real and personal way, so the message of that divine tragedy comes to each of us personally, pointing the way to triumph and glory. It is the way of prayer, in discovering and obeying the will of God, and in finding the strength that God supplies.

Billy Rose:

PITCHING HORSESHOES

First chance I get, I intend to high-tail it over to Fifth avenue and buy my wife a wrist watch with a lot of those little red stones.

What's that you say? Didn't I ever buy Eleanor a time-piece in the ten years we've been together? Sure, I did, and a mighty trim little ticker it was, too, but she lost it while we were in Jerusalem last March and—but if you don't mind. I'd like to give it to you jewel by jewel and tick by tick . . .

In the Holy City, as soon as I learned that the Mark Ethridge who headed up the peace conciliation commission was the same Ethridge who publishes the Louisville Courier-Journal, I gave the gentleman a ring and wangled an invitation for us to lunch with him at the King David Hotel where he was stopping.

Well, what happened at the luncheon was what always happens when two visiting firemen from the same hook-and-ladder company meet up far from home and, the next thing Eleanor and I knew, our bags were being moved into the King David and we were discussing dinner plans.

Along about 9 that evening, we found ourselves in front of a platter of pot roast in the squat, low-ceilinged dining room of the Eden where a couple of hundred Israeli soldiers and their girls were dancing to the music of a fiddle, a squeeze-box and a beat-up piano. And from the kidding and happy hollering that was going on, it wasn't hard to tell which side had won the war.

During dinner, Ted Lurie, editor of the Palestine Post, joined our party and introduced us to several of the soldiers whose battlefield high-jinks had already become part of the new nation's legendry, and I was especially taken with a 27-year-old colonel named "Motka" Maclef who, fighting what he called a "stop-watch war," had captured all of Galilee in 70 hours. Eleanor's favorite, however, was a tough-looking sergeant in his sixties, white of beard and hair who, according to Lurie, refused to be mustered out because he thought he ought to stick around "just in case."

Around midnight, a lad who looked like Danny Kaye got up and began to sing an Israeli army song—the one about nighttime on the Negev—and, as the whole room joined in, even those of us who had not personal interest in the land they were singing about felt the excitement oozing into our eyes and ears and bubbling around in our blood. And it was one for the book to see Ethridge, a Kentucky gent from way back, beating time on the table with his fist and exclaiming, "Boy, isn't this something!"

As the song ended, a soldier and his girl got up and went into the Hora—an ancient folk dance that looks like a cross between a hillbilly hoe-down and a conga. A circle formed itself around the prancing twosome, then a circle around the circle, and soon everyone was beating it out and chanting as they stomp-stepped in time with the music. And, for the next 40 minutes, 400 people, arms and emotions locked, let off enough steam to power the 20th Century all the way to Chicago.

Did I say 400 people? Make that 399 for, in a corner of the room, the white-haired sergeant stood watching the frolic and wishing, I suppose, he were as young as he felt and had a girl to shake an ankle with. And then, Eleanor, seeing the old boy standing there alone, suddenly ducked out from behind the table and, before you could say, "Ben Gurion," had kicked off her shoes, locked arms with the pugnacious patriarch and was dancing plumb square in the middle of the circle. And there, for the rest of the dance, she jumped, whirled and yippeed while the Hora-happy crowd, made even happier by the sight of the pug-nosed kid from Brooklyn, kept beating it out and whooping it up around her.

It was past 2 when Ted Lurie drove us back to the King David and, when we got upstairs, Eleanor discovered that her wrist watch was missing. We searched our room, phoned the Eden and even called Lurie and asked him to check the upholstery of his car. But neither hide nor hairspring of the watch could be found and so, the next morning before leaving Jerusalem, I went to a police station and reported the loss to the 18-year-old kid with a sten gun who was playing desk sergeant . . .

A couple of weeks later in Rome, Eleanor dropped anchor in front of a jweler's window. "Darling," she said, "didn't you once write a column about how it's later than people think and that they ought to be enjoying themselves?"

"About six months back," I said cautiously. "It's an old Chinese proverb."

"Well," said my missus, "wouldn't it be a lot easier for a girl to know how late it was if she had a watch?"

"It would," I said, "but that proverb doesn't go for little girls who go around losing valuable time-pieces . . . ."

The day we got back to New York, I filled out a slip reporting the loss to the insurance company but, when I asked Eleanor to sign it, she said, "I wouldn't try to collect if I were you. Strictly speaking, I didn't lose the watch."

"What happened to it then?" I asked.

"Well," said Eleanor, "do you remember that night in Jerusalem when I was dancing the Hora with these soldiers? In the middle of the dance, I felt the clasp on my watch come loose, but I did nothing about it. I suppose I could have yelled for them to stop, but those kids were having a wonderful time and I just didn't have the heart to break it up."

"And so you let them stomp on it with their boots?" I said.

"I guess so," said Eleanor, and there was more so-what than so-sorry in her voice . . . .

Well, I'm sure you all agree that my wife ought to be taught a lesson she won't forget in a hurry and, unless someone comes up with a better idea, I figure the most fitting punishment is for me to buy one of those watches with a lot of little red stones and slap her right across the wrist with it.

Clayton Finds Private Business Dull; Probe Worries Officials

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(NEA)—Former Undersecretary of State Will Clayton is back in Washington, wondering about taking another government job. Clayton had to retire from government service because the strain on him was too great. He was advised to take it easier. He went back to his old Anderson-Clayton office in Texas, but found that in his absence the company had learned to run without him. He had nothing to do. Finding private business too dull, he came back to where all the excitement is.

VA Is Worried

Veteran's Administration officials are worried lest congressmen confuse vet hospital canteens with army post exchange stores, currently under investigation on Capitol Hill. V. A. officials point out that their canteens are operated strictly for the benefit of their hospital patients. Visitors may buy cigarettes for their own convenience, but that's about the limit. V. A. canteens won't take special orders, even for veterans. That's one of the worst abuses of Army PX stores and it leads to most criticism from private merchants. Patrons of the service canteens can order expensive items like air conditioning units, and get them at considerable discount, even though they are not carried as regular PX stock.

Internal Combustion

American Farm Bureau Federation has an inside political fight on its hands. Allan B. Kline, Iowa Republican farmer and banker, was elected A. F. B. F. president in the expectation that Northern Republicans would be in control in Washington for the next few years. Return of the Truman administration and a Democratic congress has resulted in a movement to have a Southern Democrat head up the farm bureau again. Big and blustery Ed O'Neal, now retired to his cotton plantation, was president of the farm bureau all through the Roosevelt administration. Kline got pretty rough treatment recently from the house agriculture committee, after his testimony against the Brannan farm plan. That's another issue on which officers and small farmer members of the farm bureau are split.

May Try Brannan Plan

Secretary of Agriculture Charles F. Brannan's farm plan may not be as dead as generally believed. House agriculture committee is considering a bill to try out the Brannan plan next year on four perishables—eggs, milk, pork and potatoes. This would be an extension of the department of agriculture's original proposal to try out the Brannan plan on pork. Including potatoes would definitely put the department of agriculture on the spot, as keeping up potato price levels is already the most costly support operation in the present government program.

"On Reliable Authority"

"Democratic Digest" now quotes Earl Bunting of National Association of Manufacturers as an authority on the effectiveness of some new deal legislation. A 1947 speech of Bunting's predicting that there would be no serious depression, has been dug up by the Democrats to prove their point. It quotes the N. A. M. executive as having approved such things as securities and exchange commission, Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, social security and the economic stabilization program in general. Here are sample quotes: "Stocks are not rocketing past the moon as they did in 1929. . . . Our banks are as liquid today as they were frozen in 1929. . . . We have $7,000,000,000 in unemployment funds to cushion against and halt any plunge like 1929. . . . We are armed with better weapons which were not available in 1929."

Still No Trouble

Big question insiders were asking when strong man Louis Johnson became secretary of defense was whether he could muzzle Air Secretary W. Stuart Symington. Under Forrestal, Symington took the case for his glamorous air force direct to congress, the press and the public. So far, there has been no indication that Symington would go over Johnson's head to get what he wants, and the two are on good terms.

No Joking Matter

Citizens committee for reorganization of the government plans an all-out campaign to educate the man in the street on the importance of this subject. A recent poll showed that only a small percentage of the people had ever heard of ex-President Hoover's commission on reorganization, or knew what it had recommended to save the government several billions of dollars a year. To get the idea across, citizens' committee is even considering trying to plant gags about it with radio comedians and in the comic strips.

Sales Campaign

Democratic party's mid-western conference at Des Moines, June 12-14, will be principally an effort to sell the Brannan farm program to political leaders. Democratic national committee headquarters in Washington is preparing a special booklet to help explain and sell the idea. Conference is so political that Secretary Grannan says he's going to pay his own way to Des Moines. Even if congress does not act on the plan this year, it therefore seems destined to become a political issue in 1950 campaign.

Initiative Needed

Businessmen who complain about lack of investment capital have been given an eye-opener by Scott Paper Co., of Camden, N. J. This company has just registered with S. E. C. a $2,000,000 preferred stock issue bearing only 3.4 per cent interest—almost a record low. The moral is that there are plenty of savings and there is plenty of risk capital available if business and investment houses would get busy and start selling, instead of waiting for customers to come to them.

RECEIVES CUT ON LEG

Ann Del Rio, 810 Walnut street, suffered a minor cut on her leg caused by broken glass early last night. Miss Del Rio was removed to the St. Francis Sanitarium in a Mulhearn ambulance, but was able to return to her home after receiving medical attention.

Insurance For The Future

Monroe property owners are to be congratulated for their foresight in overwhelmingly approving the $7,000,000 utilities bond issue last Tuesday. It was indeed a victory for the people—and not only for those who own taxable property here or for any one political group.

The World is glad to have had a part in bringing the various issues involved before the public through the columns of this newspaper. We thought, just as did 10 out of every 11 voters, that Monroe faced a crisis which could be successfully combatted only through voting the money with which to expand and improve our water and light plants. As we stated editorially, there was no questioning the fact that our utilities must be expanded to care for the present population of the city, let alone its future growth, and that we'd have to do the improving ourselves or turn the plants over to someone who could do the job. The voters "seconded the motion" by a 10-to-1 majority. They demonstrated that, first, they were solidly behind a sane, logical program for the advancement of the community and, second, that they have no idea of giving up the utilities which have been financing the city for these many years.

There was some resentment over the fact that only property owners were permitted to vote. The election, as we pointed out, was called under Act 218 of the state of Louisiana which governs such voting, and the city council had no alternative in the matter. That act was passed by the state legislature for two basic reasons: If an addition tax were involved (which wasn't the case in this election), the property owners would have to pay that tax; second, the property owners, those who pay taxes, are the owners of the utilities and they and they alone are authorized to pledge revenues from the two plants for retirement of the bonds to be voted.

Expansion of our utilities will mean much to all of us. As soon as the improvement program is in full swing, all residents of the city will be assured of adequate power for air conditioning systems, attic fans and other electrically-operated accessories which are a necessity. Our water facilities will be stepped up to where the supply will exceed the demand, where the pressure will be normal instead of providing the mere trickle which has been the rule rather than the exception in some parts of the city, and where there'll be no doubt of plenty of pressure for fire department equipment. And we'll have enough power and water supply to intelligently seek industries for Monroe which require large amounts of such power—something we dared not do in the past because we didn't have any additional power to offer.

The progressiveness of our people has been demonstrated in no uncertain terms by the magnificent majority given the bond issue, and it is one more step in the ladder of advancement which will assure the future growth of the community.

Our Methodist Ministers Return

Methodists throughout the Twin Cities yesterday read with pleasure the announcement that their ministers who have been so faithfully serving them for the past few years will return to their pastorates here. All were returned by the Louisiana Methodist General Conference at the closing meeting of the state group at Shreveport Friday.

These men have made an outstanding contribution to the moral and civic advancement of the Twin Cities. Ministers, for instance, like Rev. A. M. Serex, who is pastor of the First Church of Monroe, the oldest and largest in the city, are distinct assets to our community. All have had an equal part in spiritual guidance of their congregations, and their influence has spread much farther than the confines of their own churches.

It is generally agreed that the conference rendered an inestimable service to the entire community when it decided to return our Methodist ministers to their chosen fields, and we commend this choice most heartily.

Agreement All But Hopeless

Barring the unforeseen, an agreement at Paris between Russia and the West on German unity and peace terms is apparently impossible.

Russia has rejected the western powers' plan for a Germany united under the Bonn constitution adopted by the western zones of the country.

France, Britain and the United States have turned down the Soviet Union's proposal for an all-German state council to handle economic and "government" matters subject to veto by a revived four-power control agency. One nation could dictate a veto.

There is no surprise in these developments. In her self-imposed isolation, Russia sometimes misjudges the likely western response to her moves. But she must have had no illusion that the West would accept German unity of the sort she might propose. The plan she actually offered at Paris was not even taken seriously as a program for unity.

By the same token, the western nations must have had no genuine hope that Russia would accept the Bonn constitution as a basis for cementing all Germany. It would mean un-Russian freedoms in the eastern zone, plus a merciless spotlight on Soviet activities there.

If these things are so, why did Russia seek the Paris conference?

Western spokesmen believe the continuing sessions will show her true goals to be much more limited than the basic German issues. They think she wants better East-West economic arrangements in Germany. The Soviet zone suffered badly from the western counter-blockade; it needs western trade.

Other relatively minor gains may come out of the conference. And Russia is of course not blind to its value as a propaganda springboard.

We have learned from the discussions thus far that the lifting of the Berlin blockade marked no drastic shift in Russia's policy or attitude toward the West. Foreign Minister Vishinsky may smile and clown, but his words are no more conciliatory than were Molotov's at London 18 months ago.

To reach an accord among nations, as among individuals, you must first have a will to agree on the part of all. There is no sign whatsoever that Russia desires agreement on fundamentals in Germany.

Even if she did, there could be little confidence of major progress under present circumstances. For this is a clash between two systems of thought—communistic and democratic. The two seem as repellent to each other as oil and water.

Life With Father

The U. S. Children's Bureau is out with new advice to expectant fathers. Its program sounds downright militant.

Gone are the days when a father could discharge his responsibilities just by looking properly worried as he paced the hospital floor at the baby's birth.

The bureau wants the would-be dad to go to class to learn how to make a dependable tri-corner and handle baby powder deftly. It wants him to busy himself putting together play pens and the like. It suggests he pitch in and help with the housework in the trying days. And it thinks he should provide Mother with a mental uplift.

Much more advice like this and father will need a play pen for his own use.

THE RIGHT OF OWNERSHIP

It is an historic fact that the human race made its first step out of a tribal society when the individual was granted the right to possess things and call them his own. Progress may be based on a number of factors, but none of them is stronger than the right to own property. Without this right, recognized and guaranteed by government, incentive is dead, and the individual in society is either entirely subjugated or society itself reverts to the law of the jungle.

The amazing and tragic thing that is happening in the world right now in many places is that this right of the individual to the ownership of property is being violated by the government itself. Property can be taken from a man in other ways than by a thief in the night or by hold-up in the day. Property can just as effectively be taken by taxation by the government—and whether the purposes for which it is taken are good or bad, the one thing we must remember is that the taking of it kills incentive and stops progress.

The Socialist government of Great Britain embarked upon a program of redistribution of wealth when it came into power in 1945. Such a program is a deliberate violation of the right to the ownership of property. They have already reached the limit of the amount they can obtain by taxation from this source, and yet the people as a whole are no better off than when the program was started. In addition to that, this policy has penalized superior ability and leadership and it has condemned the whole national to a life of mediocrity.

We must be careful else we be deluded into a similar program here in our own nation. One of the comments often heard these days is that the distinguishing characteristic of the social progress we have learned to place human rights above poperty rights. That may sound good on the face of it, but it is vital that we not be deceived into believing there is a difference between property rights and human rights. Property right is one of the most important of human rights, and any philosophy to the contrary stems directly from the ideology of the Communists. The Communists know that the existing order, which it is their purpose to overthrow throughout the world, is based on the sanctity of ownership of property, and they know that if they can overthrow this order and violate this sanctity they will be well on the way to accomplishing their aims.

Such a philosophy also confuses many otherwise well-intentioned persons. It has a humanitarian flavor that deceives them when they do not stop to analyze it. However, such persons would do well to listen to one of our greatest humanitarians, Abraham Lincoln, on this point, when he said:

". . . Property is the fruit of labor; property is desirable; it is a positive good in the world. That some should be rich shows that others may become rich, and hence is just encouragement to industry tnd enterprise. Let not him who is houseless pull down the house of another, but let him work diligently and build one for himself, thus by example assuming that his own shall be safe from violence when built."

The attempt to overthrow and violate the right to the ownership of property, the observance of which is the basis of all sound and decent society, is nothing new in the life of the world—it is simply presented in new form. When we consider those who attempt it, therefore, we may well say of them, as did Daniel Webster when he stood up in the senate of the United States 111 years ago:

"Sir, what can such men want? What do they mean? They can want nothing, sir, but to enjoy the fruits of other men's labor. They can mean nothing but disturbance and disorder, the diffusion of corrupt principles and the destruction of the moral sentiments and moral habits of society."

REPLY TO ROGERS
Ward 7,
June 4, 1949.

To The Editor:

We resent the statement made by A. A. Rogers accusing W. O. Roberts of circulating petitions seeking a recall election against C. C. Fuller.

On March 23, C. G. Wall, Jr., requested Fuller to ask Mr. Roberts to come to his office to try to settle a disturbance caused by three or four families connected with the school. Mr. Roberts, accompanied by 11 patrons of the school, went to see Mr. Wall, and in this meeting Mr. Wall made several erroneous changes against the principal of the Okaloosa School.

Wall informed Roberts and the patrons to go home and forget the whole affair, and if there was any trouble at Okaloosa, the school would be closed. Whereupon the patrons went home and held a citizens' meeting. It was then decided to seek a recall election against Fuller. Fuller, in their opinion, had fully demonstrated that he did not believe in a democratic rule. The citizens of Ward 7 were truthfully informed why a recall election was instigated.

We wanted to call a patrons' meeting at the school with Fuller presiding, but he flatly refused. He went so far as to go to our police juror, Mr. Roberts, asking him to use his influence to stop the meeting. Then is when Mr. Roberts made his statement that he believed in the majority ruling. Mr. Manning, Ouachita parish superintendent, had the affairs of the children settled, but then Fuller and Wall came out to the Okaloosa School and there was a disturbance with the principal of the school on the grounds.

The affair has hurt the community, churches and other community organizations. The leading citizens of Ward 7 are ashamed of the uproar and feel that Fuller could have prevented the whole affair had he left off his personal prejudices toward certain personnel of the school.

If Fuller is recalled it won't mean that our school board member will not work for the interests of the schools of the west side and the entire parish. We believe that West Monroe needs a high school, and that there are enough students to justify retaining and improving our high school at Okaloosa.

Rogers has made the statement publicly that he can purchase votes, but he can't buy all the votes. We are a self sustaining citizens committee, self supporting and under no obligations to any political faction.

CITIZENS OF WARD 7.

Angelo Patri:

OUR CHILDREN

AN IDEAL PATTERN

Boys and girls are inclined to settle on some personality that is before the public as a pattern for them to imitate. The girls select a woman and the boys a man. They try to be like them in every way; walk, talk, dress and look like them. This is one of the important phases of a child's growth and it should be watched and tended with intelligent care.

When a girl begins trying out a new hairdo in imitation of an artist of the stage or screen, don't laugh. It is a serious business with the girl. Study the artist's career a little to discover whether or no it is the sort that will have a good influence on the girl and if it is, encourage her. If it is not, begin with the wisdom of the serpent to wean her toward a better one.

Do the same with the boy. Help him to find the hero he will want to imitate. Talk about good men, pointing out their fine qualities and their great service to the world, and accent the admiration they won. Have good books handy and talk about them.

Fathers have a chance here. Their sons look up to them and follow their patterns in every way. What father likes they will like, so if father will cheer for fine men, praise their work, speak highly of their characters, the boys will be likely to follow their lead.

Dramatic personalities catch the interest of the boys and girls first. They are far more interested in a soldier at war, a cowboy on the range, a detective on the trail of a villain than they are in the work of a clergyman, a scientist, a statesman, a selfless physician, but father can make the stories of these useful, heroic men and women as dramatic as any other and so lead the boys and girls to look for the higher values in human beings.

Praise good men and women. But where the children are concerned, accent the dramatics of their lives first and foremost. Goodness must be made as interesting as badness. Goodness is normal to humanity, so it is likely to be considered commonplace. Make it dramatic. Susan B. Anthony struggling to give women a decent place in life, Mary Lyon fighting valiantly to get the funds to build a college for women when no such thing was to be thought of, Nurse Cavell dying for her countrymen's cause—history is full of such stories.

Nathan Hale, Lincoln, Theodore Roosevelt, Rickenbacher, the men afloat on the raft for days and holding fast to their faith in rescue, the story of Walter Reid—we are rich in such men—are dramatic and inspiring. Praise good men and women that their lives may become patterns for children in search of ideals.

Children may learn unpleasant words and names in literature not suited to them. Dr. Patri recommends good books in a special leaflet, P-8, giving a list of more than 50 books. To obtain a copy send 5 cents in coin and a stamped self-addressed envelope to him, c/o this paper, P. O. Box 99. Station G, New York 19, N. Y.

BIBLE THOUGHTS

For now we live, if ye stand fast in the Lord.—I thessalonians 3:8.

No grace is more necessary to the Christian worker than fidelity; the humble grace that marches on in sunshine and storm, when no banners are waving, and there is no music to cheer the weary feet.—S. J. Nicholls.

William E. Gilroy, D. D.

Sunday School Lesson

The cup, that in Gethsemane Jesus prayed so earnestly might pass, did not pass. We know how He drank it, and drank it to the very lees of sacrifice and suffering. It is the mystery of God and the universe that the life-giving powers, alike of nature and of grace, are intimately bound up with suffering and death.

Jesus emphasized this very strongly in His conversation with "certain Greeks," recorded in John 12:23-25. "Except a grain of wheat fall into the ground and die," He said, "it abideth alone; but if it die it beareth much fruit." And He proceeded to apply this to human life, with undoubtedly prophetic reference to Himself: "He that loveth his life loseth it."

In Gethsemane it was the humanity of Jesus, struggling in the last dark hour against all that He had set forth to saddened disciples in preceding days, recorded in the conversations and discourses of the chapters in John's Gospel. Was this not, also, an expression of His humanity, sharing with us an experience that is common, and never so much emphasized as in recent years when so many reluctant, peaceable young men, hating war, have nevertheless had to make the supreme sacrifice?

It is one thing to recognize a general law of sacrifice, but how different when we are faced with a real, insistent danger, or demand for sacrifice ourselves? Then comes a real testing. Many find the faith and power to face it; others fail.

Out of Gethsemane the Master came with the serenity of a profound faith in the destiny that the Father had for Him, and with a quiet, sublime courage, that could endure alike the buffetings of His aggressors, the taunts of the cowardly, and the cynical contempt of the worldly-minded Pilate. It was the proud, self-confident Roman who cringed in that interview before the uncrowned King, who was yet to wear the crown of thorns.

Were trial and death ever so dominated by a courage and composure, born of inward peace, and a consciousness of spiritual presence and power? How often has that peace of God that made the Master strong upheld His followers in persecution and peril!

From Gethsemane to Calvary! We must go with Jesus all the way, if we would get the inspiration of that divine tragedy and its fulfillment of blessing for mankind. Here, again, we may speak of "mankind," but, as we may have to face danger and sacrifice not in general but in a very real and personal way, so the message of that divine tragedy comes to each of us personally, pointing the way to triumph and glory. It is the way of prayer, in discovering and obeying the will of God, and in finding the strength that God supplies.

Clayton Finds Private Business Dull; Probe Worries Officials

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(NEA)—Former Undersecretary of State Will Clayton is back in Washington, wondering about taking another government job. Clayton had to retire from government service because the strain on him was too great. He was advised to take it easier. He went back to his old Anderson-Clayton office in Texas, but found that in his absence the company had learned to run without him. He had nothing to do. Finding private business too dull, he came back to where all the excitement is.

Billy Rose:

PITCHING HORSESHOES

First chance I get, I intend to high-tail it over to Fifth avenue and buy my wife a wrist watch with a lot of those little red stones.

What's that you say? Didn't I ever buy Eleanor a time-piece in the ten years we've been together? Sure, I did, and a mighty trim little ticker it was, too, but she lost it while we were in Jerusalem last March and—but if you don't mind, I'd like to give it to you jewel by jewel and tick by tick . . .

In the Holy City, as soon as I learned that the Mark Ethridge who headed up the peace conciliation commission was the same Ethridge who publishes the Louisville Courier-Journal, I gave the gentleman a ring and wangled an invitation for us to lunch with him at the King David Hotel where he was stopping.

Well, what happened at the luncheon was what always happens when two visiting firemen from the same hook-and-ladder company meet up far from home and, the next thing Eleanor and I knew, our bags were being moved into the King David and we were discussing dinner plans.

Along about 9 that evening, we found ourselves in front of a platter of pot roast in the squat, low-ceilinged dining room of the Eden where a couple of hundred Israeli soldiers and their girls were dancing to the music of a fiddle, a squeeze-box and a beat-up piano. And from the kidding and happy hollering that was going on, it wasn't hard to tell which side had won the war.

During dinner, Ted Lurie, editor of the Palestine Post, joined our party and introduced us to several of the soldiers whose battlefield high-jinks had already become part of the new nation's legendry, and I was especially taken with a 27-year-old colonel named "Motka" Maclef who, fighting what he called a "stop-watch war," had captured all of Galilee in 70 hours. Eleanor's favorite, however, was a tough-looking sergeant in his sixties, white of beard and hair who, according to Lurie, refused to be mustered out because he thought he ought to stick around "just in case."

Around midnight, a lad who looked like Danny Kaye got up and began to sing an Israeli army song—the one about nighttime on the Negev—and, as the whole room joined in, even those of us who had not personal interest in the land they were singing about felt the excitement oozing into our eyes and ears and bubbling around in our blood. And it was one for the book to see Ethridge, a Kentucky gent from way back, beating time on the table with his fist and exclaiming, "Boy, isn't this something!"

As the song ended, a soldier and his girl got up and went into the Hora—an ancient folk dance that looks like a cross between a hillbilly hoe-down and a conga. A circle formed itself around the prancing twosome, then a circle around the circle, and soon everyone was beating it out and chanting as they stomp-stepped in time with the music. And, for the next 40 minutes, 400 people, arms and emotions locked, let off enough steam to power the 20th Century all the way to Chicago.

Did I say 400 people? Make that 399 for, in a corner of the room, the white-haired sergeant stood watching the frolic and wishing, I suppose, he were as young as he felt and had a girl to shake an ankle with. And then, Eleanor, seeing the old boy standing there alone, suddenly ducked out from behind the table and, before you could say, "Ben Gurion," had kicked off her shoes, locked arms with the pugnacious patriarch and was dancing plumb square in the middle of the circle. And there, for the rest of the dance, she jumped, whirled and yippeed while the Hora-happy crowd, made even happier by the sight of the pug-nosed kid from Brooklyn, kept beating it out and whooping it up around her.

It was past 2 when Ted Lurie drove us back to the King David and, when we got upstairs, Eleanor discovered that her wrist watch was missing. We searched our room, phoned the Eden and even called Lurie and asked him to check the upholstery of his car. But neither hide nor hairspring of the watch could be found and so, the next morning before leaving Jerusalem, I went to a police station and reported the loss to the 18-year-old kid with a sten gun who was playing desk sergeant . . .

A couple of weeks later in Rome, Eleanor dropped anchor in front of a jweler's window. "Darling," she said, "didn't you once write a column about how it's later than people think and that they ought to be enjoying themselves?"

"About six months back," I said cautiously. "It's an old Chinese proverb."

"Well," said my missus, "wouldn't it be a lot easier for a girl to know how late it was if she had a watch?"

"It would," I said, "but that proverb doesn't go for little girls who go around losing valuable timepieces . . . ."

The day we got back to New York, I filled out a slip reporting the loss to the insurance company but, when I asked Eleanor to sign it, she said, "I wouldn't try to collect if I were you. Strictly speaking, I didn't lose the watch."

"What happened to it then?" I asked.

"Well," said Eleanor, "do you remember that night in Jerusalem when I was dancing the Hora with these soldiers? In the middle of the dance, I felt the clasp on my watch come loose, but I did nothing about it. I suppose I could have yelled for them to stop, but those kids were having a wonderful time and I just didn't have the heart to break it up."

"And so you let them stomp on it with their boots?" I said.

"I guess so," said Eleanor, and there was more so-what than so-sorry in her voice . . . .

Well, I'm sure you all agree that my wife ought to be taught a lesson she won't forget in a hurry and, unless someone comes up with a better idea, I figure the most fitting punishment is for me to buy one of those watches with a lot of little red stones and slap her right across the wrist with it.

RECEIVES CUT ON LEG

Interpreting The News

THE EISLER CASE

Majority editorial opinion approves the failure of a British court, on a strictly legal point, to extradite Communist Gerhart Eisler to America; this is seen as an example to the east that the high principles of impartial law prevail in the west. Most of this group note that our ultimate aim was to deport Eisler anyway. But a minority of considerable number fears that the British court has injured the prestige of America and the west in the cold war by an overfine legal hair-splitting.

Kansas City (Mo.) Star (Ind.): "By the device of jumping (appeal) bail and stowing away in a Polish ship, Eisler . . . has succeeded in escaping punishment for two crimes. . . . No effort was made to extradite him . . . for contempt of congress. The . . . case was founded on his falsification of the record under which he was granted an American passport. . . . That (British) finding . . . rests on a very different basis from the contention offered by the fugitive's counsel that Eisler simply was being persecuted as a Communist and . . . a political refugee."

St. Paul (Minn.) Dispatch (Ind.): "The British judge says that under English law perjury can occur only in connection with judicial proceedings . . . What the case seems to prove is that extradition treaties need to be revised to cover the peculiar kinds of law-breaking which Communists use in their everyday war against non-Communist governments. . . . Meanwhile the real triumph is for democratic legal procedure, which Eisler and other Communists hold in contempt even while using it for their own purposes."

Philadelphia (Pa.) Inquirer (Ind.): "In releasing Eisler . . . a British magistrate achieved the ultimate in hair-splitting. . . . When Eisler swore falsely in an affidavit . . . for a passport . . . it wasn't 'perjury' according to some esoteric British construction. . . . There are plenty of Americans whose reactions might be, 'Let him go—and good riddance! But there is a great deal more to Eisler's case than that. He has flouted the authority of our government—by his contempt of congress . . ."

Dayton (Ohi) Daily News (Ind-Dem.): "British justice has traditionally been scrupulous in safeguarding the rights of individuals. Our own supreme court has always been at its best in . . . protection of the rights of the individual. . . . For the British to yield what their courts regard as a point of principle in the face of political expediency might well do the cause for which we are all fighting infinitely greater harm in the court of world opinion than the practical damage that might follow from the release of Eisler."

Cincinnati (Ohio) Times-Star (Rep.): "There are technical points here which lawyers may argue over interminably. . . . The galling fact remains that a convicted perjurer . . . branded by a congressional committee as the No. 1 Communist agent in the United States, has been freed as a political refugee from the United States and permitted to go his way to Germany for another antidemocratic assignment by the Kremlin. Most Britons will probably agree with virtually all Americans that this is something worse than a legal absurdity."

San Francisco (Calif.) Chronicle (Ind.-Rep.): "It would be very unfair of the American people to . . . get their dander up over the refusal of the British to extradite Eisler. . . . The refusal was a legal, rather technical decision which the United States Embassy, representing the interests of our government, lost. It was in no sense a political or ministerial decision reflecting the British government's attitude toward the United States or toward Communists."

Lowell (Mass.) Sun (Ind.): "Strictly on an interpretation of law, the British judge may have been right, but morally he has made a mistake. Eisler is not only a threat to the United States; he is also a threat to Great Britain. . . . The Eisler affair has developed in such a way as to give new courage and braggadocio to others of his ilk who are scuttling around in leading cities of the world. . . . He is already flouting democratic justice and hurling ridicule at the American department of justice."

Newark (N. J.) Star-Ledger (Ind.): "No amount of railing against the British court for its decision can alter the fact that we could have prevented Eisler from leaving the country had we been more alert. Certainly, we should take steps to prevent the use of ships flying the flags of Russia's satellites from becoming transmission vehicles for the flow of Communist espionage."

Around Washington With
BASCOM N. TIMMONS

Congress authorized the European recovery program last year after scores of members visited the various participating nations, either as members of committees sent over for that purpose, or as individuals who felt that they should know the European situation before casting their votes.

Prospects now are that next fall, a number of members will return to the scene of the ECA program to see how the plan is working after more than a year's operation and also to determine whether money is being wasted. When the house last week voted the compromise appropriation for ECA, which will permit the administration to spend what it asked until May 15, many members did so with their tongues in their cheeks. They were forced to rely upon declarations and estimates of ECA officials and for the most part felt that it might be risky to slash the fund immediately.

Next winter, however, when they will probably be called upon to vote a deficiency fund to carry the program through from May 15 to the end of the fiscal year, June 30, they will put more reliance upon the reports they receive from their colleagues who have personally inspected the program on the spot than they will upon the naturally prejudiced ECA authorities.

Magazines have fallen into the habit of asking Washington correspondents to make anonymous appraisals of members of congress.

They ask, for instance, which senator is the best looking or which representative is the "worst" and so on ad infinitum.

Aside from the nuisance, these polls present the Washington newspaperman with a problem. If he does not participate, then the consensus may prove to be entirely inaccurate. And so he usually obliges.

A recent poll asked the question: "If there could be only three members of the senate, which three senators would you choose?"

The mere implication that the senate —which is not merely a legislative body but the symbol of the Union of 48 states—could be out to three presents such a distortion that it is valueless. It is so "iffy" a proposition, as President Roosevelt used to express it, that it is not worth serious consideration.

Certainly these are times when people should know more true facts about the composition of their government. No factual information is imparted by writing articles based on such preposterous assumptions.

Speaking editorially, I should say that most newspapermen do not hesitate to say what they think about any public servant, and the poll device, which permits them to express anonymous opinions about public figures, should not be an inducement.

Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn, a bachelor, took seven kids to the circus the other day and reported that he had the time of his life.

The children, all under 10, were the sons and daughters of fellow Texans in the house and senate. Rayburn also took the papas along to help out, but the bald-domed leader of the house had a child balanced on each knee for most of the performance.

If Representative Mary T. Norton, of Jersey City, decides to run for reelection next year, she will face a serious chance of defeat.

Mrs. Norton was elected to congress with the support of the Hague machine of Jersey City in 1924 and has won overwhelming re-election victories since. The Hague machine recently crumbled for the first time in a city election.

Mrs. Norton has not yet announced her political plans for 1950, but she may try for another term if former Mayor Frank Hague needs her help in an attempt to restore his grip on Jersey City politics.

Now 74, Mrs. Norton became the first Democratic woman to be elected to congress when she was victorious initially 25 years ago. In another first, she was the first woman member of the house to become chairman of a legislative committee. She headed the house labor committee, but left it after the Republican congressional victory in 1946. She is now chairman of the house administration committee. She also was once chairman of the Democratic state committee of New Jersey.

Although Mrs. Norton celebrated her 74th birthday in March, according to her biography in Who's Who, she doesn't look like she is more than in her late fifties.

Physically, she probably could handle a tough election fight next year, presuming her present state of health and stamina continues to hold up.

Mystery

WASHINGTON—(AP)—One of the current capital mysteries is why top level air force officials are shunning aircraft industry meetings.

They stayed away from the manufacturers' annual off-the-record conference at Williamsburg, Va., and from their bid dinner for the Aviation Writers Association here last week.

The navy was present in force, probably in tribute to Admiral DeWitt Charles Ramsey, who retired recently to head the Industry's Trade Association.

Typical of the general caution being displayed by military and industry leaders since the congressional uproar over the B-36 was Ramsey's speech. It was devoted largely to habits of Pacific island natives.

A few weeks ago, when Lila Leeds was signed to star in a picture based on the dope traffic, the producer solemnly denied charges that he was trying to capitalize on Miss Leed's conviction on a narcotic charge. He vowed that his one interest in making such a movie was humanitarian—that he wanted to impress the public with the evils and the perils of marijuana smoking. Well, take a look at the publicity stills of Lila which are now finding their way into print, and form your own conclusions about his sincerity. Miss Leeds, pictured in the scantiest of costumes, is getting the full glamour treatment. If that producer wants to impress the public with the evils of dope, he'd do a better job by dropping the glamour and showing her as she looked in her prison garb, while serving a ninety-day sentence in the county bastille.

I'm amused by the current Hollywood frenzy over Milton Berle. It's so typical. If my records are not at fault, Berle has acted in seven pictures in the past. None of them were outstanding hits, and in none of them did he shine with any particular lustre. In fact, after giving him that very thorough trial, Hollywood solemnly adjudged him as wanting in whatever it is that a screen player needs for success, and his name, as far as the Filmville czars were concerned, became M-U-D. But no Hollywood verdict of that kind can stand up against a player's success in a new medium. The minute Berle clicked in television, every studio in the business was at his feet. It's strange, but true, that the men who control the biggest branch of show business, are chronically suspicious of their own judgment.

I see that still another picture, celebrating the gridiron glory of Notre Dame is to be produced, based, this time, on the coaching career of Frank Leahy. Fine! I like football, I consider the Notre Dame football team tops and certainly I want to see the movie. But still more, I'd like to see another picture based on college life—one that I'm afraid I'll never have a chance to see. I mean a movie depicting an American University as an EDUCATIONAL institution.

It's a rare day when I fail to hear some Hollywoodite wish for the money that this star, or that one, makes. As far as I'm concerned, I'd be willing to settle for the money Montgomery Clift has turned down by refusing parts he considers unsuitable.

George E. Sokolsky:
THESE DAYS

THE FATE OF GERMANY

Germany is now divided into three parts: 1. Western Germany under the tutelage of the United States, Great Britain and France (the Bonn Republic); 2. Soviet-occupied Germany, controlled and managed by Soviet Russia; 3. The Polish-administered Germany, which has been forgotten by all the world.

The attitude of the great powers toward Germany differs, depending upon their own interests. The United States would like an end to the war, particularly to this four-year truce which is costing this country billions of dollars in military expenditures and in Marshall plan aid. In spite of the fact that the United States has twice been involved in wars with Germany, this country would prefer to see a well-ordered, self-supporting Germany that is no longer a burden on the American taxpayer. As abhorrent as any militaristic country is, an anarchy is still worse and often more prolongedly expensive.

The British want trade but they want it in American dollars. If Germany's industrial life were advanced rapidly, the British could restore themselves as a trading nation in central Europe, but they would either have to restore the pound as a medium of exchange or employ barter. A Socialistic country can employ barter more readily than a Capitalistic one. Whichever way, Great Britain would benefit from a restored Germany, but it lives in terror lest a restored German industry be geared to renewed militarism. It is absurd to talk about "military industries" and "war-time industries." They are interchangeable and serve the same end. Furthermore, the war has not reduced the German people to subservience, as the vote in the Russian zone proved beyond doubt. The moral character of the German people is reasserting itself.

The French fear a reunited, efficient, independent Germany. Although France has invaded Germany more often than Germany has invaded France, the memory of man is short and does not go back beyond 1870. Since then, Germany has attacked France three times, winning once and losing twice. The two French victories were pyrrhic, first because they were preceded by German occupation of French soil and secondly, because the last war proved conclusively that France is incapable of forming and servicing a modern army, that French industry is inconsequential, and the French worker inadequate for war-time productive pressures.

The French, therefore, fear Germany as a superior power. The French also fear the United States as an ally upon whom France is so completely dependent that should there be another war, this country could, and indeed might have to, occupy France, if we are to assist her. As a military power, France is literally nothing; as an industrial power France is unimportant; as a cultural force in Europe, France remains significant. The question that faces the French people then is: What will happen to France when Germany is again strong? And there really is no answer to this.

Russian policy is based on the Marxian concept of a federation of autonomous states within a world-wide union of Soviet republics. Their object then is to keep Germany weak, on a low standard of living, its people poor and dissatisfied, the nation divided politically and economically, so that the revolution would be a welcome relief from the miseries of the moment. Then a Communist government, already established in east Germany, would take over for the entire country and would make of Germany a satellite of the Soviet Union. When Germany was partitioned into five parts, that was the Soviet plan and our statesmen accepted it unknowingly. The Berlin airlift was the moral catalyst for spoiling that plan, but the Russians hope that the assistance to a free Germany will be temporary. They will do everything possible to embarrass the Bonn government and to delay Germany's recovery.

There was never a need for the current Paris conference and it is a mistake to hold it, from the German standpoint, because it gives Soviet Russia another opportunity to attack stability in that country and to force upon the United States additional expenditures. The Russians assume that either the American people will tire of spending money on Germany or that the United States will suffer from a deep depression, or that both will happen—to Russia's advantage.

Hal Boyle's
NOTEBOOK

NEW YORK, June 4.—(AP)—A letter to any veteran:

Did you ever want to go back, soldier?

Do you wonder sometimes what it is like now in those foreign places where you spilled your youth, and perhaps some blood, in the years of war and waste?

Well, soldier, I'm going back. I've got a two-week furlough to rendezvous with what's gone by. Where did you lose your youth? Tell me, and I'll look for it. Maybe I lost mine there, too, in the same crowded hour. I sure mislaid it somewhere.

Backtracking the war is too big a job for any one person. It was a long war in a wide world, and no man saw it all. But danger, excitement and boredom usually taste the same in different places. It isn't the scenery you remember so much as how you felt. All foxholes got so they looked alike.

The foxholes I'm going back to are in Europe. Were you there, too, soldier?

Can I help peel off some of the past for you? What shall I tell the girls in Piccadilly Circus? Is there someone you want me to look up for you in the cemetery that looks down on Omaha Beach? They say there isn't a red stain on the sands there now, and once there were so many. And a man lying on every stain.

It's June again in the Normandy hedgerows, soldier. Five years don't make much difference to hedgerows. But how the world has changed for the men who fired across them at each other in 1944!

How odd it will be to see live cows grazing in the fields outside St. Lo. Remember, soldier, how it seemed like every cow you saw was dead? And they lay in the shell-pitted pastures with their stiff legs stuck in the air like bloated toy rubber balloons.

The road into St. Lo winds past a calvados factory. It's probably repaired by now. I'll toast you in raw calvados, brother, and you remember that stuff. One drink, one day off your life.

And then, of course, comes Paris, the glory foxhole of all time. the day we went in there the town went crazy, and no Yank could spend a dollar. Bet you can now, hey soldier?

There will be lots of stops along the way. Rheims and Spa and Luxembourg. And others with names a man couldn't pronounce—and now doesn't want to.

One I have in mind is the Hurtgen forest, not so far inside Germany as we'd hoped to be when we got there. Remember the dark, tall trees and the half-light, soldier? Oh, it was a forest of dead men, too, that place was, when we got through it at last and came out and saw the sky again.

Then we're going on to Frankfurt and Berlin, where they are putting brick back on brick again and talking of "the new Germany." They aren't Krauts or Huns or Nazis any more, soldier. They're all Germans again —and peace, isn't it wonderful? It is while it lasts. But it can wear out mighty quick.

Well, soldier, I guess we all have changed as much as the battlefields. There isn't much use in trying to go back to anything in life, but everybody keeps right on trying. Maybe in the next two weeks I'll see a few old ghosts of something we used to know.

And if I do, I'll say hello—and tell them you wish them well.

James Marlow:
NATION TODAY

WASHINGTON, June 4. —(AP)— If you're interested in labor, you'd better polish your eyeglasses and get ready for an awful lot of heavy reading.

The senate, at last, will tackle on Monday the job of trying to write a new labor law.

And once that starts there'll be a flood of words out of Washington on the senate arguments, which may take weeks..

Since there can be no new labor law at all unless both houses approve a bill, once the senate finishes, it will be the turn of the house.

That will take more time, maybe a week or 10 days. And that will mean another torrent of news.

On the eve of the big arguments I don't think there's a man alive who can predict the outcome precisely.

One thing seems sure: Neither President Truman nor organized labor will get from congress the kind of new labor law they wanted.

Both wanted congress to wipe out the Taft-Hartley law, which congress passed in 1947 when the Republicans were in control.

And in its place they wanted congress to restore the old Wagner act, with just a few minor changes.

(The Wagner act, passed in 1935 when the Democrats were in control of congress, put restrictions on management but none on labor.

(The T-H act replaced the Wagner act, put some restrictions on management and put more restrictions on labor than ever before).

In fact, Mr. Truman had promised, now that his Democrats controlled congress, that T-H would be wiped out and the Wagner act brought back.

It didn't work out that way and it doesn't look as if it has a chance of working out that way.

A number of Mr. Truman's own Democrats won't go along with his thinking on what the new labor law should be. And most of the Republicans are against his ideas, too.

So the Trumanites will have the job of trying to get the best deal they can out of whatever happens in the senate and house.

But there is so much divided thinking, among Republicans and Democrats alike, that the new law may be written on the floor through amendments offered while the argument is going on.

What the house may do about a labor bill is even more of a mystery.

Some weeks ago, after 10 days of debate and jockeying, the house was just on the point of approving a new labor bill and sending it to the senate for action when—

Wham, it dropped the whole thing and hasn't brought it up since. There's even a chance that the house won't act at all this year, which would leave the T-H act as is. This seems unlikely, though.

Congress went to work almost six months ago to shape a new labor law —through long committee hearings— but the whole thing has been such a mess and a puzzle that action has been delayed until now.

TEX. YOUTH SERIOUSLY INJURED BY GAS FLAMES

VERNON, Tex., June 4.—(AP)—Donnie Woodard, 10-year-old boy terribly burned by gasoline-fed flames May 10, sank into a coma today.

His family was told to stay close by.

Seventy per cent of the boy's skin was burned away when his older brother accidently flung a bucket of burning gasoline on him while the two were burning weeds at their home here. Physicians have expressed amazement he has continued to live.

Donnie failed to respond to a blood transfusion this morning. He remained in a coma until about 11 a. m. when he rallied briefly to whisper to his father that he felt "fine, thank you." Then he dropped back into the coma.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK—And if you want to realize how fast spring is receding into the past, a month hence will be Fourth of July. So let's see what's in the mail.

Mrs. L. K. Sharp, Clinton, N. J., is interested in mention of Glenway Wescott in the column recently. She also agrees that Mary Margaret McBride "is a dear," and picks this column as her favorite. So, naturally, I think as highly of Mrs. S. as she does of M. M. McB.

Gilbert Peterson, Red Oak, Iowa, wants me to write an article on court procedure in the Middle West. Too heavy an assignment, G. P. . . . Homer Croy ("The James Boys") sends me clips about the imaginary and fantastic trademark of the Jayhawker football team, of Kansas University. The bird, devised a few years ago by a student, is dubbed Jayhawk. Rapid readers, not too thorough in understanding, have confused this imaginary bird, also its coined name, with the Kansan and former Kansan, who are Jayhawkers, not Jayhawks.

Mr. W. C. Elmore, Titusville, Fla., sends along encouragement for my expressions of anti-Communist opinion. Well, Mr. E., not much credit is due Americans who denounce Communism now, when it's the thing to do, but I claim a little distinction in having been outspokenly anti-Communist througout the reign of the late C-in-C, when the fabric of our republice was riddled by these moths, then loudly welcomed on Pennsylvania avenue.

Norman Dine, nicknamed Sleepyhead, has made a fortune, partly for himself, out of sleep. He runs a shop concerned solely with sleep. It contains the most varied lot of stuff you ever saw. Beds and bedding, of course, machines to keep silence and machines to make sweet noises, back rests, sleepy-time reading, lamps of all sorts, heavily shaded and bright, silent clocks, mosquito housing, fans, refrigeration.

Dine knows almost every sleep fancier in New York: calls them sleepicures. When anybody hits the jackpot with a book or play, he becomes a professional insomniac, and haunts Dine, to learn what to do. Naturally, Dine sells him some gear, and for a while the fellow is happy, trying out all manner of sleepy gadgets.

I wonder why so many sleepicures like to read mystery murder stories before going to sleep? Among addicts of these exciting tales for insomniacs are some intelligent men of my acquaintance whom I'd suspect of having better sense.

As for me, I'm greatly comforted by my big, 111-year-old striking clock. Its gears make horrid noises all night, and take the place of the pounding of the surf, God's greatest aid to pleasant dreaming.

I can afford surf-sleeping but rarely. The clock runs free.

Evelyn Poole, San Diego, wants somebody "to show up Henry Wallace for what he is, a killer of little pigs." He's done so much worse since he killed the millions of pigs, and done it so publicly, that I don't think he needs any showing by me.

Mrs. Jesse C. Fisher, Wichita, writes that her husband, a doctor, was a student of old Lewis Academy, where I also went to school four wonderful years. He plans to have the cornerstone deposited in the municipal museum. Fine. . Wrecker George Rakestraw sent me a brass doorknob from the office of the school, and it is now in use on my study door.

DeWitt Mackenzie:
MACKENZIE'S COLUMN

(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst)

The political campaign for Britain's next general election, which is due a year hence but might be precipitated earlier, already is under way and is getting hot.

It's a historic battle in which England's first outright Socialist government is fighting to retain the leadership which it wrested from the long-reigning Conservatives (Tories, some call them) in 1945. Former Prime Minister Churchill again is leading the charge of the Conservative brigade.

The London Daily Herald—organ of the Socialist party—is angry with Mr. Churchill, accusing him of imputing that under the Socialists the empire is being thrown away. The paper maintains that the empire has been strengthened by such acts of the present government as the granting of independence to India, Pakistan and Burma.

This isn't the first time Churchill has attacked the Socialists along the imperial line. One of his fiercest assaults was made back in December, 1946, in the house of commons when Socialist Prime Minister Attlee announced steps to expedite self-government in Burma. Churchill charged the government with undue haste "in divesting ourselves of the great possessions of the British crown," and added:

"This haste is appalling. Scuttle is the only word that can be applied to what, spread over a number of years, would be a healthy constitutional process."

The world won't soon forget one of Churchill's most noted lines in defense of empire, delivered in a speech while he was war-time prime minister in 1942.

"I have not become the king's first minister in order to preside over the liquidation of the British empire."

It is to be noted that Churchill has not attacked the policy of granting independence to countries like India and Burma, but rather has opposed haste. On that basis let's take a look at the situation as imperial observers. I have been studying India intensively for more than a generation and have spent much time there, and this is the way the position looks to me:

India and Pakistan were out for absolute independence. So were Burma and Ceylon. They wanted action and they meant business. It's a fair bet that if the British government hadn't acted when it did in granting independence, some or all of these dependencies would have taken matters into their own hands. They were ready to rebel if necessary to secure freedom.

True, the British government might have stood off the day of reckoning a bit more, but to do so would have been playing with high explosive. That colorful part of the British empire long had been on its way out. There was no way of holding it much longer, except by force of arms.

As things have worked out, free India has decided to play ball with Britain and is remaining a member of the commonwealth of nations which recognizes the British crown as the symbol of unity. Others are expected to follow suit.

This readjustment has given fresh strength to the commonwealth. There will be further changes, for the empire is in process of a mighty metamorphosis. There is likely to be increasing emphasis on the commonwealth, as further dependencies reach their time for independence.

Thus on the whole the British government would seem to have bridged its imperial difficulties exceedingly well. It's hard to see how they could have done much better under the circumstances, and they could have done a mighty lot worse.

WRIGHT BROTHERS PAPERS GO TO LIBRARY CONGRESS

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(AP)—The personal and business papers of the Wright brothers have been given to the Library of Congress by the executors of the estate of Orville Wright, who died Jan. 30, 1948.

Announcing the gift today, the Library said the executors have stipulated that until Jan. 1, 1960, their permission must be obtained for access to the papers. It will be granted to "any trained scholar or writer doing serious research."

Orville Wright and his elder brother, Wilbur, who died in 1912, discovered the means of heavier-than-air flight, making their first ascent at Kitty Hawk, N. C., Dec. 17, 1903.

Their papers cover a 67-year span of personal, business and scientific activities, the Library said. They include dairies and notebooks covering flight experiments from 1900 to 1910; Orville's description of the first flight; letters and documents relating to the bitter controversy between Orville and the Smithsonian Institution over credit for the brothers' work; records of their busines enterprises and dealings with various governments; and many rare books and pamphlets from Orville's personal library in his home at Dayton, Ohio.

The Smithsonian dispute was not settled completely until after Orville's death. Orville sent the first airplane to a London museum in 1928. It was returned to this country only last year and now is displayed in the Smithsonian.

Interpreting The News

THE EISLER CASE

Majority editorial opinion approves the failure of a British court, on a strictly legal point, to extradite Communist Gerhart Eisler to America; this is seen as an example to the east that the high principles of impartial law prevail in the west. Most of this group note that our ultimate aim was to deport Eisler anyway. But a minority of considerable number fears that the British court has injured the prestige of America and the west in the cold war by an overfine legal hair-splitting.

Kansas City (Mo.) Star (Ind.): "By the device of jumping (appeal) bail and stowing away in a Polish ship, Eisler . . . has succeeded in escaping punishment for two crimes. . . . No effort was made to extradite him . . . for contempt of congress. The . . . case was founded on his falsification of the record under which he was granted an American passport. . . . That (British) finding . . . rests on a very different basis from the contention offered by the fugitive's counsel that Eisler simply was being persecuted as a Communist and . . . a political refugee."

St. Paul (Minn.) Dispatch (Ind.): "The British judge says that under English law perjury can occur only in connection with judicial proceedings . . . What the case seems to prove is that extradition treaties need to be revised to cover the peculiar kinds of law-breaking which Communists use in their everyday war against non-Communist governments. . . . Meanwhile the real triumph is for democratic legal procedure, which Eisler and other Communists hold in contempt even while using it for their own purposes."

Philadelphia (Pa.) Inquirer (Ind.): "In releasing Eisler . . . a British magistrate achieved the ultimate in hair-splitting. . . . When Eisler swore falsely in an affidavit . . . for a passport . . . it wasn't 'perjury' according to some esoteric British construction. . . . There are plenty of Americans whose reactions might be, 'Let him go—and good riddance! But there is a great deal more to Eisler's case than that. He has flouted the authority of our government—by his contempt of congress . . ."

Dayton (Ohi) Daily News (Ind-Dem.): "British justice has traditionally been scrupulous in safeguarding the rights of individuals. Our own supreme court has always been at its best in . . . protection of the rights of the individual. . . . For the British to yield what their courts regard as a point of principle in the face of political expediency might well do the cause for which we are all fighting infinitely greater harm in the court of world opinion than the practical damage that might follow from the release of Eisler."

Cincinnati (Ohio) Times-Star (Rep.): "There are technical points here which lawyers may argue over interminably. . . . The galling fact remains that a convicted perjurer . . . branded by a congressional committee as the No. 1 Communist agent in the United States, has been freed as a political refugee from the United States and permitted to go his way to Germany for another antidemocratic assignment by the Kremlin. Most Britons will probably agree with virtually all Americans that this is something worse than a legal absurdity."

San Francisco (Calif.) Chronicle (Ind.-Rep.): "It would be very unfair of the American people to . . . get their dander up over the refusal of the British to extradite Eisler. . . . The refusal was a legal, rather technical decision which the United States Embassy, representing the interests of our government, lost. It was in no sense a political or ministerial decision reflecting the British government's attitude toward the United States or toward Communists."

Lowell (Mass.) Sun (Ind.): "Strictly on an interpretation of law, the British judge may have been right, but morally he has made a mistake. Eisler is not only a threat to the United States; he is also a threat to Great Britain. . . . The Eisler affair has developed in such a way as to give new courage and braggadocio to others of his ilk who are scuttling around in leading cities of the world. . . . He is already flouting democratic justice and hurling ridicule at the American department of justice."

Newark (N. J.) Star-Ledger (Ind.): "No amount of railing against the British court for its decision can alter the fact that we could have prevented Eisler from leaving the country had we been more alert. Certainly, we should take steps to prevent the use of ships flying the flags of Russia's satellites from becoming transmission vehicles for the flow of Communist espionage."

A few weeks ago, when Lila Leeds was signed to star in a picture based on the dope traffic, the producer solemnly denied charges that he was trying to capitalize on Miss Leed's conviction on a narcotic charge. He vowed that his one interest in making such a movie was humanitarian—that he wanted to impress the public with the evils and the perils of marijuana smoking. Well, take a look at the publicity stills of Lila which are now finding their way into print, and form your own conclusions about his sincerity. Miss Leeds, pictured in the scantiest of costumes, is getting the full glamour treatment. If that producer wants to impress the public with the evils of dope, he'd do a better job by dropping the glamour and showing her as she looked in her prison garb, while serving a ninety-day sentence in the county bastille.

I'm amused by the current Hollywood frenzy over Milton Berle. It's so typical. If my records are not at fault, Berle has acted in seven pictures in the past. None of them were outstanding hits, and in none of them did he shine with any particular lustre. In fact, after giving him that very thorough trial, Hollywood solemnly adjudged him as wanting in whatever it is that a screen player needs for success, and his name, as far as the Filmville czars were concerned, became M-U-D. But no Hollywood verdict of that kind can stand up against a player's success in a new medium. The minute Berle clicked in television, every studio in the business was at his feet. It's strange, but true, that the men who control the biggest branch of show business, are chronically suspicious of their own judgment.

I see that still another picture, celebrating the gridiron glory of Notre Dame is to be produced, based, this time, on the coaching career of Frank Leahy. Fine! I like football, I consider the Notre Dame football team tops and certainly I want to see the movie. But still more, I'd like to see another picture based on college life—one that I'm afraid I'll never have a chance to see. I mean a movie depicting an American University as an EDUCATIONAL institution.

It's a rare day when I fail to hear some Hollywoodite wish for the money that this star, or that one, makes. As far as I'm concerned, I'd be willing to settle for the money Montgomery Clift has turned down by refusing parts he considers unsuitable.

George E. Sokolsky:

THESE DAYS

THE FATE OF GERMANY

Germany is now divided into three parts: 1. Western Germany under the tutelage of the United States, Great Britain and France (the Bonn Republic); 2. Soviet-occupied Germany, controlled and managed by Soviet Russia; 3. The Polish-administered Germany, which has been forgotten by all the world.

The attitude of the great powers toward Germany differs, depending upon their own interests. The United States would like an end to the war, particularly to this four-year truce which is costing this country billions of dollars in military expenditures and in Marshall plan aid. In spite of the fact that the United States has twice been involved in wars with Germany, this country would prefer to see a well-ordered, self-supporting Germany that is no longer a burden on the American taxpayer. As abhorrent as any militaristic country is, an anarchy is still worse and often more prolongedly expensive.

The British want trade but they want it in American dollars. If Germany's industrial life were advanced rapidly, the British could restore themselves as a trading nation in central Europe, but they would either have to restore the pound as a medium of exchange or employ barter. A Socialistic country can employ barter more readily than a Capitalistic one. Whichever way, Great Britain would benefit from a restored Germany, but it lives in terror lest a restored German industry be geared to renewed militarism. It is absurd to talk about "military industries" and "war-time industries." They are interchangeable and serve the same end. Furthermore, the war has not reduced the German people to subservience, as the vote in the Russian zone proved beyond doubt. The moral character of the German people is reasserting itself.

The French fear a reunited, efficient, independent Germany. Although France has invaded Germany more often than Germany has invaded France, the memory of man is short and does not go back beyond 1870. Since then, Germany has attacked France three times, winning once and losing twice. The two French victories were pyrrhic, first because they were preceded by German occupation of French soil and secondly, because the last war proved conclusively that France is incapable of forming and servicing a modern army, that French industry is inconsequential, and the French worker inadequate for war-time productive pressures.

The French, therefore, fear Germany as a superior power. The French also fear the United States as an ally upon whom France is so completely dependent that should there be another war, this country could, and indeed might have to, occupy France, if we are to assist her. As a military power, France is literally nothing; as an industrial power France is unimportant; as a cultural force in Europe, France remains significant. The question that faces the French people then is: What will happen to France when Germany is again strong? And there really is no answer to this.

Russian policy is based on the Marxian concept of a federation of autonomous states within a world-wide union of Soviet republics. Their object then is to keep Germany weak, on a low standard of living, its people poor and dissatisfied, the nation divided politically and economically, so that the revolution would be a welcome relief from the miseries of the moment. Then a Communist government, already established in east Germany, would take over for the entire country and would make of Germany a satellite of the Soviet Union. When Germany was partitioned into five parts, that was the Soviet plan and our statesmen accepted it unknowingly. The Berlin airlift was the moral catalyst for spoiling that plan, but the Russians hope that the assistance to a free Germany will be temporary. They will do everything possible to embarrass the Bonn government and to delay Germany's recovery.

There was never a need for the current Paris conference and it is a mistake to hold it, from the German standpoint, because it gives Soviet Russia another opportunity to attack stability in that country and to force upon the United States additional expenditures. The Russians assume that either the American people will tire of spending money on Germany or that the United States will suffer from a deep depression, or that both will happen—to Russia's advantage.

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

NEW YORK—And if you want to realize how fast spring is receding into the past, a month hence will be Fourth of July. So let's see what's in the mail.

Mrs. L. K. Sharp, Clinton, N. J., is interested in mention of Glenway Wescott in the column recently. She also agrees that Mary Margaret McBride "is a dear," and picks this column as her favorite. So, naturally, I think as highly of Mrs. S. as she does of M. M. McB.

Gilbert Peterson, Red Oak, Iowa, wants me to write an article on court procedure in the Middle West. Too heavy an assignment, G. P. . . . Homer Croy ("The James Boys") sends me clips about the imaginary and fantastic trademark of the Jayhawker football team, of Kansas University. The bird, devised a few years ago by a student, is dubbed Jayhawk. Rapid readers, not too thorough in understanding, have confused this imaginary bird, also its coined name, with the Kansan and former Kansan, who are Jayhawkers, not Jayhawks.

Mr. W. C. Elmore, Titusville, Fla., sends along encouragement for my expressions of anti-Communist opinion. Well, Mr. E., not much credit is due Americans who denounce Communism now, when it's the thing to do, but I claim a little distinction in having been outspokenly anti-Communist throughout the reign of the late C-in-C, when the fabric of our republice was riddled by these moths, then loudly welcomed on Pennsylvania avenue.

Norman Dine, nicknamed Sleepyhead, has made a fortune, partly for himself, out of sleep. He runs a shop concerned solely with sleep. It contains the most varied lot of stuff you ever saw. Beds and bedding, of course, machines to keep silence and machines to make sweet noises, back rests, sleepy-time reading, lamps of all sorts, heavily shaded and bright, silent clocks, mosquito housing, fans, refrigeration.

Dine knows almost every sleep fancier in New York: calls them sleepicures. When anybody hits the jackpot with a book or play, he becomes a professional insomniac, and haunts Dine, to learn what to do. Naturally, Dine sells him some gear, and for a while the fellow is happy, trying out all manner of sleepy gadgets.

I wonder why so many sleepicures like to read mystery murder stories before going to sleep? Among addicts of these exciting tales for insomniacs are some intelligent men of my acquaintance whom I'd suspect of having better sense.

As for me, I'm greatly comforted by my big, 111-year-old striking clock. Its gears make horrid noises all night, and take the place of the pounding of the surf, God's greatest aid to pleasant dreaming.

I can afford surf-sleeping but rarely. The clock runs free.

Evelyn Poole, San Diego, wants somebody "to show up Henry Wallace for what he is, a killer of little pigs." He's done so much worse since he killed the millions of pigs, and done it so publicly, that I don't think he needs any showing by me.

Mrs. Jesse C. Fisher, Wichita, writes that her husband, a doctor, was a student of old Lewis Academy, where I also went to school four wonderful years. He plans to have the cornerstone deposited in the municipal museum. Fine. Wrecker George Rakestraw sent me a brass doorknob from the office of the school, and it is now in use on my study door.

MACKENZIE'S COLUMN

(Associated Press Foreign Affairs Analyst)

The political campaign for Britain's next general election, which is due a year hence but might be precipitated earlier, already is under way and is getting hot.

It's a historic battle in which England's first outright Socialist government is fighting to retain the leadership which it wrested from the long-reigning Conservatives (Tories, some call them) in 1945. Former Prime Minister Churchill again is leading the charge of the Conservative brigade.

The London Daily Herald—organ of the Socialist party—is angry with Mr. Churchill, accusing him of imputing that under the Socialists the empire is being thrown away. The paper maintains that the empire has been strengthened by such acts of the present government as the granting of independence to India, Pakistan and Burma.

This isn't the first time Churchill has attacked the Socialists along the imperial line. One of his fiercest assaults was made back in December, 1946, in the house of commons when Socialist Prime Minister Attlee announced steps to expedite self-government in Burma. Churchill charged the government with undue haste "in divesting ourselves of the great possessions of the British crown," and added:

"This haste is appalling. Scuttle is the only word that can be applied to what, spread over a number of years, would be a healthy constitutional process."

The world won't soon forget one of Churchill's most noted lines in defense of empire, delivered in a speech while he was war-time prime minister in 1942.

"I have not become the king's first minister in order to preside over the liquidation of the British empire."

It is to be noted that Churchill has not attacked the policy of granting independence to countries like India and Burma, but rather has opposed haste. On that basis let's take a look at the situation as imperial observers. Around Washington With

BASCOM N. TIMMONS

Congress authorized the European recovery program last year after scores of members visited the various participating nations, either as members of committees sent over for that purpose, or as individuals who felt that they should know the European situation before casting their votes.

Prospects now are that next fall, a number of members will return to the scene of the ECA program to see how the plan is working after more than a year's operation and also to determine whether money is being wasted. When the house last week voted the compromise appropriation for ECA, which will permit the administration to spend what it asked until May 15, many members did so with their tongues in their cheeks. They were forced to rely upon declarations and estimates of ECA officials and for the most part felt that it might be risky to slash the fund immediately.

Next winter, however, when they will probably be called upon to vote a deficiency fund to carry the program through from May 15 to the end of the fiscal year, June 30, they will put more reliance upon the reports they receive from their colleagues who have personally inspected the program on the spot than they will upon the naturally prejudiced ECA authorities.

Magazines have fallen into the habit of asking Washington correspondents to make anonymous appraisals of members of congress.

They ask, for instance, which senator is the best looking or which representative is the "worst" and so on ad infinitum.

Aside from the nuisance, these polls present the Washington newspaperman with a problem. If he does not participate, then the consensus may prove to be entirely inaccurate. And so he usually obliges.

A recent poll asked the question: "If there could be only three members of the senate, which three senators would you choose?"

The mere implication that the senate—which is not merely a legislative body but the symbol of the Union of 48 states—could be out to three presents such a distortion that it is valueless. It is so "iffy" a proposition, as President Roosevelt used to express it, that it is not worth serious consideration.

Certainly these are times when people should know more true facts about the composition of their government. No factual information is imparted by writing articles based on such preposterous assumptions.

Speaking editorially, I should say that most newspapermen do not hesitate to say what they think about any public servant, and the poll device, which permits them to express anonymous opinions about public figures, should not be an inducement.

Speaker of the House Sam Rayburn, a bachelor, took seven kids to the circus the other day and reported that he had the time of his life.

The children, all under 10, were the sons and daughters of fellow Texans in the house and senate. Rayburn also took the papas along to help out, but the bald-domed leader of the house had a child balanced on each knee for most of the performance.

If Representative Mary T. Norton, of Jersey City, decides to run for reelection next year, she will face a serious chance of defeat.

Mrs. Norton was elected to congress with the support of the Hague machine of Jersey City in 1924 and has won overwhelming re-election victories since. The Hague machine recently crumbled for the first time in a city election.

Mrs. Norton has not yet announced her political plans for 1950, but she may try for another term if former Mayor Frank Hague needs her help in an attempt to restore his grip on Jersey City politics.

Now 74, Mrs. Norton became the first Democratic woman to be elected to congress when she was victorious initially 25 years ago. In another first, she was the first woman member of the house to become chairman of a legislative committee. She headed the house labor committee, but left it after the Republican congressional victory in 1946. She is now chairman of the house administration committee. She also was once chairman of the Democratic state committee of New Jersey.

Although Mrs. Norton celebrated her 74th birthday in March, according to her biography in Who's Who, she doesn't look like she is more than in her late fifties.

Physically, she probably could handle a tough election fight next year, presuming her present state of health and stamina continues to hold up.

They stayed away from the manufacturers' annual off-the-record conference at Williamsburg, Va., and from their bid dinner for the Aviation Writers Association here last week.

The navy was present in force, probably in tribute to Admiral DeWitt Charles Ramsey, who retired recently to head the Industry's Trade Association.

Typical of the general caution being displayed by military and industry leaders since the congressional uproar over the B-36 was Ramsey's speech. It was devoted largely to habits of Pacific island natives.

NOTEBOOK

NEW YORK, June 4.—(AP)—A letter to any veteran:

Did you ever want to go back, soldier?

Do you wonder sometimes what it is like now in those foreign places where you spilled your youth, and perhaps some blood, in the years of war and waste?

Well, soldier, I'm going back. I've got a two-week furlough to rendezvous with what's gone by. Where did you lose your youth? Tell me, and I'll look for it. Maybe I lost mine there, too, in the same crowded hour. I sure mislaid it somewhere.

Backtracking the war is too big a job for any one person. It was a long war in a wide world, and no man saw it all. But danger, excitement and boredom usually taste the same in different places. It isn't the scenery you remember so much as how you felt. All foxholes got so they looked alike.

The foxholes I'm going back to are in Europe. Were you there, too, soldier?

Can I help peel off some of the past for you? What shall I tell the girls in Piecadilly Circus? Is there someone you want me to look up for you in the cemetery that looks down on Omaha Beach? They say there isn't a red stain on the sands there now, and once there were so many. And a man lying on every stain.

It's June again in the Normandy hedgerows, soldier. Five years don't make much difference to hedgerows. But how the world has changed for the men who fired across them at each other in 1944!

How odd it will be to see live cows grazing in the fields outside St. Lo. Remember, soldier, how it seemed like every cow you saw was dead? And they lay in the shell-pitted pastures with their stiff legs stuck in the air like bloated toy rubber balloons.

The road into St. Lo winds past a calvados factory. It's probably repaired by now. I'll toast you in raw calvados, brother, and you remember that stuff. One drink, one day off your life.

And then, of course, comes Paris, the glory foxhole of all time, the day we went in there the town went crazy, and no Yank could spend a dollar. Bet you can now, hey soldier?

There will be lots of stops along the way. Rheims and Spa and Luxembourg. And others with names a man couldn't pronounce—and now doesn't want to.

One I have in mind is the Hurtgen forest, not so far inside Germany as we'd hoped to be when we got there. Remember the dark, tall trees and the half-light, soldier? Oh, it was a forest of dead men, too, that place was, when we got through it at last and came out and saw the sky again.

Then we're going on to Frankfurt and Berlin, where they are putting brick back on brick again and talking of "the new Germany." They aren't Krauts or Huns or Nazis any more, soldier. They're all Germans again—and peace, isn't it wonderful? It is while it lasts. But it can wear out mighty quick.

Well, soldier, I guess we all have changed as much as the battlefields. There isn't much use in trying to go back to anything in life, but everybody keeps right on trying. Maybe in the next two weeks I'll see a few old ghosts of something we used to know.

And if I do, I'll say hello—and tell them you wish them well.

James Marlow:

NATION TODAY

WASHINGTON, June 4. —(AP)— If you're interested in labor, you'd better polish your eyeglasses and get ready for an awful lot of heavy reading.

The senate, at last, will tackle on Monday the job of trying to write a new labor law.

And once that starts there'll be a flood of words out of Washington on the senate arguments, which may take weeks..

Since there can be no new labor law at all unless both houses approve a bill, once the senate finishes, it will be the turn of the house.

That will take more time, maybe a week or 10 days. And that will mean another torrent of news.

On the eve of the big arguments I don't think there's a man alive who can predict the outcome precisely.

One thing seems sure: Neither President Truman nor organized labor will get from congress the kind of new labor law they wanted.

Both wanted congress to wipe out the Taft-Hartley law, which congress passed in 1947 when the Republicans were in control.

And in its place they wanted congress to restore the old Wagner act, with just a few minor changes.

(The Wagner act, passed in 1935 when the Democrats were in control of congress, put restrictions on management but none on labor.

(The T-H act replaced the Wagner act, put some restrictions on management and put more restrictions on labor than ever before).

In fact, Mr. Truman had promised, now that his Democrats controlled congress, that T-H would be wiped out and the Wagner act brought back.

It didn't work out that way and it doesn't look as if it has a chance of working out that way.

A number of Mr. Truman's own Democrats won't go along with his thinking on what the new labor law should be. And most of the Republicans are against his ideas, too.

So the Trumanites will have the job of trying to get the best deal they can out of whatever happens in the senate and house.

But there is so much divided thinking, among Republicans and Democrats alike, that the new law may be written on the floor through amendments offered while the argument is going on.

What the house may do about a labor bill is even more of a mystery.

Some weeks ago, after 10 days of debate and jockeying, the house was just on the point of approving a new labor bill and sending it to the senate for action when—

Wham, it dropped the whole thing and hasn't brought it up since. There's even a chance that the house won't act at all this year, which would leave the T-H act as is. This seems unlikely, though.

Congress went to work almost six months ago to shape a new labor law—through long committee hearings—but the whole thing has been such a mess and a puzzle that action has been delayed until now.

TEX. YOUTH SERIOUSLY INJURED BY GAS FLAMES

VERNON, Tex., June 4.—(AP)—Donnie Woodard, 10-year-old boy terribly burned by gasoline-fed flames May 10, sank into a coma today.

His family was told to stay close by.

Seventy per cent of the boy's skin was burned away when his older brother accidently flung a bucket of burning gasoline on him while the two were burning weeds at their home here. Physicians have expressed amazement he has continued to live.

Donnie failed to respond to a blood transfusion this morning. He remained in a coma until about 11 a. m. when he rallied briefly to whisper to his father that he felt "fine, thank you." Then he dropped back into the coma.

NEW JERSEY PAPER WINS TOP HONORS

Selected In General Excellence Contest By National Editorial Association

SALT LAKE CITY, June 4.—(AP)—A New Jersey newspaper, the Daily Journal at Elizabeth, won top honors tonight in the daily newspaper division of the General Excellence Contest, sponsored by the National Editorial Association.

In the weekly field top honors went to the Schoharie County Journal of Cobleskill, N. Y.; the Messenger Gazette of Somerville, N. J., and the Times of Montclair, N. J.

The awards were announced at the N. E. A. convention here. Winners disclosed in nine divisions of the association's annual contests.

For general excellence in typography the top two awards for daily newspapers went to the News and Times of Kingsport, Tenn. The News won first place and the Times, published in the same plant, placed second.

Thomas F. Barnhart of the University of Minnesota headed the judging staff for the general excellence contest. He said a number of factors were considered in picking the winners.

"Some newspapers were eliminated," he said, "because of failure to modernize their makeup and typography. Some are still using types that came over in the hold of Noah's Ark."

Lack of pictures and human interest features, failure to cover the local news field adequately, lack of editorial columns brought elimination of others.

"This may surprise many of you," Barnhart commented. "A few newspapers were discarded early in the contest because their columns did not contain a sufficient volume or variety of advertisements from local merchants."

FIRST FOREIGN SHIP REACHES SHANGHAI

SHANGHAI June 4.—(AP)—The Dutch liner Tjibadak arrived today, first foreign vessel to come to Shanghai since the Communists took over.

The ship is due to return to Hong Kong, British colony, Sunday with mail and Chinese passengers. Shipping circles said departures of foreigners were forbidden, presumably as a temporary measure until the new regime can set up visa facilities.

Foreign air lines were continuing efforts to resume service. The fact that the official "Liberation Daily News" has accepetd advertising from the American Northwest Airlines was considered significant, since the Communist paper rejects all advertising it considers nonessential.

(Dispatches from Hong Kong said the British ship Shenking had sailed Saturday for Shanghai with a full load of passengers and cargo. Passengers included at last 25 Chinese cotton mill workers who quit their Hong Kong jobs to take positions in Shanghai.

(Returning to San Francisco from a trip to the Orient, George Killion, president of the American President Lines, said Communist representatives in Hong Kong had "invited us to come back" to Shanghai.

(As a result, he said, the President Polk was due to reach Shanghai next Thursday, and the General Gordon, which sailed from San Francisco, also would call at Shanghai.

(There was no further word, meanwhile, from the south China civil war fronts, where two Communist armies of 600,000 men have been reported marching toward Canton, refugee Nationalist capital. Nearest of the Red drives was still some 300 miles from Canton, whose defenders apparently are outnumbered about two to one.)

with gifts, a gold watch for Miss Key and a gold and silver vanity compact for Mrs. Johnston. Mrs. Cann received an artistic umbrella as token of appreciation for her work through the year.

Mrs. Eulalia McCoy, Central Grammar School teacher, prepared the following poem to suit the occasion, paying tribute to a teacher's career:

When teachers make a life's career
Of training youth to keep apace
And be prepared for life's frontier
They make a mark, time can't efface.

We've known Miss Katie thru the years—
A leader, keen with judgment wise
A friend who shares in smiles or tears—
The best in us, she'd recognize.
The best in us, she'd recognize.

We who have known her ways, I'm sure
Have felt her loyalty and trust—
"My teachers" were her words secure
When faculties would be discussed.

Miss Katie, and Mrs. Johnston, too
Each seem to wear a school-girl smile,
Because with school, they say they're thru.
But we will miss them all the while.

May all your plans be carried thru
And be a joyous holiday
Of pleasure, seeking interests new;
This is the wish our gifts convey.

The Sunday American—Statesman, of Austin, Tex., has just carried an extended writeup of Dr. C. C. Colvert, former N. J. C. dean, lauding his work for junior colleges that are operated by Texas University where he is professor and consultant in this line.

He is quoted as stating that there should be 100 such colleges in Texas whereas there are now only 34. His outstanding work is being appreciated not only by his university but throughout the entire state, the article states.

Ever with a sense of humor the story related that Dr. Colvert met a judge, upon arriving in Louisiana, and was asked where he was from. Dr. Colvert explained that he was born in Texas, grew up in Arkansas, and had come to Louisiana to work. And the judge declared:

"You're going to hell so gradually, you won't know it when you get there."

The Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Immigraiton still issues a weekly market bulletin, free of charge and sent to all in the state who are interested. It was established by the late Harry D. Wilson and made unnumbered friends for that popular official. His successor W. E. Anderson, seems to be keeping up the reputation that his predecessor established. If it is cows, pigs, sheep, donkeys, mules or canary birds that are on the market or up for a trade, these are listed free of all cost. It is quite often that such deals are listed as "black jack white nose to trade for yearlings or chickens." Another says, guinea pigs and even those new hamsters are included in listings. Someone else would part with guinea pigs all colors and sizes to trade for baby turkeys.

El Karubah Temple will assemble in Monroe for a ceremonial June 15 and representation is expected from all leading cities of Louisiana, and also some from Arkansas and Mississippi. This will be the first time that a ceremonial has been held in Monroe and a big time is planned.

There will be plenty of entertainment, unusual stunts and a generally delightful time enjoyed, state those in charge, a street parade is planned in the afternoon; with the ceremonial in Neville High School auditorium at 3 p. m. Then there will be a novices and nobles supper and the ceremonial ball will be held in Hotel Frances starting at 9 p. m. with the music furnished by Noble Sam Wimbish's orchestra. The slogan is "Our Hospitality Isn't to Be Beaten."

Good common sense employed in the interpreting of history was embodied in the commencement address of Dr. H. J. Sachs, before the Ouachita Parish High School Friday night. Among other things he declared that times have undergone tremendous changes since the turn of the century. We have gone a long ways but no one would want to return to the old days he said. For example in 1900 only a comparatively few belonged to labor unions. They were regarded with suspicion by a great mass of people. But today he said one-third of the people of the country are members of a union or indirectly connected with one.

Dr. Sachs declared that unions are needed and have their place although he decried violence and strikes and extremes to which they sometimes resort.

In 1929, he said we were a little like we now are in 1949. Then we were at the top of the peak. We had won a war and had enjoyed unusual economic prosperity, but right around the corner in the thirties came the worst depression that was spread over the world.

We can never go through another depression and third world war and still maintain our democracy and capitalism, he declared.

In his closing he urged that we maintan capitalism and democracy for these elements have built our nation up to a point where it is a great governing power of the universe. But each one must do these things that will maintain democracy for on that all our future depends, he declared.

LITTLE AGREEMENT

Lorraine, where he is to make a speech tomorrow. Two of his chief assistants followed through at the meeting for him.

The meeting was the second of a series of secret sessions, from which reporters do not receive a briefing by official observers. A communique was issued saying:

"The foreign ministers, with Secretary of State Dean Acheson in the chair, continued in closed session today the discussion of the proposals of the United States and the U. S. S. R. relative to Berlin. The next meeting will be June 6 (Monday)."

Experienced observers interpreted the plan for the Monday meeting in itself as meaning some progress.

A French spokesman said the meeting was "less satisfactory" than yesterday. He said, "we discussed for a longer time today what we discussed yesterday."

This meant it was concerned with the voting procedure and powers of a revived allied kommandatura, or governing body.

Acheson has proposed a limitation of the veto in the kommandatura and has favored shedding a large share of routine administrative responsibility upon a German city government.

Western informants said the "area of agreement" between Russia and the west consisted of this: Both sides accept the broad principles that the kommandatura should be revived and that the new city-wide elections should be held to choose an all-Berlin government.

Acheson, British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and Schuman were also reported exploring a hint dropped by Vishinsky a few days ago that he would consider giving more power to such a government.

If only the question of who is to collect Berlin's garbage were involved, the ministers might come to a quick settlement. But Berlin has become a to'n of who is winning the cold war, and neither side wants to display any weakness publicly.

Russia, knowing that she is outvoted by the three western powers, has expressed determination to cling to the veto. Under Russian vetoes, four-power rule of the city finally collapsed, and Berlin became a dual city, a canker to the cause of world peace.

Moreover, it is a question how far Vishinsky could go in meeting the conditions for free elections, which western authorities say would go heavily against the Communists.

It has not been an encouraging sign that the four Berlin sector commanders continue to disagree on settlement of the city's railway strike.

There were signs of activity—without definite signs of progress—on another front of negotiation, the treaty for Austria.

The deputy foreign ministers who have been handling this question submitted their findings to their ministers today. They have been working several days, deciding of which of the 16 points at issue they agreed and on what points they disagreed.

They have made previous reports at meetings of the foreign ministers without finding enough in common to write a treaty.

Dr. Karl Gruber, Austrian foreign minister, arrived in Paris to urge the foreign ministers to complete the treaty and rid Austria of occupation troops.

industry and recommended the creation of the panel. Now they are the panel. The agency is designed to prevent interruptions of work in the vital portions of the atomic industry.

The current dispute is between a local union of the C. I. O. Chemical Workers and the Carbide and Carbon Chemicals Corporation, which operates all the federal-owned plants at Oak Ridge. This dispute, involving wages and other benefits, is in plant K-25, where uranium is produced by the gaseous diffusion process.

The local union has voted to strike Thursday when its contract ends. The national union gave its approval yesterday. But Martin Wagner, national president of the union, made it clear to a reporter that if the new federal panel is ready in time, and enters the case, the strike will be called off.

Today Wagner said that's still the position of the national union—"we're certainly not going to flout the authority of that panel." But he told a reporter the Oak Ridge workers have been so "kicked around" that he is not sure whether they will be willing to call off their strike unless the company "starts negotiating in good faith."

Wagner declined to comment today when told that Witte and Horvitz had been appointed.

The panel will have no force of law behind it, but will depend on advance agreements made by the unions and companies of the industry not to interrupt operations in any dispute unless the panel refuses to take the case, or, having taken it, completes a lengthy series of procedures. These procedures could last anywhere from three months up, if no settlement is reached in the meantime.

The union and the company involved in the current dispute have both made an agreement.

Charles G. Ross, White House press secretary, was asked if the panel would take over the Oak Ridge case. He said, "that's up to them." Yesterday Davis told a reporter that if the situation became "acute enough," he would be available for service even before the appointment of two more members.

Gates refused on the ground that they were employed in private industry and that if he divulged their names they would lose their jobs.

Federal Judge Harold R. Medina, who has had frequent brushes with the defense attorneys and the defendants, held Gates guilty of contempt. He ordered him jailed for 30 days, or until he agrees to answer the question.

Hall and Winston were ordered jailed for the rest of the trial when they leaped to their feet and bitterly denounced the judge's action. The three, along with their co-defendants, had been free on $5,000 bail each.

Later, defense counsel made two vain efforts to get other federal judges to grant new bail for the jailed men. It is expected that the action will be renewed before a full three-judge session of the circuit court of appeals Monday.

Neighbors Order Negroes In White Section To Move

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 4.—(AP)—A Negro family living in an area zoned for whites reported receipt of a threatening letter through the mails late today.

It was the second threat received by Negroes in that area in less than 24 hours.

"If you do not move out, we will send you somewhere, heaven or hell," part of the letter read. It was received by the Rev. E. B. Deyampert, a Negro minister.

The first threat was in the form of a telephone call to the wife of another Negro minister, the Rev. Milton Curry, Jr. The Curry family lives next door to Deyampert.

Mrs. Curry said a woman told her: "If you don't get out of there, you—, we'll blow you out."

Deyampert and Curry live near where three unoccupied homes bought by Negroes were dynamited the night of March 24. The area is in north Smithfield, on Birmingham's west side, where white and Negro sections adjoin.

A police car has been stationed there since the Currys moved into the house Wednesday.

Attorney Arthur Shores, who represents Curry, said the letter to Deyampert would be turned over to the F. B. I. The F. B. I. would decide whether the letter would be turned over to postal authorities, Shores added.

The letter said:

"We regret that you don't have any place to go. But we will give you a clue. If you do not move out, we will send you somewhere, heaven or hell.

"You will have the opportunity of deciding which place it will be. But we are of the opinion as long as you continue to be the cause of trouble it may not be heaven.

"You and everyone else knows you are stalling and are just making a test case of it. We will see to it that the test comes out right.

"The city can hardly afford a couple of cops to guard you always."

The letter was signed "an advisor of what is to come."

Meanwhile, Commisioner James W. Morgan said a committee of leading white citizens met with him this morning to seek a solution to the problems. He did not disclose names of committeemen or their number.

Morgan said the committee will meet again early next week.

"We're very hopeful of reaching a solution that will settle this problem peacefully and that will be satisfactory to all parties concerned," he said.

The Birmingham branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People yesterday wired President Truman asking for assistance. The wire contended that civil liberties of Negro citizens are threatened.

A White House aide said today the appeal had been referred to David Niles, administrative assistant who handles minority problems for Mr. Truman.

"We don't know how long the children were in the box." Hardin said. He added:

Mrs. Chastain said she left home at 1 p. m. yesterday to chop cotton in a field. When she returned about six o'clock, the children were missing. A groan attracted her to the unused ice box.

The Ramsey girl was the daughter of Mrs. Ethel Ramsey, a neighbor.

None of the neighbors recalled hearing any commotion at the house, Hardin said. The father of the Chastain children also was working in a field, Hardin said.

RED NEWSPAPER HITS CATHOLIC

Says Communists Will Not Stand For Traitors Who Wear Consecrated Garb

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, June 4.—(AP)—The official Communist newspaper Rude Pravo added its voice today to denunciation of the Roman Catholic hierarchy and the Vatican.

It repeated, ominously, the statement of Information Minister Vaclaw Kopecky before a Communist party congress last week that "we shall not let anyone remain in doubt: We will not stand for high traitors even if they wear consecrated garb."

Rude Pravo is required reading for every Czechoslovak Communist. It not only reflects high government opinion but, with powerful Communist policy makers among its staff, it often moulds opinion.

It had kept silent until now on the church-state arguments, which currently concern education.

Although the article concluded with a statement that questions must be solved "in the interest of further peaceful evolution of the church-political matters," it bristled with statements intended to show that the solution would be on state terms:

"The Vatican proves daily by its policy that it stands in the camp of Imperialists. Its political interests aim against the people's democracies.

"External influences, like in Poland and Hungary, tried to use the ideological influence of the church against the people's democracy and do not stop even at misusing the religious sentiments of the people.

"No state will stand for it that, on its territory, some other organization would publish decrees and directives which are contrary to the constitution and laws of the state. Such cases happened. Therefore the ministry of schools was forced to announce that all decrees, directives, personnel announcements and all other official church reports are valid only in case they are published in the official Gazette of the Catholic clergy, published by the ministry of schools.

"Clergymen, as citizens of our state, have the same civil rights as others, but they have also the same civil duties."

of state certified it. To be doubly sure that it was legally in order, sponsors of the petition submitted it to the attorney general for his opinion, it was said.

Under procedure in such matters, the election will be held and if it is voted to recall Fuller, the governor will appoint a successor.

(Returning to San Francisco from a trip to the Orient, George Killion, president of the American President Lines, said Communist representatives in Hong Kong had "invited us to come back" to Shanghai.

(As a result, he said, the President Polk was due to reach Shanghai next Thursday, and the General Gordon, which sailed from San Francisco, also would call at Shanghai.

(There was no further word, meanwhile, from the south China civil war fronts, where two Communist armies of 600,000 men have been reported marching toward Canton, refugee Nationalist capital. Nearest of the Red drives was still some 300 miles from Canton, whose defenders apparently are outnumbered about two to one.)

with gifts, a gold watch for Miss Key and a gold and silver vanity compact for Mrs. Johnston. Mrs. Cann received an artistic umbrella as token of appreciation for her work through the year.

Mrs. Eulalia McCoy, Central Grammar School teacher, prepared the following poem to suit the occasion, paying tribute to a teacher's career:

When teachers make a life's career
Of training youth to keep apace
And be prepared for life's frontier
They make a mark, time can't efface.

We've known Miss Katie thru the years—
A leader, keen with judgment wise
A friend who shares in smiles or tears—
The best in us, she'd recognize.
The best in us, she'd recognize.

We who have known her ways, I'm sure
Have felt her loyalty and trust—
"My teachers" were her words secure
When faculties would be discussed.

Miss Katie, and Mrs. Johnston, too
Each seem to wear a school-girl smile,
Because with school, they say they're thru.
But we will miss them all the while.

May all your plans be carried thru
And be a joyous holiday
Of pleasure, seeking interests new;
This is the wish our gifts convey.

The Sunday American—Statesman, of Austin, Tex., has just carried an extended writeup of Dr. C. C. Colvert, former N. J. C. dean, lauding his work for junior colleges that are operated by Texas University where he is professor and consultant in this line.

He is quoted as stating that there should be 100 such colleges in Texas whereas there are now only 34. His outstanding work is being appreciated not only by his university but throughout the entire state, the article states.

Ever with a sense of humor the story related that Dr. Colvert met a judge, upon arriving in Louisiana, and was asked where he was from. Dr. Colvert explained that he was born in Texas, grew up in Arkansas, and had come to Louisiana to work. And the judge declared:

"You're going to hell so gradually, you won't know it when you get there."

The Louisiana Department of Agriculture and Immigraiton still issues a weekly market bulletin, free of charge and sent to all in the state who are interested. It was established by the late Harry D. Wilson and made unnumbered friends for that popular official. His successor W. E. Anderson, seems to be keeping up the reputation that his predecessor established. If it is cows, pigs, sheep, donkeys, mules or canary birds that are on the market or up for a trade, these are listed free of all cost. It is quite often that such deals are listed as "black jack white nose to trade for yearlings or chickens." Another says, guinea pigs and even those new hamsters are included in listings. Someone else would part with guinea pigs all colors and sizes to trade for baby turkeys.

El Karubah Temple will assemble in Monroe for a ceremonial June 15 and representation is expected from all leading cities of Louisiana, and also some from Arkansas and Mississippi. This will be the first time that a ceremonial has been held in Monroe and a big time is planned.

There will be plenty of entertainment, unusual stunts and a generally delightful time enjoyed, state those in charge, a street parade is planned in the afternoon; with the ceremonial in Neville High School auditorium at 3 p. m. Then there will be a novices and nobles supper and the ceremonial ball will be held in Hotel Frances starting at 9 p. m. with the music furnished by Noble Sam Wimbish's orchestra. The slogan is "Our Hospitality Isn't to Be Beaten."

Good common sense employed in the interpreting of history was embodied in the commencement address of Dr. H. J. Sachs, before the Ouachita Parish High School Friday night. Among other things he declared that times have undergone tremendous changes since the turn of the century. We have gone a long ways but no one would want to return to the old days he said. For example in 1900 only a comparatively few belonged to labor unions. They were regarded with suspicion by a great mass of people. But today he said one-third of the people of the country are members of a union or indirectly connected with one.

Dr. Sachs declared that unions are needed and have their place although he decried violence and strikes and extremes to which they sometimes resort.

In 1929, he said we were a little like we now are in 1949. Then we were at the top of the peak. We had won a war and had enjoyed unusual economic prosperity, but right around the corner in the thirties came the worst depression that was spread over the world.

We can never go through another depression and third world war and still maintain our democracy and capitalism, he declared.

In his closing he urged that we maintan capitalism and democracy for these elements have built our nation up to a point where it is a great governing power of the universe. But each one must do these things that will maintain democracy for on that all our future depends, he declared.

LITTLE AGREEMENT

Lorraine, where he is to make a speech tomorrow. Two of his chief assistants followed through at the meeting for him.

The meeting was the second of a series of secret sessions, from which reporters do not receive a briefing by official observers. A communique was issued saying:

"The foreign ministers, with Secretary of State Dean Acheson in the chair, continued in closed session today the discussion of the proposals of the United States and the U. S. S. R. relative to Berlin. The next meeting will be June 6 (Monday)."

Experienced observers interpreted the plan for the Monday meeting in itself as meaning some progress.

A French spokesman said the meeting was "less satisfactory" than yesterday. He said, "we discussed for a longer time today what we discussed yesterday."

This meant it was concerned with the voting procedure and powers of a revived allied kommandatura, or governing body.

Acheson has proposed a limitation of the veto in the kommandatura and has favored shedding a large share of routine administrative responsibility upon a German city government.

Western informants said the "area of agreement" between Russia and the west consisted of this: Both sides accept the broad principles that the kommandatura should be revived and that the new city-wide elections should be held to choose an all-Berlin government.

Acheson, British Foreign Secretary Ernest Bevin and Schuman were also reported exploring a hint dropped by Vishinsky a few days ago that he would consider giving more power to such a government.

If only the question of who is to collect Berlin's garbage were involved, the ministers might come to a quick settlement. But Berlin has become a to' n of who is winning the cold war, and neither side wants to display any weakness publicly.

Russia, knowing that she is outvoted by the three western powers, has expressed determination to cling to the veto. Under Russian vetoes, four-power rule of the city finally collapsed, and Berlin became a dual city, a canker to the cause of world peace.

Moreover, it is a question how far Vishinsky could go in meeting the conditions for free elections, which western authorities say would go heavily against the Communists.

It has not been an encouraging sign that the four Berlin sector commanders continue to disagree on settlement of the city's railway strike.

There were signs of activity—without definite signs of progress—on another front of negotiation, the treaty for Austria.

The deputy foreign ministers who have been handling this question submitted their findings to their ministers today. They have been working several days, deciding of which of the 16 points at issue they agreed and on what points they disagreed.

They have made previous reports at meetings of the foreign ministers without finding enough in common to write a treaty.

Dr. Karl Gruber, Austrian foreign minister, arrived in Paris to urge the foreign ministers to complete the treaty and rid Austria of occupation troops.

industry and recommended the creation of the panel. Now they are the panel. The agency is designed to prevent interruptions of work in the vital portions of the atomic industry.

The current dispute is between a local union of the C. I. O. Chemical Workers and the Carbide and Carbon Chemicals Corporation, which operates all the federal-owned plants at Oak Ridge. This dispute, involving wages and other benefits, is in plant K-25, where uranium is produced by the gaseous diffusion process.

The local union has voted to strike Thursday when its contract ends. The national union gave its approval yesterday. But Martin Wagner, national president of the union, made it clear to a reporter that if the new federal panel is ready in time, and enters the case, the strike will be called off.

Today Wagner said that's still the position of the national union—"we're certainly not going to flout the authority of that panel." But he told a reporter the Oak Ridge workers have been so "kicked around" that he is not sure whether they will be willing to call off their strike unless the company "starts negotiating in good faith."

Wagner declined to comment today when told that Witte and Horvitz had been appointed.

The panel will have no force of law behind it, but will depend on advance agreements made by the unions and companies of the industry not to interrupt operations in any dispute unless the panel refuses to take the case, or, having taken it, completes a lengthy series of procedures. These procedures could last anywhere from three months up, if no settlement is reached in the meantime.

The union and the company involved in the current dispute have both made an agreement.

Charles G. Ross, White House press secretary, was asked if the panel would take over the Oak Ridge case. He said, "that's up to them." Yesterday Davis told a reporter that if the situation became "acute enough," he would be available for service even before the appointment of two more members.

Gates refused on the ground that they were employed in private industry and that if he divulged their names they would lose their jobs.

Federal Judge Harold R. Medina, who has had frequent brushes with the defense attorneys and the defendants, held Gates guilty of contempt. He ordered him jailed for 30 days, or until he agrees to answer the question.

Hall and Winston were ordered jailed for the rest of the trial when they leaped to their feet and bitterly denounced the judge's action. The three, along with their co-defendants, had been free on $5,000 bail each.

Later, defense counsel made two vain efforts to get other federal judges to grant new bail for the jailed men. It is expected that the action will be renewed before a full three-judge session of the circuit court of appeals Monday.

Neighbors Order Negroes In White Section To Move

BIRMINGHAM, Ala., June 4.—(AP)—A Negro family living in an area zoned for whites reported receipt of a threatening letter through the mails late today.

It was the second threat received by Negroes in that area in less than 24 hours.

"If you do not move out, we will send you somewhere, heaven or hell," part of the letter read. It was received by the Rev. E. B. Deyampert, a Negro minister.

The first threat was in the form of a telephone call to the wife of another Negro minister, the Rev. Milton Curry, Jr. The Curry family lives next door to Deyampert.

Mrs. Curry said a woman told her: "If you don't get out of there, you—, we'll blow you out."

Deyampert and Curry live near where three unoccupied homes bought by Negroes were dynamited the night of March 24. The area is in north Smithfield, on Birmingham's west side, where white and Negro sections adjoin.

A police car has been stationed there since the Currys moved into the house Wednesday.

Attorney Arthur Shores, who represents Curry, said the letter to Deyampert would be turned over to the F. B. I. The F. B. I. would decide whether the letter would be turned over to postal authorities, Shores added.

The letter said:

"We regret that you don't have any place to go. But we will give you a clue. If you do not move out, we will send you somewhere, heaven or hell.

"You will have the opportunity of deciding which place it will be. But we are of the opinion as long as you continue to be the cause of trouble it may not be heaven.

"You and everyone else knows you are stalling and are just making a test case of it. We will see to it that the test comes out right.

"The city can hardly afford a couple of cops to guard you always."

The letter was signed "an advisor of what is to come."

Meanwhile, Commisioner James W. Morgan said a committee of leading white citizens met with him this morning to seek a solution to the problems. He did not disclose names of committeemen or their number.

Morgan said the committee will meet again early next week.

"We're very hopeful of reaching a solution that will settle this problem peacefully and that will be satisfactory to all parties concerned," he said.

The Birmingham branch of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People yesterday wired President Truman asking for assistance. The wire contended that civil liberties of Negro citizens are threatened.

A White House aide said today the appeal had been referred to David Niles, administrative assistant who handles minority problems for Mr. Truman.

possible she received some of the bruises in the ice box.

"We don't know how long the children were in the box." Hardin said. He added:

Mrs. Chastain said she left home at 1 p. m. yesterday to chop cotton in a field. When she returned about six o'clock, the children were missing. A groan attracted her to the unused ice box.

The Ramsey girl was the daughter of Mrs. Ethel Ramsey, a neighbor.

None of the neighbors recalled hearing any commotion at the house, Hardin said. The father of the Chastain children also was working in a field, Hardin said.

RED NEWSPAPER HITS CATHOLIC

Says Communists Will Not Stand For Traitors Who Wear Consecrated Garb

PRAGUE, Czechoslovakia, June 4.—(AP)—The official Communist newspaper Rude Pravo added its voice today to denunciation of the Roman Catholic hierarchy and the Vatican.

It repeated, ominously, the statement of Information Minister Vaclaw Kopecky before a Communist party congress last week that "we shall not let anyone remain in doubt: We will not stand for high traitors even if they wear consecrated garb."

Rude Pravo is required reading for every Czechoslovak Communist. It not only reflects high government opinion but, with powerful Communist policy makers among its staff, it often moulds opinion.

It had kept silent until now on the church-state arguments, which currently concern education.

Although the article concluded with a statement that questions must be solved "in the interest of further peaceful evolution of the church-political matters," it bristled with statements intended to show that the solution would be on state terms:

"The Vatican proves daily by its policy that it stands in the camp of Imperialists. Its political interests aim against the people's democracies.

"External influences, like in Poland and Hungary, tried to use the ideological influence of the church against the people's democracy and do not stop even at misusing the religious sentiments of the people.

"No state will stand for it that, on its territory, some other organization would publish decrees and directives which are contrary to the constitution and laws of the state. Such cases happened. Therefore the ministry of schools was forced to announce that all decrees, directives, personnel announcements and all other official church reports are valid only in case they are published in the official Gazette of the Catholic clergy, published by the ministry of schools.

"Clergymen, as citizens of our state, have the same civil rights as others, but they have also the same civil duties."

of state certified it. To be doubly sure that it was legally in order, sponsors of the petition submitted it to the attorney general for his opinion, it was said.

Under procedure in such matters, the election will be held and if it is voted to recall Fuller, the governor will appoint a successor.

CHOIR DONATIONS NEAR FINAL GOAL

Need Only $366 To Prevent Delay In Last Minute Arrangements

Contributions to the O. P. H. S. Choir Fund received during the past three days have brought the total to $21,833.24, leaving only $366.76 yet to be raised to insure the trip to Wales.

While everyone feels confident that this small sum can easily be raised, it was pointed out by Chamber of Commerce officials Saturday that the party is scheduled to leave Monroe next Wednesday evening, June 8, and that the remainder of the money should be in hand immediately. Otherwise, the rush of last minute preparations will be hampered.

Miss Velma Nichols, director of the choir, has received another letter from Miss Lois Radley, an American who is teaching school in Llangollen this year on an exchange teacher arrangement, who points out that the Monroe group, being the only American choir to attend, is "the most talked of choir of all that are coming." Her letter to Miss Nichols is as follows:

"Mr. Williams has just informed me that you have raised enough money for a part of your choir to come to Llangollen. I am so glad that some of you will be able to be here and do hope that you will enjoy your stay.

"He says that you will be arriving Saturday, June 11. As plans are now, I shall be in Ireland that week end and will return on Monday, June 13. So I am very sorry that I will not be able to meet you when you arrive. We will have school on Tuesday, June 14, then will have the rest of the week off, so anything that I can do for you after 3:30 p. m. on Tuesday I will be more than glad to do.

"We had two very warm weeks the first part of May—the temperature up to 70 degrees. But the last two weeks have been cold and rainy—temperature between 50 degrees and 60 degrees. I do hope the weather will be warmer for the Eisteddfod. Did I mention that it would be wise to bring a light raincoat?

"All are anxious to hear the Americans sing—and anxious to look at you, too. To many over here, America is rather a storybook land. Have a good flight and journey to North Wales.

"Most sincerely,
Lois Radley."

Contributions have been received during the past few days from the following: M. G. Moore's Tailoring, Dr. D. L. Anderson, Mrs. J. E. Mayes, Delta Motors, Inc., H. F. Madison, Jr., F. Varino, H. Other contributors are urged to mail or bring their contributions to the Chamber of Commerce office without further delay, in order that final arrangements for the trip to Wales may be completed by the first of the week.

TALENTED PIANIST

JANE WALLACE

JANE WALLACE TO ENTER SOLO EVENT

Talented Member of Ensemble To Enter Piano Contest In Wales

Jane Wallace, 15-year-old daughter of Mrs. Frank Collins, West Monroe, will enter the piano soloists' division of the International Music Festival to be held at Llangollen, Wales this month. She will attend the festival as a member of the Ouachita High School's Ensemble, which is scheduled to leave for Wales next Wednesday.

Miss Wallace, who just completed her junior year at the parish high school, has studied piano for the past ten years, the greatest part of that time under the direction of Mrs. Florence Zeigler Allbritton.

When symphony conductor and pianist, Rudolph Ganz, made his appearance in Monroe last winter, Miss Wallace auditioned for him. Mr. Ganz was greatly impressed with the musicianship displayed by the young artist, and complimented her very highly, urging her to continue with her musical studies.

While it has not yet been determined where she will go to college, Miss Wallace is definite in her decision to continue her musical education at some university.

For the past three years she has acted as the student accompanist for the Parish High School Choir, and in addition has been one of its most dependable voices. She is a member of the ensemble which will compete in the Eisteddfod in Wales this month, and like all the other members she is looking forward to the trip with much enthusiasm. The two required numbers she will play in the pianists' competition are Sandor Veress' "Cadi Ha" and Edvard Grieg's "Humoresque."

NEW MILITARY PAY BILL INTRODUCED

Corporals Would Get Bigger Percentage Pay Boost Than Officers

By Howard Dobson

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(AP)—A new military pay bill giving corporals with over seven years service a bigger percentage boost than officers was announced today by the house armed services committee.

But all members of the armed forces would get more money under the revised measure, including recruits who were left out of the original pay increase bill the house shelved less than two weeks ago.

Representative Kilday (D-Tex.), who was in charge of drafting both proposals, told reporters the new plan would cost about $358,000,000 a year more than present military pay outlays, as compared with the $406,000,000 price tag on the rejected measure.

He said he will introduce the compromise bill Monday and that his armed services subcommittee will hold a brief hearing Tuesday to allow members of congress to express their views. He said the bill will be ready for house action during the week of June 13.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) of the armed services committee said the new bill had the support of house Democratic leaders and predicted it will get a favorable vote in the house.

However, the bill was not enthusiastically greeted by one World War II veteran, Representative Sutton (D-Tenn.), who helped bat down the original pay measure May 24. The old bill was sent back to the committee by a roll call vote of 227 to 163.

Sutton said he disapproves of the new plan for the same reason that he fought the first one: Because it would increase higher ranking officers by a larger percentage than junior officers.

"I hope the committee will reconsider," he said. "To me, an equitable pay scale for the younger officers is more important than the total cost of the bill."

The revised measure would provide generally smaller percentage increases than the original measure. For example, brigadier generals would be upped 37 per cent instead of almost 50 per cent; major generals, 23 per cent instead of 34 per cent, and colonels, 20 instead of about 25 per cent.

Corporals, however, who have been in service more than seven years, would get a 69 per cent pay hike. Those with less service would receive 26 per cent more as compared with 28 per cent provided in the old bill.

Recruits still would start in at $75 a month, but after four months they would draw $80. Under the original plan no increase was scheduled for them.

Kilday said the new bill would continue the wartime family allowances for enlisted men through their current enlistments, but these would be cut out after July 1, 1952. The new measure would provide bonus payments for hazardous assignments such as flight and submarine duty but at a lower scale. Foreign and sea duty bonuses for officers, however, would be eliminated.

Here is a comparison of the basic pay schedules, which although figured on an army rating apply to all the services:

STEAMSHIP BEING HELPED TO SAFETY

MIAMI, Fla., June 4.—(AP)—The steamship Flagship Sinco was being towed toward Charleston, S. C., today, wallowing in heavy seas like an injured whale.

Coast Guard cutters Mocoma and Aurora escorted the distressed vessel, ready to give assistance if she settled any deeper in the water.

Her engine room was flooded to a depth of about 20 feet when a casing broke. It was estimated she was drawing 40 to 45 feet of water. Maritime men termed this a "serious but not fatal loss of buoyancy."

The 10,803-ton flagship of the Sinclair Oil Company tanker fleet was taken in tow by the tug Marion Moran at 10 a. m. (E. S. T.). Plans were made to put portable pumps aboard if weather permitted.

The skipper, Capt. J. H. Tibbetts radioed "Believe we have achieved buoyancy. Do not believe we will settle any farther."

The tanker then was about 100 miles due east of Jacksonville. It was estimated she could enter Charleston if sufficient water was pumped from the engine room. Otherwise the ship probably will be towed to Norfolk.

The crew of 42 men remained aboard the Flagship Sinco as they had since she first flashed a distress call early yesterday.

Captain Tibbetts reported inrushing water disabled her and all electrical power failed. The Coast Guard cutter Blackhaw, out of Charleston, took her in tow last night. But the hawser broke under the impact of high seas and northerly winds and towing attempts were halted until daylight.

The Flagship Sinco was fully loaded and enroue from Corpus Christi, Texas, to Marcus Hook, Pa., when water first started pouring in from a hole in the cold water circulator.

The date at which gunpowder was first used in artillery in battle is uncertain, but is believed to be 1331.

Plan Extensive Tests On Air Raid Warning System

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(AP)—Secretary of Defense Johnson announced plans today for the most extensive test of the nation's air raid warning system since the war.

Over 26,000 civilian volunteers are slated to take part in "operation lookout" which will be conducted next September in a 10-state east coast area ranging from Portland, Me., to Wilmington, Delaware.

The civilian spotters are to work with military personnel assigned to radar detection stations set up along the eastern seaboard in what Johnson called a "test of long-range emergency air raid defense plans."

Plans for the six-day mock war were worked out by the military establishment and the office of civil defense planning headed by Aubrey H. Mellinger.

The actual test will be supervised by the air defense command at Mitchell Air Force base, New York, with the O. C. D. P. handling the recruiting of the civilian ground spotters in cooperation with state defense officials in the raid area.

Noting the "important service" rendered by civilian plane spotters during the last war, Johnson said "volunteer observers would have an even more valuable function in the event of any future emergency" because the "possibility of air attacks in another war has greatly increased."

The defense secretary pointed out that "existing radar detectors or even the more extensive screen" voted by congress "do not provide complete surveillance of approaching aircraft." The reason for this, he said is that "the curvature of the earth permits airplanes to fly relatively close" to a radar station "before entering the straight-line scope of the detector."

"In the event of an emergency," Johnson said, "ground observers would be invaluable in spotting aircraft flying below the vision of each radar sight." He added that the civilian volunteers will be posted at 1,300 ground observation spots from which they will telephone reports of the "enemy" air moves to filter centers. These centers then will relay the coordinated "plots" of the location, altitude and speed of the attacking planes to air defense control centers.

The observation posts will be strung out five or six miles apart along the 10-state area, with about 20 persons assigned to each spotting location.

Between June 30 and September 1, these volunteers will receive special training courses by mail under the direction of Maj. Gen. Gordon P. Saville, chief of the air defense command.

Johnson's announcement said that the civilian personnel selected "will necessarily have to be those who are generally ineligible for military service." And, he added, they "will be asked to man their posts in all future times of need."

ORGANIZING LIBRARY PLAN IN CATAHOULA

JONESVILLE, June 4.—(Special)—Sallie Farrell, field worker of the state library, and Mrs. Rubie M. Hanks, Winn parish librarian, are now in Catahoula to set up a one-year library demonstration. The library, with branch offices at Harrisonburg, Jonesville and Sicily Island, and a bookmobile to cover the parish, is expected to be in operation early in July.

RAYVILLE FARMER TO FACE RAPE CHARGES

A 44-year-old Richland parish farmer, charged with aggravated rape of two young sisters, 12 and 16 years old, is being held in the Ouachita parish jail without bond for Rayville authorities.

The farmer, Fred S. Sterrett, was arrested by local authorities for Richland parish shortly after they were notified of his whereabouts.

Sheriff Foster Jones, of Rayville, said earlier this week a full report of the case had not been completed and the doctor's report on the youngest girl had not been received.

Following Sterrett's incarceration, the Richland parish sheriff department mailed a warrant issued by K. E. Batman, a ward two justice of the peace, to the sheriff's office in Monroe.

Sterrett lived four miles north of Rayville, and authorities there said he was allegedly living with the mother of the two young girls he is charged with raping.

The 12-year-old girl is being treated for burns at the Conway Memorial Hospital where she is a patient.

Sheriff Jones could not be contacted by telephone for details late Saturday.

CHOIR DONATIONS NEAR FINAL GOAL

Need Only $366 To Prevent Delay In Last Minute Arrangements

Contributions to the O. P. H. S. Choir Fund received during the past three days have brought the total to $21,833.24, leaving only $366.76 yet to be raised to insure the trip to Wales.

While everyone feels confident that this small sum can easily be raised, it was pointed out by Chamber of Commerce officials Saturday that the party is scheduled to leave Monroe next Wednesday evening, June 8, and that the remainder of the money should be in hand immediately. Otherwise, the rush of last minute preparations will be hampered.

Miss Velma Nichols, director of the choir, has received another letter from Miss Lois Radley, an American who is teaching school in Llangollen this year on an exchange teacher arrangement, who points out that the Monroe group, being the only American choir to attend, is "the most talked of choir of all that are coming." Her letter to Miss Nichols is as follows:

"Mr. Williams has just informed me that you have raised enough money for a part of your choir to come to Llangollen. I am so glad that some of you will be able to be here and do hope that you will enjoy your stay.

"He says that you will be arriving Saturday, June 11. As plans are now, I shall be in Ireland that week end and will return on Monday, June 13. So I am very sorry that I will not be able to meet you when you arrive. We will have school on Tuesday, June 14, then will have the rest of the week off, so anything that I can do for you after 3:30 p. m. on Tuesday I will be more than glad to do.

"We had two very warm weeks the first part of May—the temperature up to 70 degrees. But the last two weeks have been cold and rainy—temperature between 50 degrees and 60 degrees. I do hope the weather will be warmer for the Eisteddfod. Did I mention that it would be wise to bring a light raincoat?

"All are anxious to hear the Americans sing—and anxious to look at you, too. To many over here, America is rather a storybook land. Have a good flight and journey to North Wales.

"Most sincerely,
Lois Radley."

Contributions have been received during the past few days from the following: M. G. Moore's Tailoring, Dr. D. L. Anderson, Mrs. J. E. Mayes, Delta Motors, Inc., H. F. Madison, Jr., F. Varino, H. Norris, Ivey Norris, Mrs. Rogers, Robert E. Ervin, Zagone Grocery, Teelback Grocery, Mrs. DeFreese, Lucien Webb, Bobashelas Book Club and Mrs. Hilton Wilkerson.

Other contributors are urged to mail or bring their contributions to the Chamber of Commerce office without further delay, in order that final arrangements for the trip to Wales may be completed by the first of the week.

TALENTED PIANIST

JANE WALLACE

Talented Member of Ensemble To Enter Piano Contest In Wales

Jane Wallace, 15-year-old daughter of Mrs. Frank Collins, West Monroe, will enter the piano soloists' division of the International Music Festival to be held at Llangollen, Wales this month. She will attend the festival as a member of the Ouachita High School's Ensemble, which is scheduled to leave for Wales next Wednesday.

Miss Wallace, who just completed her junior year at the parish high school, has studied piano for the past ten years, the greatest part of that time under the direction of Mrs. Florence Zeigler Allbritton.

When symphony conductor and pianist, Rudolph Ganz, made his appearance in Monroe last winter, Miss Wallace auditioned for him. Mr. Ganz was greatly impressed with the musicianship displayed by the young artist, and complimented her very highly, urging her to continue with her musical studies.

While it has not yet been determined where she will go to college, Miss Wallace is definite in her decision to continue her musical education at some university.

For the past three years she has acted as the student accompanist for the Parish High School Choir, and in addition has been one of its most dependable voices. She is a member of the ensemble which will compete in the Eisteddfod in Wales this month, and like all the other members she is looking forward to the trip with much enthusiasm. The two required numbers she will play in the pianists' competition are Sandor Veress' "Cadi Ha" and Edvard Grieg's "Humoresque."

WISNER NEGRO HELD ON MURDER CHARGE

HARRISONBURG, June 4.—(Special)—Charles Atkins, Wisner Negro, is in the Catahoula parish jail here charged with murder of Billy Guinn, also of Wisner, near Sicily Island.

According to Sheriff Fred Fairbanks, the slaying occurred at Two-Mile Inn near the Catahoula-Franklin parish line. Atkins returned to Wisner and reported the crime to his employer, who turned him over to the Franklin parish authorities. He was returned later to Catahoula.

NEW MILITARY PAY BILL INTRODUCED

Corporals Would Get Bigger Percentage Pay Boost Than Officers

By Howard Dobson

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(AP)—A new military pay bill giving corporals with over seven years service a bigger percentage boost than officers was announced today by the house armed services committee.

But all members of the armed forces would get more money under the revised measure, including recruits who were left out of the original pay increase bill the house shelved less than two weeks ago.

Representative Kilday (D-Tex.), who was in charge of drafting both proposals, told reporters the new plan would cost about $358,000,000 a year more than present military pay outlays, as compared with the $406,000,000 price tag on the rejected measure.

He said he will introduce the compromise bill Monday and that his armed services subcommittee will hold a brief hearing Tuesday to allow members of congress to express their views. He said the bill will be ready for house action during the week of June 13.

Chairman Vinson (D-Ga.) of the armed services committee said the new bill had the support of house Democratic leaders and predicted it will get a favorable vote in the house.

However, the bill was not enthusiastically greeted by one World War II veteran, Representative Sutton (D-Tenn.), who helped bat down the original pay measure May 24. The old bill was sent back to the committee by a roll call vote of 227 to 163.

Sutton said he disapproves of the new plan for the same reason that he fought the first one: Because it would increase higher ranking officers by a larger percentage than junior officers.

"I hope the committee will reconsider," he said. "To me, an equitable pay scale for the younger officers is more important than the total cost of the bill."

The revised measure would provide generally smaller percentage increases than the original measure. For example, brigadier generals would be upped 37 per cent instead of almost 50 per cent; major generals, 23 per cent instead of 34 per cent, and colonels, 20 instead of about 25 per cent.

Corporals, however, who have been in service more than seven years, would get a 69 per cent pay hike. Those with less service would receive 26 per cent more as compared with 28 per cent provided in the old bill.

Recruits still would start in at $75 a month, but after four months they would draw $80. Under the original plan no increase was scheduled for them.

Kilday said the new bill would continue the wartime family allowances for enlisted men through their current enlistments, but these would be cut out after July 1, 1952. The new measure would provide bonus payments for hazardous assignments such as flight and submarine duty but at a lower scale. Foreign and sea duty bonuses for officers, however, would be eliminated.

Here is a comparison of the basic pay schedules, which although figured on an army rating apply to all the services:

STEAMSHIP BEING HELPED TO SAFETY

MIAMI, Fla., June 4.—(AP)—The steamship Flagship Sinco was being towed toward Charleston, S. C., today, wallowing in heavy seas like an injured whale.

Coast Guard cutters Mocoma and Aurora escorted the distressed vessel, ready to give assistance if she settled any deeper in the water.

Her engine room was flooded to a depth of about 20 feet when a casing broke. It was estimated she was drawing 40 to 45 feet of water. Maritime men termed this a "serious but not fatal loss of buoyancy."

The 10,803-ton flagship of the Sinclair Oil Company tanker fleet was taken in tow by the tug Marion Moran at 10 a. m. (E. S. T.). Plans were made to put portable pumps aboard if weather permitted.

The skipper, Capt. J. H. Tibbetts radioed "Believe we have achieved buoyancy. Do not believe we will settle any farther."

The tanker then was about 100 miles due east of Jacksonville. It was estimated she could enter Charleston if sufficient water was pumped from the engine room. Otherwise the ship probably will be towed to Norfolk.

The crew of 42 men remained aboard the Flagship Sinco as they had since she first flashed a distress call early yesterday.

Captain Tibbetts reported inrushing water disabled her and all electrical power failed. The Coast Guard cutter Blackhaw, out of Charleston, took her in tow last night. But the hawser broke under the impact of high seas and northerly winds and towing attempts were halted until daylight.

The Flagship Sinco was fully loaded and enroue from Corpus Christi, Texas, to Marcus Hook, Pa., when water first started pouring in from a hole in the cold water circulator.

The date at which gunpowder was first used in artillery in battle is uncertain, but is believed to be 1331.

Plan Extensive Tests On Air Raid Warning System

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(AP)—Secretary of Defense Johnson announced plans today for the most extensive test of the nation's air raid warning system since the war.

Over 26,000 civilian volunteers are slated to take part in "operation lookout" which will be conducted next September in a 10-state east coast area ranging from Portland, Me., to Wilmington, Delaware.

The civilian spotters are to work with military personnel assigned to radar detection stations set up along the eastern seaboard in what Johnson called a "test of long-range emergency air raid defense plans."

Plans for the six-day mock war were worked out by the military establishment and the office of civil defense planning headed by Aubrey H. Mellinger.

The actual test will be supervised by the air defense command at Mitchell Air Force base, New York, with the O. C. D. P. handling the recruiting of the civilian ground spotters in cooperation with state defense officials in the raid area.

Noting the "important service" rendered by civilian plane spotters during the last war, Johnson said "volunteer observers would have an even more valuable function in the event of any future emergency" because the "possibility of air attacks in another war has greatly increased."

The defense secretary pointed out that "existing radar detectors or even the more extensive screen" voted by congress "do not provide complete surveillance of approaching aircraft." The reason for this, he said is that "the curvature of the earth permits airplanes to fly relatively close" to a radar station "before entering the straight-line scope of the detector."

"In the event of an emergency," Johnson said, "ground observers would be invaluable in spotting aircraft flying below the vision of each radar sight." He added that the civilian volunteers will be posted at 1,300 ground observation spots from which they will telephone reports of the "enemy" air moves to filter centers. These centers then will relay the coordinated "plots" of the location, altitude and speed of the attacking planes to air defense control centers.

The observation posts will be strung out five or six miles apart along the 10-state area, with about 20 persons assigned to each spotting location.

Between June 30 and September 1, these volunteers will receive special training courses by mail under the direction of Maj. Gen. Gordon P. Saville, chief of the air defense command.

Johnson's announcement said that the civilian personnel selected "will necessarily have to be those who are generally ineligible for military service." And, he added, they "will be asked to man their posts in all future times of need."

ORGANIZING LIBRARY PLAN IN CATAHOULA

JONESVILLE, June 4.—(Special)—Sallie Farrell, field worker of the state library, and Mrs. Rubie M. Hanks, Winn parish librarian, are now in Catahoula to set up a one-year library demonstration. The library, with branch offices at Harrisonburg, Jonesville and Sicily Island, and a bookmobile to cover the parish, is expected to be in operation early in July.

RAYVILLE FARMER TO FACE RAPE CHARGES

A 44-year-old Richland parish farmer, charged with aggravated rape of two young sisters, 12 and 16 years old, is being held in the Ouachita parish jail without bond for Rayville authorities.

The farmer, Fred S. Sterrett, was arrested by local authorities for Richland parish shortly after they were notified of his whereabouts.

Sheriff Foster Jones, of Rayville, said earlier this week a full report of the case had not been completed and the doctor's report on the youngest girl had not been received.

Following Sterrett's incarceration, the Richland parish sheriff department mailed a warrant issued by K. E. Batman, a ward two justice of the peace, to the sheriff's office in Monroe.

Sterrett lived four miles north of Rayville, and authorities there said he was allegedly living with the mother of the two young girls he is charged with raping.

The 12-year-old girl is being treated for burns at the Conway Memorial Hospital where she is a patient.

Sheriff Jones could not be contacted by telephone for details late Saturday.

Favored Royal Forest Comes Home Fourth As Richards Misses 24th Try

EPSOM, England, June 4.—(AP)—Nimbus, bred by a bookmaker and owned by the wife of a lawyer, today won the richest English Derby of the classic's 170 years in a photo finish.

The photo showed Amour Drake, a French horse which challeneged during every step of the end of the mile and a half trip, in second place, about a head behind the victor. Third went to Lord Derby's Swallow Tail, who had run neck-and-neck with Nimbus around most of the horse-shoe shaped course.

Nimbus paid off at 7 to 1 for those among the estimated half-million fans who watched the race. The triumph was worth $56,680 to Mrs. Marian Glenister, the barrister's wife.

Pearl Diver and My Love, both French horses, won the past two years, and when Nimbus' number went up the mob—including Aly Kahn and his bride, Rita Hayworth—let loose a mighty cheer for the sturdy bay colt.

Nimbus is not entered in the St. Ledger next September and thus will not have a chance to win the coveted English triple crown. Before taking the Derby, Nimbus had captured the 2,000 Guineas, the third classic—also in a photo.

Miss Hayworth created somewhat of a sensation when she strolled into the paddock among the top-hatted royalty and noblemen. She was all smiles, but showed little interest in the horses, spending most of her time keeping her big white and polka dot hat stuck on her red hair.

Queen Elizabeth, accompanied by Queen Mary, Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, drove in from Windsor and watched the race from high in the grandstand.

There was only one American-bred colt in the bulky field of 32 starters. Brown Rover, owned by William Woodward of New York, was not in the first 14 finishers. The horses were packed so closely after the first 14, that it was impossible to tell how they came home.

Royal Forest, with Gordon Richards in the saddle, crossed the line fourth. It was a particularly hard pill for Richards, who was seeking his first Derby victory in 24 tries. Royal Forest was the 9 to 2 favorite.

Gades, a French-bred horse, owned by Ralph B. Strassburger an American who lives in France, was tenth.

There was a strong wind blowing in the faces of the horses as they started, and that accounted for the rather poor time of 2:42. The record of 2:33.8 was set in 1936 by Mahmound.

BEGIN MISSISSIPPI EVENT WEDNESDAY

VICKSBURG, Miss., June 4.—(AP)—Hunter George Weddington of Meridian will open defense of his state golf crown here Wednesday in the 36th annual state tournament.

Weddington won the championship in Laurel last summer. He has been playing an average of 36 holes a week over the sporty Vicksburg Country Club layout all spring and is scoring well.

Indications are, however, that Weddington won't find the going too smooth.

Leo Edwards, Vicksburg city champion and former Country Club manager, is a strong threat due to his familiarity with the course, one of the most dangerous to par busters in the state.

Cliff Hamilton, a transplanted Jacksonian, and E. C. Neill, another Vicksburg sub-par ace, and former state golf association president, are also primed for the five day tourney.

In addition Weddington will face three former state champions: Gene Vinson of Meridian, Thomas Herron of Jackson and Doc Powell of Hattiesburg. In all between 75 and 100 entries are expected.

Qualifying rounds will be played Wednesday, division matches Thursday, flight matches Friday, quarter and semi-finals Saturday with the finalists teeing off early Sunday morning.

Winnie Cole, local pro, will direct the tournament, assisted by L. V. Dukes of Clarksdale, himself state champion in 1936 and 1937, and Tom Lundy of Greenville Country Club.

Cole said the players would follow the rulebook to the letter on lost ball and unplayable lies, and predicted the enforcement would add from three to four strokes to most scores. He said 83 or better would probably be the top qualifying score.

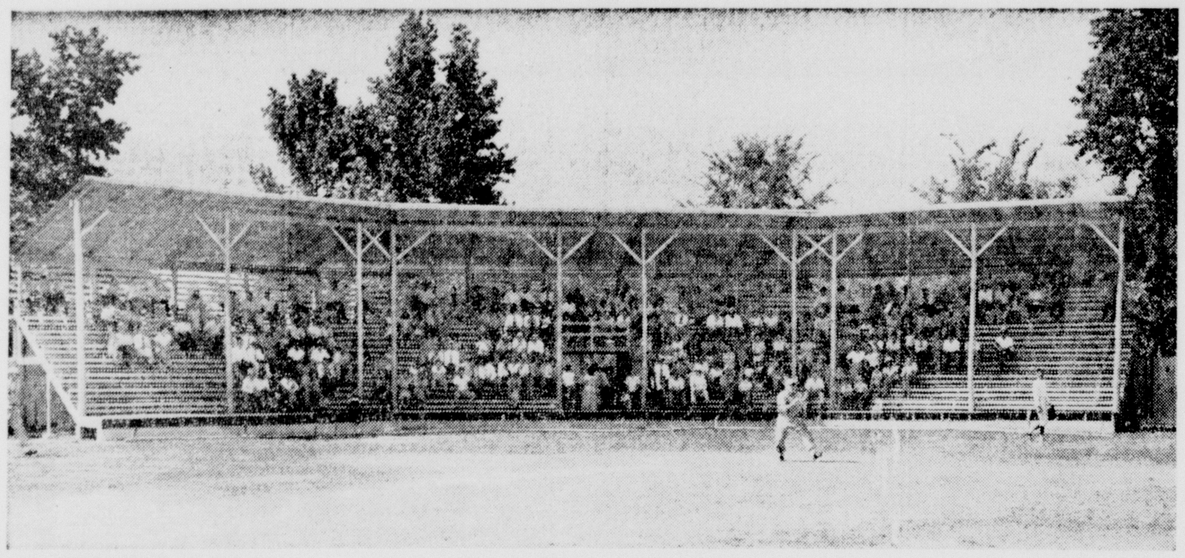
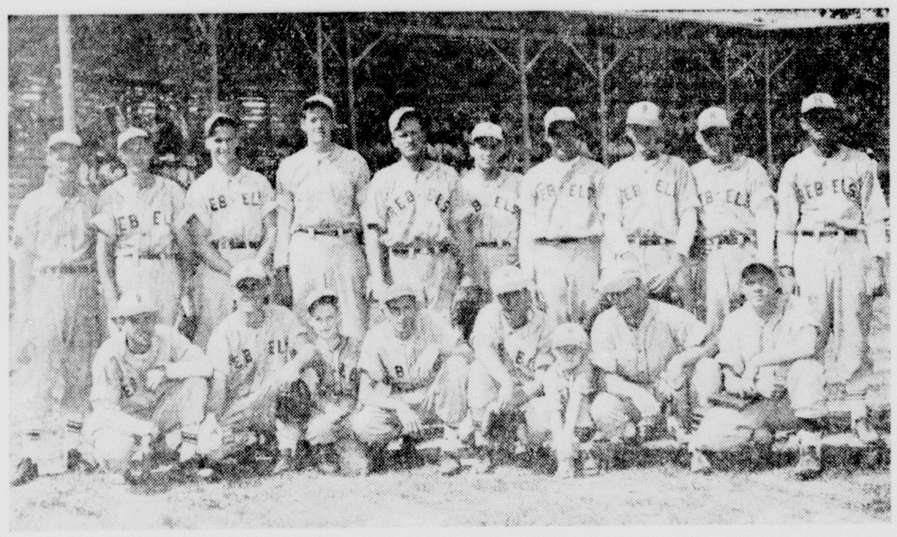
CLOYD'S PARK GETS FINISHING TOUCHES





Night baseball within ten days to two weeks was promised for Cloyd's park of West Monroe yesterday as the finishing touches are being made on the plant just outside the West Monroe city limits on the old Natchitoches road. The park, built by O. O. Cloyd, Ouachita parish cattleman and businessman, is the home field of the West Monroe Rebels, a Cloyd-supported team in the Louisiana Delta League. The West Monroe Volunteers, also of the Delta circuit, use the plant for their home games. At the top is pictured the grandstand which is also flanked by two sections of bleacher seats. Also pictured is the West Monroe Rebels baseball squad, and O. O. Cloyd, park owner, as he poses at home plate in batting stance. Members of the Rebel squad, left to right, are: Front row, J. P. Kelly, Dan Pickens, Mascot David Freeman, "Legs" Riggin, Junior Grant, Mascot Ronnie Freeman, "Pee Wee" Clowers, and Tunney Bayles; and standing, E. B. Peddy, Dan Crawford, Jack Dyer, Robert Bennett, "Skipper" Roberts, Johnnie Simpson, "Coot" Dumas, J. D. Nolan, Jack Nolan, and "Lefty" Counts. All fixtures for lighting the park were installed in the last few days, power will be turned on soon, and the park expects to pit the Rebels against the Volunteers in West Monroe's first night baseball game within the next two weeks. Delhi plays the Rebels at Cloyd's today.

SPORTSMEN PUSH LAKE-SITE PLANS

Jackson Group Invites Help From Lincoln Parish; Conduct Fish Contest

HODGE, La., June 4.—(Special)—The members of the Jackson Parish Sportsmen's Club held its regular monthly meeting Monday in the auditorium of the Hodge Grammar School with approximately 25 members present.

Subjects discussed included the lake site the club is trying to get two miles southwest of Quitman on Dugdemonia. The state engineer's report up to date is very encouraging regarding this location for the proposed lake.

Because Lincoln parish does not have an organized Sportsmen's Club, it was suggested by the Jackson parish club that the fishing and hunting-minded friends of Lincoln parish be contacted and invited to attend the meeting of the Jackson club the first Monday night in July in the auditorium of the Quitman High School.

The proposed lake site southwest of Quitman is in nice driving distance for the people of Ruston and Lincoln parish as a whole. The lake can be built with the cooperation of surrounding parishes.

N. W. Sentell, president of the club, proposed a fishing contest for the club members and their families with four prizes for the largest bass, the largest bar fish, the largest bream and the largest white perch. The vote was unanimous for the contest scheduled to begin July 1 and run through September 25.

The places selected to have the fish weighed and checked are at Sam Thomas' store in Quitman, Jonesboro Hardware and Furniture Company in Jonesboro and Advance Shopping Center, (hardware department) in Hodge. There will be a place selected in Chatham and announced later.

A committee was appointed to select prizes and make all arrangements regarding the contest and make a complete report to the club at the next meeting.

After the business part of the meeting was finished a very interesting movie, "Fishing in Alaska," was shown.

Sentell urges all who will to attend the next meeting to be held in Quitman High School auditorium the first Monday night in July.

SEYMOUR GIVEN GOLF MONOGRAM AT CULVER

CULVER, Ind., June 4.—(Special)—Edward J. Seymour, son of Mr. and Mrs. E. J. Seymour, 1507 Park avenue, Monroe, La., has been awarded a varsity letter in golf at Culver Military Academy.

Joe Louis fought 61 professional fights before he retired, 26 of them for the heavyweight championship.

Triple-Conscious Snead Setting His Sights On U. S. Open Tourney

By Lawrence Robinson

CHICAGO, June 4.—(NEA)—Winning the P. G. A. Championship at Richmond's Hermitage, Samuel Jackson Snead notched the second major victory of the year for the outstanding golfer of 1949.

The other, of course, was the Augusta Masters.

The U. S. Open at the Medinah, Ill., Country Club, June 9-11, is the only major championship which Sam Snead hasn't won, and now he wants it.

Sam Snead

If Slammin' Sam could keep the game he had in the P. G. A. for seven rugged days, especially the last 25 holes against Johnny Palmer, he would "bring it," as the pro boys say about winning.

If he does, then Snead will move onto Olympian heights along with Ben Hogan, the little Texan whom Sam has succeeded as champion.

Hogan, you know, won the P. G. A., U. S. Open and Western Open last year, the Great Triple. If Snead could win the Open and the Western he would surpass the little guy whose golfing career is supposed to be history.

All through the P. G. A. week, from qualifying rounds on, Snead played fine golf when fine golf was needed. He seemed to be dallying in the early stages of almost any match.

As usual, he complained about his putting, because Snead believes that any putt which doesn't hole out is a poor one.

The similarity between his victory at Augusta and in the P. G. A. was remarkable.

In the Masters, Sam was slightly on the mediocre side for the first two rounds, and sensational on the last two.

Snead started slowly in the P. G. A. In his semi-final with Jim Ferrier he had to come from behind even as he did against Johnny Palmer.

He was "ahead" of Palmer on almost every shot, and Palmer in the early stages was unbelievable with that green blade.

But when the chips started getting blue, Slammin' Sam was putting beautifully, too.

To Palmer, 30-year-old former molder in an aluminum plant in Badin, N. C., defeat by Snead was a disappointment.

Yet it was a significant achievement for the square-set Carolinian to reach the final. In the crucial stages, Palmer just could not get hold of the ball the way he wanted to—a little too much hook.

But Johnny has a fine game and length off the tee, an important factor. His putting is good, and he is always going to be in contention, because he seldom goes above par. In a lot of tournaments, he is going to win through steadiness.

In the wake of the P. G. A. Championship, the press crowd is inclined to wonder about the big-money championship jobs. Hermitage—meaning Richmond businessmen—gave away $30,000 in purses here plus expenses.

They ended up using red ink, although they had everything—fine scoring and competition, perfect weather, a good press and a sterling final.

There wasn't much more Hermitage could have done to advertise the event or to please the galleries.

Perhaps the absence of such big names as Hogan, Nelson, Locke, who wasn't invited, and Middlecoff, who wasn't eligible, hurt.

The featured game for Sunday will find the two Ruston teams, the Vols and the Rebels, facing each other at Fraser Field here.

Dubach, in years past generally on top of the league early in play, will be battling Simsboro for the cellar position at Simsboro. Sterlington will invade Marion, and Bernice goes to Hodge.

CONDUCT TARPON RODEO AUG. 19-20

New Non-Profit Organization To Conduct Event In Southwest Pass

NEW ORLEANS, La., June 4.—(Special)—The annual Southwest Pass Tarpon Rodeo will be held Friday, August 19, and Saturday, August 20, according to an announcement by the board of directors of the newly formed nonprofit corporation now conducting the rodeo. The selection of these dates was made by the board of directors of the association at a recent meeting after careful study of weather and river conditions, and it is believed to be the best possible time for tarpon in the Southwest Pass area this season.

According to President Al Lomax, it was decided to continue the former policy of awarding prizes for tarpon only so that contestants would hew to the tarpon line rather than wander afield in search of lesser fry.

The registration fee for the rodeo, according to President Lomax, is to be $5.00 per person and entry blanks will soon be available at all sporting goods stores or by writing to the secretary of the association, Geo. M. Leppert, 1804 American Bank Building, New Orleans. Sleeping accommodations will be provided for those registrants desiring same and meals will be furnished at cost. President Lomax also announced that, in order to share the thrills of tarpon fishing among as great a number as possible, an attempt will be made to arrange for fishing accommodations aboard a number of boats to be chartered from commercial fishermen. Entrants will be permitted to fish from these boats at so much per head, sleep at the barracks to be provided, and buy their meals at cost there.

"In this way," said Lomax, "you won't have to own a yacht to participate. Bus accommodations will be made available to Venice, Louisiana, where the entrants may be picked up and convoyed to the fishing grounds. We want everybody down there who figures that he is man enough to haul in one of those big babies that graze around the mouth of the river. Our motto is going to be a little different from that old theme—'Every man a King'—we say 'A silver king for every man'—if you are willing to wrestle with him, that is."

The board of directors also appointed a number of committees to prepare for the rodeo, as follows: Honorary and associate membership—Henry Braud, Chalin Perez, and Geo. M. Leppert; rodeo property—Judge Leander H. Perez, Sheriff Chester Wooton, and E. C. "Bo" Marshall; boat rental—A. C. "Cody" Abshier, Dewey Cognevich, and Sheriff Chester Wooton; committee on arrangements—Johnny Mathes, I. J. G. Jassen, Louis Niklaus, Chalin Perez, Al Lomax, and Judge Leander H. Perez; publicity—Henry Braud, Johnny Mathes, and Geo. M. Leppert.

'SAILOR' PARKER TO BATTLE MACK IN SEMI-WINDUP

Champion Jack, If Beaten, Promises To Give Villain Title Scrap

Al Getz, belittling the beating he took from Jack Curtis in a match here last week, is still camping on Curtis' trail and has challenged for a rematch in the main event at Gus Kallio's Arena here Tuesday night.

Still bleeding from cuts on the face and head following his battle with the world's champion last Tuesday, Getz, as he accepted pay for his night's work from Promoter Kallio, put in a claim for a title bout.

Getz poked a handful of bills—he said it was $100—to Kallio, declaring, "Here take this and see if you can get that money-hungry Curtis back next week for a title match."

Kallio refused the money, saying he'd ask Curtis first if he wanted such a bout.

"Didn't you get hurt tonight?" Kallio asked the challenger.

"No, I didn't get hurt. Just a bump on my head and a little cut that don't mean a thing," Getz replied. "I'll be ready any time so you do all you can to get Curtis back."

Kallio took the message on to Curtos.

"I don't see why these wrestlers who are after me ever got the idea I was money crazy," Curtis said. "I never got one penny in my life without earning it. If he just wants to give away $100 its alright with me, but he'll have to put the money in the referee's hands before the match ever starts.

Then Curtis offered a plan whereby Getz can save himself the cash, instructing Kallio to get the toughie back for a non-title match with no side money involved.

"If Getz can beat me this time I'll gladly give him a title match and he won't have to put up one cent extra to get it," Curtis declared.

Curtis also offered to let Getz furnish his own referee for the non-title scramble.

Informed of Curtis' proposition, Getz agreed to the non-title meeting and said he would bring a referee here with him.

"But I won't be expecting any favors from the referee," Getz said. "I want to beat Curtis fair and square so there will be no doubt in the minds of the fans that the champ has met his match.

"I should have beaten Curtis last week, but he violated the rules in purposely throwing me out of the ring, and then the referee gave me a fast count so the favored Curtis could win."

Semi-final billing on the card will go to Allen "Sailor" Parker and Paddy Mack, the latter a newcomer from Boston, Mass.

Several weeks ago Parker came here to tame a newcomer, The Virginian, in straight falls. After that scrap, Parker told Kallio that anytime he wants newcomers to this circuit tested to call on him.

When Kallio learned Paddy Mack was available, he contacted Parker, and the Nashville veteran readily agreed to come in to "test" the ability of the newest talent to hit this section.

Kallio said Mack is a stock built battler on the same order as Parker, but that the Boston scrapper will have youth more on his side.

The show will begin at 8:15 o'clock and continue at the same starting time during the remainder of the summer season.

SOFTBALL SEASON HITS FULL STRIDE

The softball season hits its full stride in Monroe this week with three more leagues going into action.

The Junior League opens its season tomorrow with six teams competing, and the Midget circuit has been divided into two leagues, the Midget National with seven teams, and the Midget American with six teams. One new team, Lucky P, is opening play in the Senior League also this week.

Forty-six teams in eight softball leagues for men, women, and boys, will be in action here this week.

Umpires are badly needed in the Midget, Junior, and Senior circuits. Umpires for games at Sherrouse and L. T. I. are most urgent, according to Jack Hesketh, recreation director, and any persons desiring to umpire games are urged to contact Hesketh as soon as possible. Umps are being paid $1 per game.

BLUES TRIM RAYVILLE

JONESVILLE, June 4.—(Special)—The Jonesville Blues came from behind in the late innings Thursday night to defeat the Rayville Niners by a 7-1 score.

Yossett, Rayville pitcher, hurled 6 1/3 innings of hitless ball before pinch-hitter Junior Brown got a single in the seventh.

"Red" Beall, in his first start for the Blues, pitched three-hit ball and gave only one run, which was unearned.

In starting off the Jonesville fireworks in the seventh, Brown singled, Beall walked, then Ware doubled. In the eighth, Jonesville got five runs on three doubles, two singles and two hit batters off of Yossett and relief Pitcher Smith.

The Jonesville Blues will continue their bid for first place in the Delta league when they take on the West Monroe Vols at the Jonesville municipal park Sunday afternoon.

RUSTON JUNIORS PLAN BUSY DAY

Play Columbia In League Game Tomorrow; Appear In Night Exhibition

RUSTON, La., June 4.—(Special)—Ruston's American Legion Juniors will play two games Monday, a regular league game with Columbia in the afternoon at Tech Field at 2:30 and a prearranged game with Larry Hunters' Minden team at 7:45 at Fraser Field. Twenty-two players are trying for starting positions on the Ruston team, eight from the Ruston High North Louisiana championship Class A team, six from Simsboro, four from Dubach, two from Choudrant and one each from Hico and Quitman. For the first time in many years Ruston does not have a candidate from Calhoun, a town famous for it's baseball.

The team's captain this year will be George Berry who has two seasons behind him, this season and eligible for two more which is an unusual record for a youngster. Berry played his first Legion baseball at 12. Pitching duties will be taken over by Tony Jones and William Edminston of Simsboro, Junior Staggs of Quitman, Chroley Fuller of Dubach and Jack Smith of Choudrant. Ruston has two great catchers in Billy Jack Price of Ruston High and Buck Fowler of Simsboro.

An excellent infield combination should be developed from Captain Berry, John Fuller and Arthur Edwards of Duach, Pat McLane and Dickie Hinton of Ruston High, Burgess of Hico, Fletcher of Choudrant and Jessie James Edminston of Simsboro. In the outfield T. Head Edwards, Lacy Stinson, Jimmie Rentz and Charles Barham of Ruston High, Joseph Lewis of Simsboro and C. B. Colvin, Jr., of Duach. Webb of Simsboro who played Legion ball last year can play infield or outfield.

Monday night's game will be a seven inning affair. This game will give the Ruston fans and opportunity for seeing Ruston's 1949 Legion team in action. Legion baseball boasts of 243 players in the big leagues who had their start in Legion baseball. The local team is sponsored by the Ken Elliott Motors and with good pitching Rustons' team should be the team to beat for state honors.

BASTROP LEGION JUNIORS DEFEAT FARMERS, 7 TO 6

Morehouse Parish Boys Come From Behind To Stop District Champs

BASTROP, La., June 4.—(Special)—The Bastrop American Legion Junior baseball club, after losing its opener to Columbia, made it anybody's race in the West League of the Fifth District today by handing the defending district champions, Farmerville, their first defeat of the season, 7 to 6.

LOCALS PLAY TODAY

The Monroe-West Monroe American Legion Juniors, making up a previously postponed game, will meet the Bastrop club this afternoon at 3 o'clock on the Mer Rouge diamond. The game was rained out at Jones on May 27.

Coach Vernon Sanders last night said Craig Whetstone, a lefthander, would be his choice to start on the mound against Bastrop today.

Tomorrow the local club will visit Farmerville for a game.

Farmerville took an early lead and held Bastrop scoreless until the fifth, and then the locals went ahead with four runs in the seventh to sew up the game.

James Sisson, hurling for Bastrop, turned in a well-pitched game as he allowed the 1948 runners-up for the state championship only nine hits, fanned 13, and gave up only one base on balls. Bastrop was limited to nine hits.

Bastrop had bowed to Columbia, 15-7, in the season opener, and Columbia in turn was stopped by Farmerville, 10 to 3. In other West League openers, Monroe and Ruston battled to a tie in a game called because of darkness, and then Rayville defeated Monroe to start the season on top of the league.

Monroe-West Monroe, making up a postponed game, will meet Bastrop Sunday afternoon on the Mer Rouge diamond.

Lineups for today's battle were:

Favored Royal Forest Comes Home Fourth As Richards Misses 24th Try

EPSOM, England, June 4.—(AP)—Nimbus, bred by a bookmaker and owned by the wife of a lawyer, today won the richest English Derby of the classic's 170 years in a photo finish.

The photo showed Amour Drake, a French horse which challeneged during every step of the end of the mile and a half trip, in second place, about a head behind the victor. Third went to Lord Derby's Swallow Tail, who had run neck-and-neck with Nimbus around most of the horse-shoe shaped course.

Nimbus paid off at 7 to 1 for those among the estimated half-million fans who watched the race. The triumph was worth $56,680 to Mrs. Marian Glenister, the barrister's wife.

Pearl Diver and My Love, both French horses, won the past two years, and when Nimbus' number went up the mob—including Aly Kahn and his bride, Rita Hayworth—let loose a mighty cheer for the sturdy bay colt.

Nimbus is not entered in the St. Ledger next September and thus will not have a chance to win the coveted English triple crown. Before taking the Derby, Nimbus had captured the 2,000 Guineas, the third classic—also in a photo.

Miss Hayworth created somewhat of a sensation when she strolled into the paddock among the top-hatted royalty and noblemen. She was all smiles, but showed little interest in the horses, spending most of her time keeping her big white and polka dot hat stuck on her red hair.

Queen Elizabeth, accompanied by Queen Mary, Princess Elizabeth and the Duke of Edinburgh, drove in from Windsor and watched the race from high in the grandstand.

There was only one American-bred colt in the bulky field of 32 starters. Brown Rover, owned by William Woodward of New York, was not in the first 14 finishers. The horses were packed so closely after the first 14, that it was impossible to tell how they came home.

Royal Forest, with Gordon Richards in the saddle, crossed the line fourth. It was a particularly hard pill for Richards, who was seeking his first Derby victory in 24 tries. Royal Forest was the 9 to 2 favorite.

Gades, a French-bred horse, owned by Ralph B. Strassburger an American who lives in France, was tenth.

There was a strong wind blowing in the faces of the horses as they started, and that accounted for the rather poor time of 2:42. The record of 2:33.8 was set in 1936 by Mahmound.

BEGIN MISSISSIPPI EVENT WEDNESDAY

VICKSBURG, Miss., June 4.—(AP)—Hunter George Weddington of Meridian will open defense of his state golf crown here Wednesday in the 36th annual state tournament.

Weddington won the championship in Laurel last summer. He has been playing an average of 36 holes a week over the sporty Vicksburg Country Club layout all spring and is scoring well.

Indications are, however, that Weddington won't find the going too smooth.

Leo Edwards, Vicksburg city champion and former Country Club manager, is a strong threat due to his familiarity with the course, one of the most dangerous to par busters in the state.

Cliff Hamilton, a transplanted Jacksonian, and E. C. Neill, another Vicksburg sub-par ace, and former state golf association president, are also primed for the five day tourney.

In addition Weddington will face three former state champions: Gene Vinson of Meridian, Thomas Herron of Jackson and Doc Powell of Hattiesburg. In all between 75 and 100 entries are expected.

Qualifying rounds will be played Wednesday, division matches Thursday, flight matches Friday, quarter and semi-finals Saturday with the finalists teeing off early Sunday morning.

Winnie Cole, local pro, will direct the tournament, assisted by L. V. Dukes of Clarksdale, himself state champion in 1936 and 1937, and Tom Lundy of Greenville Country Club.

Cole said the players would follow the rulebook to the letter on lost ball and unplayable lies, and predicted the enforcement would add from three to four strokes to most scores. He said 83 or better would probably be the top qualifying score.

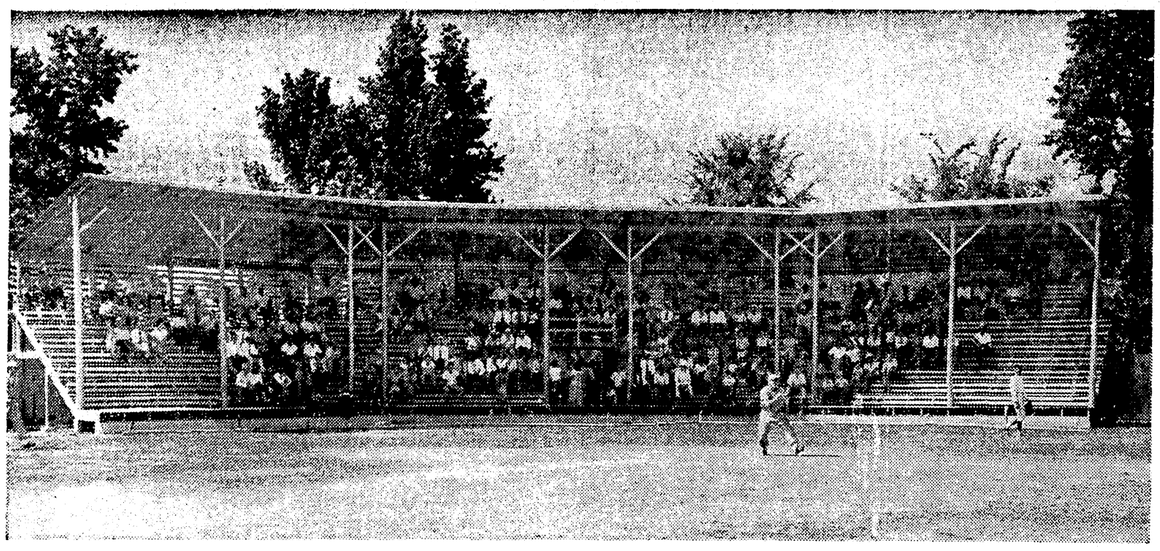
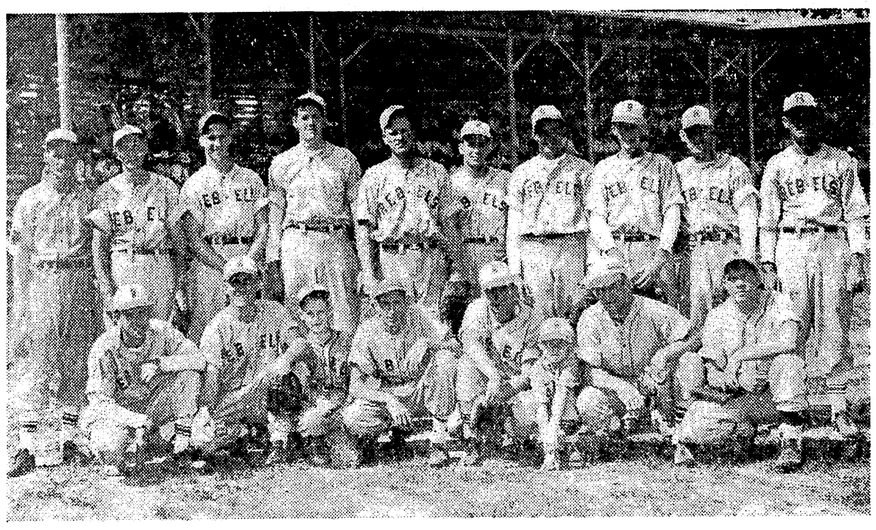
CLOYD'S PARK GETS FINISHING TOUCHES





Night baseball within ten days to two weeks was promised for Cloyd's park of West Monroe yesterday as the finishing touches are being made on the plant just outside the West Monroe city limits on the old Natchitoches road. The park, built by O. O. Cloyd, Ouachita parish cattleman and businessman, is the home field of the West Monroe Rebels, a Cloyd-supported team in the Louisiana Delta League. The West Monroe Volunteers, also of the Delta circuit, use the plant for their home games. At the top is pictured the grandstand which is also flanked by two sections of bleacher seats. Also pictured is the West Monroe Rebels baseball squad, and O. O. Cloyd, park owner, as he poses at home plate in batting stance. Members of the Rebel squad, left to right, are: Front row, J. P. Kelly, Dan Pickens, Mascot David Freeman, "Legs" Riggin, Junior Grant, Mascot Ronnie Freeman, "Pee Wee" Clowers, and Tunney Bayles; and standing, E. B. Peddy, Dan Crawford, Jack Dyer, Robert Bennett, "Skipper" Roberts, Johnnie Simpson, "Coot" Dumas, J. D. Nolan, Jack Nolan, and "Lefty" Counts. All fixtures for lighting the park were installed in the last few days, power will be turned on soon, and the park expects to pit the Rebels against the Volunteers in West Monroe's first night baseball game within the next two weeks. Delhi plays the Rebels at Cloyd's today.

SPORTSMEN PUSH LAKE-SITE PLANS

Jackson Group Invites Help From Lincoln Parish; Conduct Fish Contest

HODGE, La., June 4.—(Special)—The members of the Jackson Parish Sportsmen's Club held its regular monthly meeting Monday in the auditorium of the Hodge Grammar School with approximately 25 members present.

Subjects discussed included the lake site the club is trying to get two miles southwest of Quitman on Dugdemonia. The state engineer's report up to date is very encouraging regarding this location for the proposed lake.

Because Lincoln parish does not have an organized Sportsmen's Club, it was suggested by the Jackson parish club that the fishing and hunting-minded friends of Lincoln parish be contacted and invited to attend the meeting of the Jackson club the first Monday night in July in the auditorium of the Quitman High School.

The proposed lake site southwest of Quitman is in nice driving distance for the people of Ruston and Lincoln parish as a whole. The lake can be built with the cooperation of surrounding parishes.

N. W. Sentell, president of the club, proposed a fishing contest for the club members and their families with four prizes for the largest bass, the largest bar fish, the largest bream and the largest white perch. The vote was unanimous for the contest scheduled to begin July 1 and run through September 25.

The places selected to have the fish weighed and checked are at Sam Thomas' store in Quitman, Jonesboro Hardware and Furniture Company in Jonesboro and Advance Shopping Center, (hardware department) in Hodge. There will be a place selected in Chatham and announced later.

A committee was appointed to select prizes and make all arrangements regarding the contest and make a complete report to the club at the next meeting.

After the business part of the meeting was finished a very interesting movie, "Fishing in Alaska," was shown.

Sentell urges all who will to attend the next meeting to be held in Quitman High School auditorium the first Monday night in July.

Triple-Conscious Snead Setting His Sights On U. S. Open Tourney

By Lawrence Robinson

CHICAGO, June 4.—(NEA)—Winning the P. G. A. Championship at Richmond's Hermitage, Samuel Jackson Snead notched the second major victory of the year for the outstanding golfer of 1949.

The other, of course, was the Augusta Masters.

The U. S. Open at the Medinah, Ill., Country Club, June 9-11, is the only major championship which Sam Snead hasn't won, and now he wants it.

Sam Snead

If Slammin' Sam could keep the game he had in the P. G. A. for seven rugged days, especially the last 25 holes against Johnny Palmer, he would "bring it," as the pro boys say about winning.

If he does, then Snead will move onto Olympian heights along with Ben Hogan, the little Texan whom Sam has succeeded as champion.

Hogan, you know, won the P. G. A., U. S. Open and Western Open last year, the Great Triple. If Snead could win the Open and the Western he would surpass the little guy whose golfing career is supposed to be history.

All through the P. G. A. week, from qualifying rounds on, Snead played fine golf when fine golf was needed. He seemed to be dallying in the early stages of almost any match.

As usual, he complained about his putting, because Snead believes that any putt which doesn't hole out is a poor one.

The similarity between his victory at Augusta and in the P. G. A. was remarkable.

In the Masters, Sam was slightly on the mediocre side for the first two rounds, and sensational on the last two.

Snead started slowly in the P. G. A. In his semi-final with Jim Ferrier he had to come from behind even as he did against Johnny Palmer.

He was "ahead" of Palmer on almost every shot, and Palmer in the early stages was unbelievable with that green blade.

But when the chips started getting blue, Slammin' Sam was putting beautifully, too.

To Palmer, 30-year-old former molder in an aluminum plant in Badin, N. C., defeat by Snead was a disappointment.

Yet it was a significant achievement for the square-set Carolinian to reach the final. In the crucial stages, Palmer just could not get hold of the ball the way he wanted to—a little too much hook.

But Johnny has a fine game and length off the tee, an important factor. His putting is good, and he is always going to be in contention, because he seldom goes above par. In a lot of tournaments, he is going to win through steadiness.

In the wake of the P. G. A. Championship, the press crowd is inclined to wonder about the big-money championship jobs. Hermitage—meaning Richmond businessmen—gave away $30,000 in purses here plus expenses.

They ended up using red ink, although they had everything—fine scoring and competition, perfect weather, a good press and a sterling final.

There wasn't much more Hermitage could have done to advertise the event or to please the galleries.

CONDUCT TARPON RODEO AUG. 19-20

New Non-Profit Organization To Conduct Event In Southwest Pass

NEW ORLEANS, La., June 4.—(Special)—The annual Southwest Pass Tarpon Rodeo will be held Friday, August 19, and Saturday, August 20, according to an announcement by the board of directors of the newly formed non-profit corporation now conducting the rodeo. The selection of these dates was made by the board of directors of the association at a recent meeting after careful study of weather and river conditions, and it is believed to be the best possible time for tarpon in the Southwest Pass area this season.

According to President Al Lomax, it was decided to continue the former policy of awarding prizes for tarpon only so that contestants would hew to the tarpon line rather than wander afield in search of lesser fry.

The registration fee for the rodeo, according to President Lomax, is to be $5.00 per person and entry blanks will soon be available at all sporting goods stores or by writing to the secretary of the association, Geo. M. Leppert, 1804 American Bank Building, New Orleans. Sleeping accommodations will be provided for those registrants desiring same and meals will be furnished at cost. President Lomax also announced that, in order to share the thrills of tarpon fishing among as great a number as possible, an attempt will be made to arrange for fishing accommodations aboard a number of boats to be chartered from commercial fishermen. Entrants will be permitted to fish from these boats at so much per head, sleep at the barracks to be provided, and buy their meals at cost there.

"In this way," said Lomax, "you won't have to own a yacht to participate. Bus accommodations will be made available to Venice, Louisiana, where the entrants may be picked up and convoyed to the fishing grounds. We want everybody down there who figures that he is man enough to haul in one of those big babies that graze around the mouth of the river. Our motto is going to be a little different from that old theme—'Every man a King'—we say 'A silver king for every man'—if you are willing to wrestle with him, that is."

The board of directors also appointed a number of committees to prepare for the rodeo, as follows: Honorary and associate membership—Henry Braud, Chalin Perez, and Geo. M. Leppert; rodeo property—Judge Leander H. Perez, Sheriff Chester Wooton, and E. C. "Bo" Marshall; boat rental—A. C. "Cody" Abshier, Dewey Cognevich, and Sheriff Chester Wooton; committee on arrangements—Johnny Mathes, I. J. G. Jassen, Louis Niklaus, Chalin Perez, Al Lomax, and Judge Leander H. Perez; publicity—Henry Braud, Johnny Mathes, and Geo. M. Leppert.

SOFTBALL SEASON HITS FULL STRIDE

The softball season hits its full stride in Monroe this week with three more leagues going into action.

The Junior League opens its season tomorrow with six teams competing, and the Midget circuit has been divided into two leagues, the Midget National with seven teams, and the Midget American with six teams. One new team, Lucky P, is opening play in the Senior League also this week.

Forty-six teams in eight softball leagues for men, women, and boys, will be in action here this week.

Umpires are badly needed in the Midget, Junior, and Senior circuits. Umpires for games at Sherrouse and L. T. I. are most urgent, according to Jack Hesketh, recreation director, and any persons desiring to umpire games are urged to contact Hesketh as soon as possible. Umps are being paid $1 per game.

'SAILOR' PARKER TO BATTLE MACK IN SEMI-WINDUP

Champion Jack, If Beaten, Promises To Give Villain Title Scrap

Al Getz, belittling the beating he took from Jack Curtis in a match here last week, is still camping on Curtis' trail and has challenged for a rematch in the main event at Gus Kallio's Arena here Tuesday night.

Still bleeding from cuts on the face and head following his battle with the world's champion last Tuesday, Getz, as he accepted pay for his night's work from Promoter Kallio, put in a claim for a title bout.

Getz poked a handful of bills—he said it was $100—to Kallio, declaring, "Here take this and see if you can get that money-hungry Curtis back next week for a title match."

Kallio refused the money, saying he'd ask Curtis first if he wanted such a bout.

"Didn't you get hurt tonight?" Kallio asked the challenger.

"No, I didn't get hurt. Just a bump on my head and a little cut that don't mean a thing," Getz replied. "I'll be ready any time so you do all you can to get Curtis back."

Kallio took the message on to Curtos.

"I don't see why these wrestlers who are after me ever got the idea I was money crazy," Curtis said. "I never got one penny in my life without earning it. If he just wants to give away $100 its alright with me, but he'll have to put the money in the referee's hands before the match ever starts.

Then Curtis offered a plan whereby Getz can save himself the cash, instructing Kallio to get the toughie back for a non-title match with no side money involved.

"If Getz can beat me this time I'll gladly give him a title match and he won't have to put up one cent extra to get it," Curtis declared.

Curtis also offered to let Getz furnish his own referee for the non-title scramble.

Informed of Curtis' proposition, Getz agreed to the non-title meeting and said he would bring a referee here with him.

"But I won't be expecting any favors from the referee," Getz said. "I want to beat Curtis fair and square so there will be no doubt in the minds of the fans that the champ has met his match.

"I should have beaten Curtis last week, but he violated the rules in purposely throwing me out of the ring, and then the referee gave me a fast count so the favored Curtis could win."

Semi-final billing on the card will go to Allen "Sailor" Parker and Paddy Mack, the latter a newcomer from Boston, Mass.

Several weeks ago Parker came here to tame a newcomer, The Virginian, in straight falls. After that scrap, Parker told Kallio that anytime he wants newcomers to this circuit tested to call on him.

When Kallio learned Paddy Mack was available, he contacted Parker, and the Nashville veteran readily agreed to come in to "test" the ability of the newest talent to hit this section.

Kallio said Mack is a stock built battler on the same order as Parker, but that the Boston scrapper will have youth more on his side.

The show will begin at 8:15 o'clock and continue at the same starting time during the remainder of the summer season.

BLUES TRIM RAYVILLE

JONESVILLE, June 4.—(Special)—The Jonesville Blues came from behind in the late innings Thursday night to defeat the Rayville Niners by a 7-1 score.

Yossett, Rayville pitcher, hurled 6 1/3 innings of hitless ball before pinch-hitter Junior Brown got a single in the seventh.

"Red" Beall, in his first start for the Blues, pitched three-hit ball and gave only one run, which was unearned.

In starting off the Jonesville fireworks in the seventh, Brown singled, Beall walked, then Ware doubled. In the eighth, Jonesville got five runs on three doubles, two singles and two hit batters off of Yossett and relief Pitcher Smith.

The Jonesville Blues will continue their bid for first place in the Delta league when they take on the West Monroe Vols at the Jonesville municipal park Sunday afternoon.

RUSTON JUNIORS PLAN BUSY DAY

Play Columbia In League Game Tomorrow; Appear In Night Exhibition

RUSTON, La., June 4.—(Special)—Ruston's American Legion Juniors will play two games Monday, a regular league game with Columbia in the afternoon at Tech Field at 2:30 and a prearranged game with Larry Hunters' Minden team at 7:45 at Fraser Field. Twenty-two players are trying for starting positions on the Ruston team, eight from the Ruston High North Louisiana championship Class A team, six from Simsboro, four from Dubach, two from Choudrant and one each from Hico and Quitman. For the first time in many years Ruston does not have a candidate from Calhoun, a town famous for it's baseball.

The team's captain this year will be George Berry who has two seasons behind him, this season and eligible for two more which is an unusual record for a youngster. Berry played his first Legion baseball at 12. Pitching duties will be taken over by Tony Jones and William Edminston of Simsboro, Junior Staggs of Quitman, Chroley Fuller of Dubach and Jack Smith of Choudrant. Ruston has two great catchers in Billy Jack Price of Ruston High and Buck Fowler of Simsboro.

An excellent infield combination should be developed from Captain Berry, John Fuller and Arthur Edwards of Duach, Pat McLane and Dickie Hinton of Ruston High, Burgess of Hico, Fletcher of Choudrant and Jessie James Edminston of Simsboro. In the outfield T. Head Edwards, Lacy Stinson, Jimmie Rentz and Charles Barham of Ruston High, Joseph Lewis of Simsboro and C. B. Colvin, Jr., of Duach. Webb of Simsboro who played Legion ball last year can play infield or outfield.

Monday night's game will be a seven inning affair. This game will give the Ruston fans and opportunity for seeing Ruston's 1949 Legion team in action. Legion baseball boasts of 243 players in the big leagues who had their start in Legion baseball. The local team is sponsored by the Ken Elliott Motors and with good pitching Rustons' team should be the team to beat for state honors.

BASTROP LEGION JUNIORS DEFEAT FARMERS, 7 TO 6

Morehouse Parish Boys Come From Behind To Stop District Champs

BASTROP, La., June 4.—(Special)—The Bastrop American Legion Junior baseball club, after losing its opener to Columbia, made it anybody's race in the West League of the Fifth District today by handing the defending district champions, Farmerville, their first defeat of the season, 7 to 6.

Farmerville took an early lead and held Bastrop scoreless until the fifth, and then the locals went ahead with four runs in the seventh to sew up the game.

James Sisson, hurling for Bastrop, turned in a well-pitched game as he allowed the 1948 runners-up for the state championship only nine hits, fanned 13, and gave up only one base on balls. Bastrop was limited to nine hits.

Bastrop had bowed to Columbia, 15-7, in the season opener, and Columbia in turn was stopped by Farmerville, 10 to 3. In other West League openers, Monroe and Ruston battled to a tie in a game called because of darkness, and then Rayville defeated Monroe to start the season on top of the league.

Monroe-West Monroe, making up a postponed game, will meet Bastrop Sunday afternoon on the Mer Rouge diamond.

Lineups for today's battle were:

LOCALS PLAY TODAY

The Monroe-West Monroe American Legion Juniors, making up a previously postponed game, will meet the Bastrop club this afternoon at 3 o'clock on the Mer Rouge diamond. The game was rained out at Jones on May 27.

Coach Vernon Sanders last night said Craig Whetstone, a lefthander, would be his choice to start on the mound against Bastrop today.

Tomorrow the local club will visit Farmerville for a game.

MONROE MONARCHS FACE MINDEN CLUB

The Monroe Monarchs, Negro baseball club, will be host to the hard hitting Minden Giants in a game scheduled to begin at 2:45 o'clock this afternoon at Casino Park.

The visitors, with a record of six wins and two losses, are expected to start A. J. Jefferson, ace hurler, against the Monarchs with Reed doing the catching.

The Monarchs expect to use either Mack Hall or Woodrow Cann on the mound with Hicks catching, and Manager Hardy Goins reports his Monroe club will be in top condition for the game.

YANKS HAND BROWNS 10TH STRAIGHT LOSS

ST. LOUIS BOWS TO 15-HIT BLAST BY 11 TO 3 COUNT

Senators Rout White Sox; Tigers Again Defeat Crimson Hose

ST. LOUIS, June 4.—(AP)—The New York Yankees extended the lowly St. Louis Browns' losing streak to ten games today, beating the Brownies, 11-3. Dick Kryhoski, Gene Woodling and Phil Rizzuto led the Yanks' 15-hit attack with three safeties apiece.

YALE'S JIM FUCHS HURLS SHOT 56 FEET, 11½ INCHES

PELHAM MANORY, N. Y., June 4.—(AP)—Jim Fuchs of Yale tossed the 16 pound shot 56 feet 11 1/2 inches today, a distance bettered by only two men in history.

The tremendous heave came in the New York Athletic Club track meet. Charles Fonville of Michigan holds the world shot put record of 58 feet 3/8 inch, set a year ago at Kansas Relays. Vonfille wiped out the previous mark of 57 feet 1 inch by Jack Torrance of Louisiana State.

Fuchs, of course, established a new meet record. The old mark here was 55 feet 3 7/8 by the late Al Blozis.

Vic Frank, another Yale man, smashed the meet standard for the discus when he spun the platter 167 feet 7 inches. Blozis held the old mark of 164 feet 5 inches.

DOYLE BAKER SINGLES TRAPSHOOT CHAMPION

STUTTGART, Ark., June 4.—(AP)—Doyle Baker of Little Rock dropped six targets out of 200 but won the singles division crown of the Arkansas Trapshoot Tournament here today.

The 29-year-old sportsman defeated H. N. Siems of near Stuttgart, who shot a 193.

Defending Champion Will Smead of Camden shot a 191.

Baker's score won him a tie for Class A honors, in a division of the southwest zone trapshoot meet underway here. Making a bid for this post is A. M. Feltus, Natchez, Miss.

The four-day meet closes Sunday with the 200-target, $1,000 handicap. Champions in the southwest zone doubles, Arkansas handicap and the state doubles matches. Also will be named tomorrow.

Other winners in zone shooting today:

Class B: H. J. Gaude, Natchez, who bested Fred Lewis, Enid, Okla., 50 to 48 in a 50-target shoot off. Each made broke 196 of 200 in regular firing.

Class C: Ronald Gaude of Natchez with a score of 91.

Results were announced by Frank J. Pivonka, Lake Charles, state director of junior activities of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. The V. F. W. sponsors the contest.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

by Hugh S. Fullerton, jr.

NEW YORK, June 4.—(AP)—The New York University athletic board voted not to send any of the violet track and field stars to the N. C. A. A. meet in California because it's "too expensive." That will cost Moon Monschein a chance to defend his high jump title and the east's fastest mile relay team a chance to win a national crown. Strange thing is that the five athletes Coach Emil von Elling wanted to send may get to California as club representatives in the A. A. U. championships. And at the same time comes word that the U. of Georgia is dispensing with its athletic publicity director for reasons of economy. That leaves Bill Strudel looking for a job and Georgia's football team, probably, looking for some publicity it will need next fall.

Strike? No, Lockout

Aaron Robinson, the Tigers' catcher, still gets a chuckle out of this one although it happened when he was with the White Sox last season. The Sox were playing the Athletics and two were out and runners were on second and third. When the count reached 3-2 on Batter Taft Wright, the catcher, Buddy Rosar, went to talk to the pitcher then took a place off to one side as if to make it an intentional pass. Wright stood there, completely relaxed, waiting to be walked when the pitcher fired one right down the middle and Rosar jumped behind the plate to catch it. Says Robinson: "Wright wouldn't talk to Rosar the rest of the season and I'll bet he's still sore, though they're both on the same team this year."

SPORTS MENTION

Perry Jones, who developed so many good young tennis players in southern California, figures this year's crop of kids is very promising. He's especially high on 15-year-old Don Kierbow of Venice, Calif. Skip Rowland, the U. C. L. A. football and baseball star, probably will sign with the Dodger organization right after his graduation. If some arrangement can be made to put an ice rink into the new municipal arena under construction at San Antonio, Tex., a Texas Hockey League likely will be formed next season. Texas members of the U. S. league find it tough bucking those long trips and payrolls that are as high as major league clubs had before the war.

Weak End Notes

ALL-STARS, TIGERS PLAY AT COLUMBIA

The Monroe All-Stars journey to Columbia today for a meeting with the Dr. Nut Tigers of New Orleans at 3 o'clock at Memorial Park.

The local Negro aggregation, winner of three games in five contests this year, have been beaten only by one-run margins in extra-inning affairs, one by ten frames and the other going fourteen. The Tigers are unbeaten in five contests.

Manager Joe Gulledge last night said his All-Stars have been greatly improved. His starting pitcher today will be named from Dorsey, Ard and McFee, the latter a Grambling College hurler.

The All Stars also expect to be playing night baseball at West Monroe soon, it was said, appearing at Cloyd's Park when the lighting system is completed.

A bus for transportation of fans to Columbia today will leave 705 DeSiard street at 11:30 o'clock this morning.

PETER PAN 'CAP GOES TO PONDER IN PHOTO FINISH

Favored Capot Finishes Poor Seventh In $18,450 Handicap Run

By John Chandler

NEW YORK, June 4.—(AP)—Ponder returned to his Kentucky Derby form today and rambled home in a furious stretch drive to capture the $18,450 Peter Pan Handicap.

Trailing in eighth place in the early part of the mile and one eighth gallop at Belmont Park, Ponder got up steam in the stretch run and ripped under the wire a three-fourths of a length winner over Colonel Mike.

Colonel Mike, owned by Eugene Jacobs, was six lengths better than Clifford Mooer's Old Rockport at the finish. King ranch's Curandero was fourth in the field of nine classy three-year-olds.

Ponder got some sort of revenge this time, as Greentree stable's Capot, the Preakness winner, folded up in the late going and wound up an unglorious seventh. Ponder had to be content with fifth in the Preakness, after winning the Derby roses.

Capot was backed down to even money by the crowd of 32,350 this afternoon.

The winner, a dark bay son of Pensive-Miss Rushin got a brilliant ride by Jockey Steve Brooks. They were clocked at a good 1:49 2/5. Over a lightning fast track. Ponder, off at 5 to 2, made his backers happy with a $7.11, $4.90, $4.20 return in the mutuels.

In order behind the first four were Brandywine Stable's Cochise, Walter M. Jefford's Pibroch, Capot, Fred Hooper's Ocean Drive, and George D. Widener's Reveille.

Ocean Drive went to the front at the start, but Curandero quickly shot to the front, followed by Capot. The leaders were only heads apart as they zinged down the backstretch. Ponder was eighth, with only Pibroch behind him.

About quarter of a mile from the wire, Eddie Arcaro got Colonel Mike rolling and then took charge briefly, until Ponder came from nowhere as he did in the derby. Just beyond the sixteenth pole, Colonel Mike tired, and Ponder slammed home with a rush to grab $13,025 first money.

Russell A. Firestone's The Diver pulled away in the last eighth of a mile to win the $24,400 National Stallion Stakes, colt division, the secondary feature, paying $8.60, $3.40 and $2.40 for $2. The winner netted $15,080.

AT DELAWARE PARK

STANTON, Del., June 4.—(AP)—William G. Helis' Bridal Shower and Bobanet Stable's Glen Arvis won the split divisions of the $10,000 Polly Drummond Stakes today at Delaware Park.

Bridal Shower earned $9,650 in the second section of the five furlong feature. She paid $12 straight.

Bridal Shower was sent to the front at the break by Jimmy Stout. She was just short of two lengths to the good of Bed O'Roses at the finish. The two completely outdistanced the other seven 2-year-olds with Janet N. Kel-

The SCOREBOARD

By Harry Grayson

NEW YORK, June 4.—(NEA)—America's No. 1 heel kicked Thomas David Henrich upstairs.

Joe DiMaggio had to be sidelined by the sore spot, where once sprouted the Clipper's bone spur, to put Tom Henrich in the baseball show window with the Yankees.

Tom Henrich

Old Reliable batted third, and the Big Guy was always coming up behind him.

It takes a Big Man to carry a club.

As remarkable as he was, Lou Gehrig couldn't quite do it.

The New York Americans won only one of their pennants, and that in a war year, without Babe Ruth or DiMaggio.

But with DiMaggio out, now apparently for the campaign, the erstwhile Bronx Bombers, seemingly suffering from the shorts elsewhere, too, turned to Henrich, their elder statesman. And the Massillon Mauler accepted the assignment gracefully. The shoes were not too big for him.

"That Henrich," said an American League manager. "Practically every time you look up he's doing a Frank Merriwell."

One of the top clutch hitters, dropping down into the cleanup slot was right down Henrich's alley. It thrust him into more pay-off stations. Instead of being on base, having kept the attack rolling, he more frequently is in position to bat in others.

Henrich is one of the cleverer hitters, and his new role gives the customers more chance to study the variety of things he does so superlatively.

Henrich, 33, now, has been a vastly improved hitter the past two campaigns.

Batting .308, and pasting home an even 100 runs, he led the league in total number of extra base hits in 1948, and has a fine collection this trip batting .316.

In addition to packing the power of an extraordinary left-hand pull hitter, who isn't annoyed by left-hand pitching, Henrich places hits, hits and runs and whatnot.

With DiMaggio and Keller, and then Lindell, hors de combat, it was extremely fortunate for the Yanks that young Kryhoski and Phillips came along to play first base. Otherwise, Henrich would have to return there, at a time when his presence was sorely needed to steady the outfield.

And why weaken right field when you have the best man in the business there?

A center fielder has to cover a wider range, that's true, but the right fielder is also extremely important defensively. In some parks, he has to know more about handling rebounds. He has to make the throw to third base. And in the case of the left-handed Henrich, his strong throwing arm guards the right field foul line. He is in position to throw to the base ahead of the runner when he gets the ball. And no outfielder traps a ball any better.

Given time to concentrate on his hitting in his natural position in the outfield, Tom Henrich takes on added stature with Joe DiMaggio a spectator.

YALE'S JIM FUCHS HURLS SHOT 56 FEET, 11½ INCHES

PELHAM MANORY, N. Y., June 4.—(AP)—Jim Fuchs of Yale tossed the 16 pound shot 56 feet 11 1/2 inches today, a distance bettered by only two men in history.

The tremendous heave came in the New York Athletic Club track meet. Charles Fonville of Michigan holds the world shot put record of 58 feet 3/8 inch, set a year ago at Kansas Relays. Vonfille wiped out the previous mark of 57 feet 1 inch by Jack Torrance of Louisiana State.

Fuchs, of course, established a new meet record. The old mark here was 55 feet 3 7/8 by the late Al Blozis.

Vic Frank, another Yale man, smashed the meet standard for the discus when he spun the platter 167 feet 7 inches. Blozis held the old mark of 164 feet 5 inches.

DOYLE BAKER SINGLES TRAPSHOOT CHAMPION

STUTTGART, Ark., June 4.—(AP)—Doyle Baker of Little Rock dropped six targets out of 200 but won the singles division crown of the Arkansas Trapshoot Tournament here today.

The 29-year-old sportsman defeated H. N. Siems of near Stuttgart, who shot a 193.

Defending Champion Will Smead of Camden shot a 191.

Baker's score won him a tie for Class A honors, in a division of the southwest zone trapshoot meet underway here. Making a bid for this post is A. M. Feltus, Natchez, Miss.

The four-day meet closes Sunday with the 200-target, $1,000 handicap. Champions in the southwest zone doubles, Arkansas handicap and the state doubles matches. Also will be named tomorrow.

Other winners in zone shooting today:

Class B: H. J. Gaude, Natchez, who bested Fred Lewis, Enid, Okla., 50 to 48 in a 50-target shoot off. Each made broke 196 of 200 in regular firing.

Class C: Ronald Gaude of Natchez with a score of 91.

QUALIFYING PLAY FOR 1ST TWIN CITY MEET UNDERWAY

Whitfield Leads For Medal In Blind Bogey; Shelton Has Low Net

McGuire Park Golf Club continues its busiest weekend of the season today with three distinct events in progress—an intercity match with Nachez, Miss., qualifying for the first annual Twin City Tournament, and the final day's play in a blind bogey.

Amos Shelton, Louis Whitfield, and E. L. Lancaster held the prize winning spots in the blind bogey at the completion of yesterday's round. Shelton had low net of 51, Whitfield played the medal round of 73, and Lancaster was holding high net.

Participating in the blind bogey yesterday, their score for the round, handicap, and net score were:

Whitfield, 73-18-55; Shelton, 76-25-51; Henry Gilliland, 79-15-61; Lee Cabrey, 83-23-60; Jimmie Green, 86-3-83; E. E. Lawson, 86-13-73; Hilton Heard, 98-24-78; Earl Woods, 84-10-74; W. T. PLAQUEMINES BOY WINS STATE MARBLES CROWN

NEW ORLEANS. June 4.—(AP)—Cyril Bourgoyne, of Plaquemines, La., will represent this state in the national marble playing competition at Pittsburgh, Pa., June 22-26.

The 13-year-old sixth grader won over Hoyt Williams, 14, of Simpson, La., three games to two, in the finals of the state competition here tonight.

Results were announced by Frank J. Pivonka, Lake Charles, state director of junior activities of the Veterans of Foreign Wars. The V. F. W. sponsors the contest.

Finishing third was Al Gruntz, 14, of the Behrmann School, Algiers.

Last year's state champion, Earl McManus, of the Rosteet School, Lake Charles, was eliminated in the quarter-finals when he lost to Gruntz, two games to one.

The first player to break 70 in a single round of the U. S. Open was Tom McNamara who shot a 69 at Buffalo in 1912.

SPORTS ROUNDUP

by Hugh S. Fullerton, jr.

NEW YORK, June 4.—(AP)—The New York University athletic board voted not to send any of the violet track and field stars to the N. C. A. A. meet in California because it's "too expensive." That will cost Moon Monschein a chance to defend his high jump title and the east's fastest mile relay team a chance to win a national crown. Strange thing is that the five athletes Coach Emil von Elling wanted to send may get to California as club representatives in the A. A. U. championships. And at the same time comes word that the U. of Georgia is dispensing with its athletic publicity director for reasons of economy. That leaves Bill Strudel looking for a job and Georgia's football team, probably, looking for some publicity it will need next fall.

Strike? No, Lockout

Aaron Robinson, the Tigers' catcher, still gets a chuckle out of this one although it happened when he was with the White Sox last season. The Sox were playing the Athletics and two were out and runners were on second and third. When the count reached 3-2 on Batter Taft Wright, the catcher, Buddy Rosar, went to talk to the pitcher then took a place off to one side as if to make it an intentional pass. Wright stood there, completely relaxed, waiting to be walked when the pitcher fired one right down the middle and Rosar jumped behind the plate to catch it. Says Robinson: "Wright wouldn't talk to Rosar the rest of the season and I'll bet he's still sore, though they're both on the same team this year."

SPORTS MENTION

Perry Jones, who developed so many good young tennis players in southern California, figures this year's crop of kids is very promising. He's especially high on 15-year-old Don Kierbow of Venice, Calif. Skip Rowland, the U. C. L. A. football and baseball star, probably will sign with the Dodger organization right after his graduation. If some arrangement can be made to put an ice rink into the new municipal arena under construction at San Antonio, Tex., a Texas Hockey League likely will be formed next season. Texas members of the U. S. league find it tough bucking those long trips and payrolls that are as high as major league clubs had before the war.

Weak End Notes

ALL-STARS, TIGERS PLAY AT COLUMBIA

The Monroe All-Stars journey to Columbia today for a meeting with the Dr. Nut Tigers of New Orleans at 3 o'clock at Memorial Park.

The local Negro aggregation, winner of three games in five contests this year, have been beaten only by one-run margins in extra-inning affairs, one by ten frames and the other going fourteen. The Tigers are unbeaten in five contests.

Manager Joe Gulledge last night said his All-Stars have been greatly improved. His starting pitcher today will be named from Dorsey, Ard and McFee, the latter a Grambling College hurler.

The All Stars also expect to be playing night baseball at West Monroe soon, it was said, appearing at Cloyd's Park when the lighting system is completed.

A bus for transportation of fans to Columbia today will leave 705 DeSiard street at 11:30 o'clock this morning.

PETER PAN 'CAP GOES TO PONDER IN PHOTO FINISH

Favored Capot Finishes Poor Seventh In $18,450 Handicap Run

By John Chandler

NEW YORK, June 4.—(AP)—Ponder returned to his Kentucky Derby form today and rambled home in a furious stretch drive to capture the $18,450 Peter Pan Handicap.

Trailing in eighth place in the early part of the mile and one eighth gallop at Belmont Park, Ponder got up steam in the stretch run and ripped under the wire a three-fourths of a length winner over Colonel Mike.

Colonel Mike, owned by Eugene Jacobs, was six lengths better than Clifford Mooer's Old Rockport at the finish. King ranch's Curandero was fourth in the field of nine classy three-year-olds.

Ponder got some sort of revenge this time, as Greentree stable's Capot, the Preakness winner, folded up in the late going and wound up an unglorious seventh. Ponder had to be content with fifth in the Preakness, after winning the Derby roses.

Capot was backed down to even money by the crowd of 32,350 this afternoon.

The winner, a dark bay son of Pensive-Miss Rushin got a brilliant ride by Jockey Steve Brooks. They were clocked at a good 1:49 2/5. Over a lightning fast track. Ponder, off at 5 to 2, made his backers happy with a $7.11, $4.90, $4.20 return in the mutuels.

In order behind the first four were Brandywine Stable's Cochise, Walter M. Jefford's Pibroch, Capot, Fred Hooper's Ocean Drive, and George D. Widener's Reveille.

Ocean Drive went to the front at the start, but Curandero quickly shot to the front, followed by Capot. The leaders were only heads apart as they zinged down the backstretch. Ponder was eighth, with only Pibroch behind him.

About quarter of a mile from the wire, Eddie Arcaro got Colonel Mike rolling and then took charge briefly, until Ponder came from nowhere as he did in the derby. Just beyond the sixteenth pole, Colonel Mike tired, and Ponder slammed home with a rush to grab $13,025 first money.

Russell A. Firestone's The Diver pulled away in the last eighth of a mile to win the $24,400 National Stallion Stakes, colt division, the secondary feature, paying $8.60, $3.40 and $2.40 for $2. The winner netted $15,080.

AT DELAWARE PARK

STANTON, Del., June 4.—(AP)—William G. Helis' Bridal Shower and Bobanet Stable's Glen Arvis won the split divisions of the $10,000 Polly Drummond Stakes today at Delaware Park.

Bridal Shower earned $9,650 in the second section of the five furlong feature. She paid $12 straight.

Bridal Shower was sent to the front at the break by Jimmy Stout. She was just short of two lengths to the good of Bed O'Roses at the finish. The two completely outdistanced the other seven 2-year-olds with Janet N. Kel-

The SCOREBOARD

By Harry Grayson

NEW YORK, June 4.—(NEA)—America's No. 1 heel kicked Thomas David Henrich upstairs.

Joe DiMaggio had to be sidelined by the sore spot, where once sprouted the Clipper's bone spur, to put Tom Henrich in the baseball show window with the Yankees.

Tom Henrich

Old Reliable batted third, and the Big Guy was always coming up behind him.

It takes a Big Man to carry a club.

As remarkable as he was, Lou Gehrig couldn't quite do it.

The New York Americans won only one of their pennants, and that in a war year, without Babe Ruth or DiMaggio.

But with DiMaggio out, now apparently for the campaign, the erstwhile Bronx Bombers, seemingly suffering from the shorts elsewhere, too, turned to Henrich, their elder statesman. And the Massillon Mauler accepted the assignment gracefully. The shoes were not too big for him.

"That Henrich," said an American League manager. "Practically every time you look up he's doing a Frank Merriwell."

One of the top clutch hitters, dropping down into the cleanup slot was right down Henrich's alley. It thrust him into more pay-off stations. Instead of being on base, having kept the attack rolling, he more frequently is in position to bat in others.

Henrich is one of the cleverer hitters, and his new role gives the customers more chance to study the variety of things he does so superlatively.

Henrich, 33, now, has been a vastly improved hitter the past two campaigns.

Batting .308, and pasting home an even 100 runs, he led the league in total number of extra base hits in 1948, and has a fine collection this trip batting .316.

In addition to packing the power of an extraordinary left-hand pull hitter, who isn't annoyed by left-hand pitching, Henrich places hits, hits and runs and whatnot.

With DiMaggio and Keller, and then Lindell, hors de combat, it was extremely fortunate for the Yanks that young Kryhoski and Phillips came along to play first base. Otherwise, Henrich would have to return there, at a time when his presence was sorely needed to steady the outfield.

And why weaken right field when you have the best man in the business there?

A center fielder has to cover a wider range, that's true, but the right fielder is also extremely important defensively. In some parks, he has to know more about handling rebounds. He has to make the throw to third base. And in the case of the left-handed Henrich, his strong throwing arm guards the right field foul line. He is in position to throw to the base ahead of the runner when he gets the ball. And no outfielder traps a ball any better.

Given time to concentrate on his hitting in his natural position in the outfield, Tom Henrich takes on added stature with Joe DiMaggio a spectator.

Sweet Dream, ridden by Jockey Jimmy Combest, won by a neck in the six furlong feature race, covering the distance in 1:11 3/5. She paid $9, $5.60 and $4.60.

Two jockeys were injured and two escaped unhurt earlier in the afternoon in a spectacular pile up involving four horses running in the fourth race.

The $25,000 feature race, for three-year-old fillies, found the entry of June Bride and Just Why the heavy favorite. June Bride held back in the early running but in the stretch she rolled in six lengths to the good over Just Why.

Just Why edged out Cosmopolite by a neck.

AT SUFFOLK DOWNS

BOSTON, June 4.—(AP)—The Brookemeade Stable's Going Away, a three-year-old son of Whirlaway, lived up to his name by defeating the Greentree Stable's favored One Hitter by two and a half lengths in the 14th running of the Yankee Handicap today at Suffolk Downs.

The Brookemeade star, well back in the field of 10 during most of the running, gained the lead rounding the final turn and urged on by Jockey Joe Renick, pulled away in easy fashion.

One Hitter, backed down to 5-2 by the 24,130 crowd, had two lengths on the speedy Best Doings, owned by Mort Stuart of nearby Brookline, which necked out Woodvale Farm's Halt, the fifth finisher in the Kentucky Derby, for show.

While Going Away was returning $26,025 to his owner after running the mile and a quarter in 2:04 2/5, he rewarded his backers with $38.60, $11.60 and $6.80. One Hitter paid $4.40 and $3.20 and Best Doings $3.80.

LOCAL SEMI-PROS VISIT WHITE SOX FOR LAST SCRAP

Effort Underway To Find Aid To Keep Team In Northeast Loop

Unless some means is forthcoming soon to support the Monroe baseball locally, the Sports will be making their final appearance in a Northeast Louisiana League game this afternoon when they journey to Jones for a meeting with the Louisiana-Arkansas White Sox.

The Sports had announced Thursday they were dropping out of the league, effective today, after the Shreveport Sports had withdrawn support of the local semi-pro club.

While there was nothing definite announced, it was reported yesterday that an effort is being made to obtain local support, and Don Mayer, Winnsboro, president of the league, said he was advising league members to hold up on signing exhibition games on the Monroe dates until further notified.

Monroe defeated the La.-Ark. Sox, 9 to 8, in their last appearance at Jones, and another hard battle is expected this afternoon.

In other games over the circuit today Tallulah will present practically a new lineup to face the the invading Columbia Ramblers, Lake Providence, fighting back toward the top, will move into Winnsboro, and Oak Groce will travel to Urania for a clash with the LaSalle Producers.

All games begin at 3 o'clock.

M. A. Phillips, member of the Tallulah organization, last night said his club would open today with only First Baseman Cooper remaining in the lineup from the team that opened the season. He listed the new Tallulah lineup as Boswell, second base; Hodges, center field; Hinton, shortstop; Magula, right field; Cooper, first base; Edney, left field; McLemore, third base; Colling, catcher; and Hahn or Eckart, pitcher.

Tallulah, with a team now averaging 20-years of age, expects to make up a postponed Lake Providence game next Friday night. Silver City, Miss., wil be in Tallulah for an exhibition tomorrow night.

The lineup for what looms as Monroe's final show was announced as Fenton, first base; Danks, third base; Holley, center field; Gregg, shortstop; Hester, right field; King, second base; Curtis or Long, left field; Webb, catcher and Fluitt, pitcher.

WYNN KEEPING QUIET ON WILLIAMS FAILURE

CLEVELAND, June 4.—(AP)—Early Wynn says he isn't supersititous, but he doesn't like to talk about his ability to retire Ted Williams.

Early, lots happier since doffing the Washington Senators' garb for a Cleveland Indian uniform, allowed Boston's slugger no hits in four trips yesterday as he defeated the Red Sox 8-1 on four hits.

Ted went down swinging on his first trip, then bounced to Wynn and skied poppers to Lou Boudreau and Al Rosen in succeeding attempts.

Wynn said he gave Williams a "variety of stuff to choose from," but that's about all Cleveland's leading pitcher would volunteer about the successful "jinx."

"I'm not superstitious," he said, "but I don't like to say much about my pitching to Williams.

"I remember him being quoted last season as saying I was the toughest pitcher in the league for him. Two days later I went against Boston and he got four for four."

Earlier in the season, all of Wynn's luck looked bad. He appeared rarely and when he did pitch, the opposition touched him freely.

On May 23 against the Philadelphia Athletics, he came out of his slump with a six-hit, 7-3 win.

Combined with a hitless inning previously hurled, Wynn now has allowed only 14 hits in 30 innings for a won and lost record of 3-0.

DISTRICT N. A. A. A. BALL MEET OPENS THURSDAY

CHARLOTTE, N. C., June 4.—(AP)—Paced by Wake Forrest's "dream team," four members of the Southern and Southeastern conferences will open the third district N. C. A. A. baseball championship tournament here Thursday night.

Winners of 24 out of 26 regular season games, Wake Farret's Southern Conference champions will stack up against Richmond, also of the Southern Conference, and Mississippi State and Kentucky, top pair in the Southeastern.

Play is on a double elimination basis. The winner advances to a regional tournament, one of four from which will come four survivors for the national finals at Wichita, Kans., June 22-25.

Thursday's openers send Mississippi State against Richmond in the 5 o'clock (E. S. T.) opener and Kentucky against Wake Forrest at 7:30.

The first night losers will meet in Friday's first game, the winners in the second. This will cut the field to three teams that will resume firing Saturday.

Mississippi State, winner of the Southeastern's western division laurels, whipped Kentucky's eastern champions, three out of four, this week to sew up the conference crown.

Wake Forrest, hailed by Southern Conference observers as one of the finest clubs in circuit history, ran up a 20-game winning streak against conference, professional and semi-pro opposition.

AT SUFFOLK DOWNS

BOSTON, June 4.—(AP)—The Brookemeade Stable's Going Away, a three-year-old son of Whirlaway, lived up to his name by defeating the Greentree Stable's favored One Hitter by two and a half lengths in the 14th running of the Yankee Handicap today at Suffolk Downs.

LOCAL SEMI-PROS VISIT WHITE SOX FOR LAST SCRAP

Effort Underway To Find Aid To Keep Team In Northeast Loop

Unless some means is forthcoming soon to support the Monroe baseball locally, the Sports will be making their final appearance in a Northeast Louisiana League game this afternoon when they journey to Jones for a meeting with the Louisiana-Arkansas White Sox.

The Sports had announced Thursday they were dropping out of the league, effective today, after the Shreveport Sports had withdrawn support of the local semi-pro club.

While there was nothing definite announced, it was reported yesterday that an effort is being made to obtain local support, and Don Mayer, Winnsboro, president of the league, said he was advising league members to hold up on signing exhibition games on the Monroe dates until further notified.

Monroe defeated the La.-Ark. Sox, 9 to 8, in their last appearance at Jones, and another hard battle is expected this afternoon.

In other games over the circuit today Tallulah will present practically a new lineup to face the the invading Columbia Ramblers, Lake Providence, fighting back toward the top, will move into Winnsboro, and Oak Grove will travel to Urania for a clash with the LaSalle Producers.

All games begin at 3 o'clock.

M. A. Phillips, member of the Tallulah organization, last night said his club would open today with only First Baseman Cooper remaining in the lineup from the team that opened the season. He listed the new Tallulah lineup as Boswell, second base; Hodges, center field; Hinton, shortstop; Magula, right field; Cooper, first base; Edney, left field; McLemore, third base; Collins, catcher; and Hahn or Eckart, pitcher.

Tallulah, with a team now averaging 20-years of age, expects to make up a postponed Lake Providence game next Friday night. Silver City, Miss., wil be in Tallulah for an exhibition tomorrow night.

The lineup for what looms as Monroe's final show was announced as Fenton, first base; Danks, third base; Holley, center field; Gregg, shortstop; Hester, right field; King, second base; Curtis or Long, left field; Webb, catcher and Fluitt, pitcher.

BLUE AND GRAY TENNIS MATCHES OPEN TUESDAY

MONTGOMERY, Ala., June 4.—(AP)—Several top ranking southern tennis players have entered the first annual Blue and Gray Tennis Championships to start here Tuesday.

Heading the list is Jack Tuero, Tulane University ace, who is southern champion and also Southeastern Conference champion. Tuero will be favored but he will be hard pressed by such players as his Tulane teammates, Richard Mouledous of New Orleans, ranked No. 7 in Dixie and Wade Herren of Birmingham, ranked No. 11.

Other players with southern ranking who will be contenders are Tom Molloy of New Orleans and Rollins College, ranked No. 15; Harcourt Water of New Orleans and Tulane, No. 16; and Les Longshore of Anniston and Tulane, No. 19.

Ted Lyons was an active Chicago White Sox pitcher for 24 years, although he missed three seasons due to the war.

WYNN KEEPING QUIET ON WILLIAMS FAILURE

CLEVELAND, June 4.—(AP)—Early Wynn says he isn't supersititous, but he doesn't like to talk about his ability to retire Ted Williams.

Early, lots happier since doffing the Washington Senators' garb for a Cleveland Indian uniform, allowed Boston's slugger no hits in four trips yesterday as he defeated the Red Sox 8-1 on four hits.

Ted went down swinging on his first trip, then bounced to Wynn and skied poppers to Lou Boudreau and Al Rosen in succeeding attempts.

Wynn said he gave Williams a "variety of stuff to choose from," but that's about all Cleveland's leading pitcher would volunteer about the successful "jinx."

"I'm not superstitious," he said, "but I don't like to say much about my pitching to Williams.

"I remember him being quoted last season as saying I was the toughest pitcher in the league for him. Two days later I went against Boston and he got four for four."

Earlier in the season, all of Wynn's luck looked bad. He appeared rarely and when he did pitch, the opposition touched him freely.

On May 23 against the Philadelphia Athletics, he came out of his slump with a six-hit, 7-3 win.

Combined with a hitless inning previously hurled, Wynn now has allowed only 14 hits in 30 innings for a won and lost record of 3-0.

DISTRICT N. A. A. A. BALL MEET OPENS THURSDAY

CHARLOTTE, N. C., June 4.—(AP)—Paced by Wake Forrest's "dream team," four members of the Southern and Southeastern conferences will open the third district N. C. A. A. baseball championship tournament here Thursday night.

Winners of 24 out of 26 regular season games, Wake Farret's Southern Conference champions will stack up against Richmond, also of the Southern Conference, and Mississippi State and Kentucky, top pair in the Southeastern.

Play is on a double elimination basis. The winner advances to a regional tournament, one of four from which will come four survivors for the national finals at Wichita, Kans., June 22-25.

Thursday's openers send Mississippi State against Richmond in the 5 o'clock (E. S. T.) opener and Kentucky against Wake Forrest at 7:30.

The first night losers will meet in Friday's first game, the winners in the second. This will cut the field to three teams that will resume firing Saturday.

Mississippi State, winner of the Southeastern's western division laurels, whipped Kentucky's eastern champions, three out of four, this week to sew up the conference crown.

Wake Forrest, hailed by Southern Conference observers as one of the finest clubs in circuit history, ran up a 20-game winning streak against conference, professional and semi-pro opposition.

WOMAN WILL GET TREASURER'S POST

National Democratic Committeewoman Most Likely For High Post

By Ernest B. Vaccaro

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(AP)—Highly placed White House aides reported today that President Truman has decided to appoint a woman as treasurer of the United States.

These informants said that Mrs. Georgia Neese Clark of Richland, Kas., is the most likely choice for the post. She is Democratic national committeewoman from Kansas.

If appointed she would succeed William A. Julian, who was killed in an automobile accident last Sunday. Julian had been treasurer (this is not the same job as secretary of the treasury, a cabinet post) since 1933.

The prospective appointment is in line with the president's determination to give greater recognition to women and the part they played in his surprise election victory last November.

Only last Thursday, at his weekly news conference, Mr. Truman said he had several women under consideration for appointments to diplomatic posts, including that of ambassador to Denmark.

He did not name anyone at the time.

Appointment of a woman as treasurer would be another victory for Mrs. India Edwards, chairman of the women's division of the Democratic national committee, who has been championing their cause.

Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, one time governor of Wyoming, has long been director of the mint.

Other women already occupying important posts in the administration include Frieda Hennock on the federal communications commission, Frances Perkins on the civil service commission, and former Sen. Hattie Caraway on the employes' compensation appeals board.

The office of treasurer of the United States is essentially a banking job for the government. The treasurer is particularly charged with the receipt, disbursement and accounting of public money, and the custody, issuance and redemption of currency and coin. The issue and payment of checks, the safekeeping of securities deposited as collateral or otherwise, and the payment of public debt obligations are in the treasurer's hands.

The treasurer's signature appears on all U. S. currency, along with that of the secretary of the treasury.

STRIKERS PROPOSE EAST-WEST OFFICES

BERLIN, June 4.—(AP)—West Berlin's railway strikers proposed today that the German railroad administration split itself into two business offices along east-west lines to end the two-week walkout.

Rejection was implied, however, by a statement of the president of the Soviet-controlled system, Willy Kreikemeyer, to a west Berlin reporter.

"There is only one management." Kreikemeyer snapped.

West Berlin's Lord Mayor, Ernst Reuter, offered in a letter to Kreikemeyer to lend the railway system west marks and proposed himself as a mediator in an effort to speed the settlement and ge tthe 14,000 strikers back to work.

The strikers suggested that the railway, which is controlled by the Russians, could still operate as one system, but have both west Berlin and east Berlin offices.

The western office, under this proposal, would recognize the striking independent trade union (U. G. O.), pay the workers in west marks, and guarantee the workers would not be fired for political reasons or for striking.

The railway administration, which has refused to deal directly with the western trade union, technically would save face. The east Berlin office would continue to do business in Soviet zone east marks and continue to bargain with the Communist free German trade union.

The railway administration already has offered to pay 60 per cent of the strikers' wages in west marks, but the offer has been turned down by a vote of the strikers, who demand 100 per cent.

However, the railroad apparently has taken steps already to get revenue in west marks for payment of wages in west marks.

FLA. WOMAN WINS ANNUAL AIR SHOW

MIAMI, Fla., June 4.—(AP)—Mrs. Helen McBride of Apopka, Fla., today won the race for 65 horsepower planes, feature event at the opening of the third annual all-woman air show.

Mrs. McBride, who has been flying 11 years, led the field of five from the start and took $300 first prize money.

Apparent winner of the same event last year, Mrs. McBride was disqualified then for cutting a pylon. Today she took no chances and covered the 12-mile course in 8.55.

Ann Shields, Asheville, N. C., was second; Ann Wilder, Fort Pierce, Fla., third; Kaddy Landry, Coral Gables, Fla., fourth, and Thersa Ricou, Miami, fifth.

Dark clouds and light sprinkles of rain delayed the show's start but an estimated 3,000 persons assembled at Amelia Earhart Field to see the annual event.

The program included aerobatics, sailplane demonstration, and comedy acts.

Meanwhile, it was announced that Laurette Foy and her co-pilot, Sue Kindred, both of North Hollywood, Calif., won the 2,544-mile air race from San Diego, Calif., to Miami in a Piper Clipper.

Second place went to Betty Gillies, San Diego, and co-pilot Barbara London, Long Beach, in a Navion. All four of the women are mothers. De Thurmond of North Hollywood was third. Sixteen competed and all finished.

Tomorrow's program features two air races, one the $1,000 closed course event of five miles and the other a $500 short course race for planes of 75 to 125 horsepower.

Following the show, the women pilots will fly to Havana Monday for a two-day visit in the Cuban capital.

on vessel's departure New York."

He added:

"I sincerely hope the ship, her master and her crew will not become victims of the disappointment over the escape of Mr. Eisler or over the decision of a British court which set him free."

A justice department spokesman said in Washington there are "plenty of statutes" under which a ship could be seized and held if it were found to be involved in a violation of the immigration laws.

The justice department could start such proceedings, however, only if it were found that the steamship line, its officials, the ship's master or others connected with its operation were found to be linked with the violation, the spokesman said.

Eisler was taken off the Batory by British officials at Southampton May 14 at the urgent request of American authorities. A British court freed him May 27 and soon after he flew to Prague.

Then he went to Berlin en route to Leipzig, where he has been offered a university professorship.

The Batory was built in 1936 in Italy in exchange for Polish coal. She was valued at $6,000,000. After service as an allied transport during the conflict, she was rebuilt in Antwerp at a cost of $2,000,000.

The liner gave Poland a foothold in the north Atlantic luxury trade for the first time. Before the war, she also made several West Indies cruise trips. A sister ship, the Pilsudski, was sunk in the war.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(AP)—The Polish embassy said today it will use "all legal means against any unjustified or illegal action" with respect to the liner Batory, on which Gerhart Eisler fled the United States.

At the same time, Ambassador Jozef Winiewicz said in a statement that the captain of the liner, which returned to New York today, had been instructed to give U. S. authorities "fullest aid" in trying to learn how Eisler boarded the vessel.

The envoy said "no one on the Polish side took any part nor had any knowledge of" Eisler's presence aboard until after the liner had sailed for Europe on May 6.

Winiewicz said "I sincerely hope the ship, her master and her crew will not become victims of the disappointment over the escape of Mr. Eisler or over the decision of a British court which set him free."

ASKS SUPREME COURT EXPANSION FOR MISS.

BILOXI, Miss., June 4.—(AP)—The Mississippi Bar Association today called for expansion of the state supreme court.

The association said in a resolution that the work load of the high tribunal is so heavy it is now one year in arrears in its docket.

To remedy the situation the association urged expansion of the court from six to nine members.

Pending legislative action to that end, the association called on Gov. Fielding L. Wright to appoint three supreme court commissioners. These would have the same authority as justices, under the association plan.

The association closed its annual session after electing Robert W. Thompson, 48, Gulfport attorney, as its president.

He defeated Quitman Ross, of Laurel, in a spirited election.

Gipson Witherspoon, Meridian, was elected vice-president and Merle F. Palmer, Pascagoula, second vice-president.

Biloxi was selected as the 1950 convention site.

Bar commissioners elected were: W. C. Sweat, Corinth; Hanum Gardner, Gulfport; L. A. Smith, Jr., Holly Springs; Jerome S. Hafter, Greenville; Charles D. Fair, Louisville; Oliver M. Hornsby, Natchez; John C. Satterfield, Jackson; W. E. McIntyre, Brandon; J. D. Thames, Vicksburg; J. Ray Gupson, Meridian; Vincent Brocato, Clarksdale; J. K. Travis, Hattiesburg; E. A. Turnage, Monticello; Judge F. B. Hewitt, McComb; Robert H. McFarland, Bay Springs; John H. Holloman, Columbus; and J. H. Caldwell, Charleston.

Retiring President Phil A. Stone and President Thompson were named delegate and alternate to the American Bar Association.

RAIN STRIKES PARTS OF NATION SATURDAY

CHICAGO, June 4.—(AP)—There were a number of rainy areas in the nation today.

The wet spots included parts of the south Atlantic coast, the Ohio valley and the plateau state, where showers were scattered and medium to light.

An extensive rain area, heavy in some localities, extended from southern Wyoming southeastward into Colorado and the western portions of Kansas and Nebraska. Lamar, Colo., had a fall of 1.20 inches in six hours and a total of 2.60 inches for a 24 hour period.

Elsewhere, the weather was mostly fair. Warm, humid air continued to flow from Texas into the Ohio valley. It was warm, but not so humid in the east.

The central and northern plains had cool weather, and temperatures went lower in the upper Mississippi and Great Lakes regions. It was rather cool in the Rocky Mountain region and mild along the Pacific coast.

MAY REVEAL ATOM

benefits and any military disadvantages that might come from divulging this information," he continued.

He added that he is making a study of this situation, as are some of his colleagues.

President Truman has opposed making public any information on the number of bombs stockpiled.

Lilienthal recently promised a study of McMahon's suggestion, but the Connecticut senator said he had not received any report.

Hickenlooper made it plain that, so far as he is concerned, the number of the bombs will not be divulged as a result of his questioning of Lilienthal with regard to commission policies.

The Iowa senator said he regards the number of bombs as "a matter that should be carefully guarded" because of the "benefits it would bring to a potential enemy" if the world found out.

Fortified with commission documents supplied at his demand, Hickenlooper will resume his case against Lilienthal Monday.

The Iowa senator complained to reporters, however, that he has not yet been supplied with information from the commission, including correspondence with and reports from the F. B. I., about all losses or misplacements of atomic materials. He has said that the fact that four grams of uranium oxide still are missing from the University of Chicago Argone Laboratory makes it impossible to discount the possibility of spy activity.

Hickenlooper criticized as "utter and complete propaganda" what he said was the printing and circulation at the Oak Ridge, Tenn., atomic plant of copies of President Truman's recent statement praising Lilienthal's work and asserting that attacks on him hinged on "relatively trivial" matters.

The Iowa senator said he had been informed of this in an anonymous letter in which was enclosed a copy of the printed statement.

"This is utter and complete propaganda, published at government expense, about an inquiry that is going on and which will produce facts that are not 'relatively trivial,'" he declared.

The commission had no comment.

Hickenlooper also contended that the commission had violated the law in issuing emergency security clearances for employes of contractors. Some 3,500 such clearances have been issued to date, testimony has showed.

The Iowa senator said that as he interprets the law, the commission can issue such clearances only for its own—and not the contractors'—employes.

McMahon said that as yet he has been unable to learn from the commission how many persons given emergency clearances later were disclosed to be poor security risks by F. B. I. investigations.

SCHOOL TIMBER

sold are in Caldwell parish and that the state law, prior to 1948, provides revenue thus derived must be divided between the affected parishes according to the fraction of the township located in a particular parish.

"There has been no controversy between Ouachita and Caldwell school boards, or between Superintendent Johnson (of Caldwell) and myself," Mr. Manning said. "Each board only wishes to abide by the law but wishes to be sure the money is being allocated according to the correct law that applies in this case."

Mr. Manning's statement in full is as follows:

"This statement is made to clear up certain ideas relative to the distribution of the $175,200.00 derived from the sale of timber on five sixteenth sections. First, the sixteenth sections belong to the respective townships in which they are located as a gift of the federal government for the schools of each township. Three townships from which timber was sold lie all in Ouachita parish, the amount received from these being $20,200.00, all legally belonging to Ouachita parish. Deducting the $20,200.00, the balance of $155,000.00 belongs to township 15 north range 2 east, $81,000.00 and to township 15 north range 3 east, $74,000.00.

"One half of township 15 north range 2 east and approximately 5/12 of township 15 north range 3 east is located in Caldwell parish. Under laws prior to 1948 these monies have been divided between parishes according to the fraction of the township located in a particular parish.

"There was an expense of $1,682.96 incurred in selling the timber and this amount was deducted from the $175,200.00 leaving a balance of $173,517.04.

"When the $173,517.04 was turned over to the state treasurer, Mr. Tugwell, he followed the procedure of the past 75 years of requesting the state auditor to check the location of the townships and divide the money. Mr. L. B. Baynard, state auditor, allocated $100,588.83 to Ouachita and $72,928.21 to Caldwell. I received the check for $100,588.83 subject to the action of the Ouachita Parish School Board. This check was deposited with the notation that this in no way affected any claim this parish may have to all or a part of the amount allocated to Caldwell parish. There has been no controversy between Ouachita and Caldwell school boards, or between Superintendent Johnson and myself. Each board only wishes to abide by the law but wishes to be sure the money is being allocated according to the correct law that applies in this case.

"This amount has been in the hands of the Ouachita Parish School Board since 1945. It was invested in U. S. government bonds part of this time and earned $5,676.48 interest, which amount will be divided between the two parishes in the same proportion as was the principal. Had the money, $175,200.00 been forwarded to the state treasurer it would have drawn 4 per cent interest or about $7,000.00 per year. Neither Caldwell nor Ouachita parish schools have lost any money by not sending the money to Baton Rouge.

"Ouachita has drawn from $22,000.00 to $47,000.00 per year during this time from the equalization fund. Caldwell has drawn more. Any interest from sixteenth section funds paid to a parish is subtracted from the amount due a parish from the equalization fund. The Ouachita members of the Ouachita Parish School Board knew this and with no loss to the schools of the parish, decided to hold the money until a law was passed allowing use of the principal. This law was passed by the 1948 legislature, thus Ouachita is able to use at least the $100,588.83 already received from the fund.

"The only reason for this statement is that several conflicting and erroneous statements have been made through the press and verbally.

"In conclusion it is reiterated that the Ouachita Parish School Board has not lost one cent by not forwarding to Baton Rouge but holding same in a local bank."

BATTLE TO KEEP

disputes; it only leads to more seizure and ultimately to nationalization and state-ism."

Five proposed amendments to the administration bill, including the seizure proposal, were outlined to an all-day meeting of Democratic senators yesterday. There was no decision on any of them, but backers of the amendments claim they attracted some support which they said the administration bill otherwise would not get.

Amid the talk of compromise, William Green, president of the American Federation of Labor, served notice that "labor will never be satisfied with anything else" except outright repeal of the Taft-Hartley act. He said this congress "has a clear mandate from the people" for such action.

Green, writing in the A. F. L. political league's new publication, The League Reporter, said "we expect action—now."

"If we don't get action within a reasonable time," he added, "we will call upon every working man and woman in America to go to the polls in 1950 to defeat those members of congress who failed to respond to the will of the American people."

Besides Douglas, original sponsors of the five amendments included Senator Hill (D-Ala.) and Republican Senators Aiken (Vt.) and Morse (Ore.).

Douglas said today that two more Democrats, Senators Withers (Ky.) and Humphrey (Minn.), and another Republican, Senator Tobey (R-N. H.) have agreed to join in sponsoring the amendments.

In addition to seizure of struck plants for up to 90 days, the amendments provide for:

A free speech guarantee to both employers and workers; union financial reports; collective bargaining in good faith on the part of both unions and employers; and for oaths by both union officers and employers that they are not Communists, Fascists, or members of totalitarian organizations.

It was learned that Taft and other backers of his substitute bill were much relieved when found out just what kind of a compromise the Democratic leadership has in mind.

Taft, it known, regards the compromise as less of a vote-getter than the one which went down to defeat in the house a month ago, despite the fact it had the backing of Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex.).

The Taft substitute would keep 22 of what he calls "the best features" of the Taft-Hartley law. The proposed amendments to the administration bill would retain only four of the 22 provisions in Taft's list.

Taft reportedly feels that gives him a wide leeway to assail the proposed compromise version of the administration bill on the ground that the concessions contemplated are insignificant.

Douglas himself does not regard the amendments he is sponsoring as a compromise program, although most of his colleagues do. Douglas insisted to reporters that his proposals constitute "an attempt to harness the realities."

Backers of the program Douglas is for are known to believe that they probably will lose the votes of about 12 to 14 of the senate's 54 Democrats. That means they will have to pick up the votes of from 6 to 8 Republicans to put their bill across.

So, with three Republicans co-sponsoring the amendments, from 3 to 5 G. O. P. converts still are needed, the Democrats figure.

In the coal association's attack on the seizure proposals, Battle said the owners and operators of the nation's bituminous coal mines "speak from bitter experience" in opposing the idea.

He said the government, under its wartime emergency powers, seized the industries properties five times, and he added:

"These seizures were the vehicle for dictating terms for surrender to the union (John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers) on all the essential points at issue, and for requiring of the mine workers concessions that were uneconomic and the seed for future trouble, as the price for having their mines returned to them."

RECAPTURE 8

Jack Heeny, 47; Donald Wurster, 23, and Charles P. Ross, 28.

They had made their way eastward about 10 miles to the farming section near Glen Easton, W. Va.

Taylor, still in prison garb, went to a small grocery operated by Floyd Fritzman and his 22-year-old wife, Twila.

The other three hid in the woods nearby.

The convict ordered "more groceries than three men could eat," Fritzman related. When the grocer started to question him, Taylor made a break for the door.

Fritzman grabbed a pistol and fired five shots. Taylor was not hit, but he stopped dead in his tracks. Then, while Fritzman held him at bay with a shotgun, his wife called officers already in the neighborhood. A search of the woods soon flushed out Taylor's three companions.

State police said they believed a fifth man was hiding in the same area.

As hundreds of law enforcement officers continued their hunt through the mountains and flatlands near the river, a full investigation continued into the break for the supposedly "escape-proof" section of the prison.

Warden Orel Skeen said the men—all described as "dangerous"—used crudely shaped triangular drills and an improvised hack-saw to cut through the bars before dawn yesterday.

He and other officials theorized that some managed to get out of their cells and jimmed open the cells of the others.

Guard Jackie James, the only man on duty in the section, was bound and gagged.

The prisoners then proceeded along a corridor to a barred window in the high, thick-stoned wall, cut through the old medal of those bars, and got to the ground 20 feet below.

At Bellaire, O., where Ables was treated for a gunshot wound in the shoulder, Ohio Highway Patrolman R. A. Jackmas said the convict told him this story of his short-lived freedom:

He and Starcher, old prison pals, paired off together after the gang broke up in the streets of Moundsville.

They sat or dozed in a fringe of woods within sight of the prison all day yesterday. Late last night, the two men made their way across the river in a stolen skiff.

Afterwards, they broke into a coal company wash house and took some clothes.

Ables was foraging for his first food since his last prison meal when he was spotted. Starcher was hiding in nearby bushes.

A roadblock was thrown around Belpre, O., during the afternoon after an automobile reported stolen in Powhatan was found abandoned near there.

FIRE DESTROYS S. P. MARSHLAND TRESTLE

ORANGE, Tex., June 4.—(AP)—Fire destroyed 700 feet of a mile-long Southern Pacific railroad trestle over gulf coast marshland near here today.

W. S. Jackson, Orange passenger agent, said the cause of the fire was not known.

He said the damage would cut Orange off from train service for at least 48 hours. Jackson said it would take that long to repair the trestle.

West coast-bound trains from New Orleans are being detoured north of Orange by way of Lake Charles, La., and Beaumont, Tex., on Kansas City Southern tracks.

The trestle runs over Louisiana marshland about 10 miles north of here. It is just east of the Southern Pacific Echo interstate crossing over the Sabine river.

Jackson said all availlable repair crews were sent to rebuild the trestle.

Wheat is the most widely distributed of the cereal crops.

WOMAN WILL GET TREASURER'S POST

National Democratic Committeewoman Most Likely For High Post

By Ernest B. Vaccaro

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(AP)—Highly placed White House aides reported today that President Truman has decided to appoint a woman as treasurer of the United States.

These informants said that Mrs. Georgia Neese Clark of Richland, Kas., is the most likely choice for the post. She is Democratic national committeewoman from Kansas.

If appointed she would succeed William A. Julian, who was killed in an automobile accident last Sunday. Julian had been treasurer (this is not the same job as secretary of the treasury, a cabinet post) since 1933.

The prospective appointment is in line with the president's determination to give greater recognition to women and the part they played in his surprise election victory last November.

Only last Thursday, at his weekly news conference, Mr. Truman said he had several women under consideration for appointments to diplomatic posts, including that of ambassador to Denmark.

He did not name anyone at the time.

Appointment of a woman as treasurer would be another victory for Mrs. India Edwards, chairman of the women's division of the Democratic national committee, who has been championing their cause.

Mrs. Nellie Tayloe Ross, one time governor of Wyoming, has long been director of the mint.

Other women already occupying important posts in the administration include Frieda Hennock on the federal communications commission, Frances Perkins on the civil service commission, and former Sen. Hattie Caraway on the employes' compensation appeals board.

The office of treasurer of the United States is essentially a banking job for the government. The treasurer is particularly charged with the receipt, disbursement and accounting of public money, and the custody, issuance and redemption of currency and coin. The issue and payment of checks, the safekeeping of securities deposited as collateral or otherwise, and the payment of public debt obligations are in the treasurer's hands.

The treasurer's signature appears on all U. S. currency, along with that of the secretary of the treasury.

STRIKERS PROPOSE EAST-WEST OFFICES

BERLIN, June 4.—(AP)—West Berlin's railway strikers proposed today that the German railroad administration split itself into two business offices along east-west lines to end the two-week walkout.

Rejection was implied, however, by a statement of the president of the Soviet-controlled system, Willy Kreikemeyer, to a west Berlin reporter.

"There is only one management," Kreikemeyer snapped.

West Berlin's Lord Mayor, Ernst Reuter, offered in a letter to Kreikemeyer to lend the railway system west marks and proposed himself as a mediator in an effort to speed the settlement and ge tthe 14,000 strikers back to work.

The strikers suggested that the railway, which is controlled by the Russians, could still operate as one system, but have both west Berlin and east Berlin offices.

The western office, under this proposal, would recognize the striking independent trade union (U. G. O.), pay the workers in west marks, and guarantee the workers would not be fired for political reasons or for striking.

The railway administration, which has refused to deal directly with the western trade union, technically would save face. The east Berlin office would continue to do business in Soviet zone east marks and continue to bargain with the Communist free German trade union.

The railway administration already has offered to pay 60 per cent of the strikers' wages in west marks, but the offer has been turned down by a vote of the strikers, who demand 100 per cent.

However, the railroad apparently has taken steps already to get revenue in west marks for payment of wages in west marks.

FLA. WOMAN WINS ANNUAL AIR SHOW

MIAMI, Fla., June 4.—(AP)—Mrs. Helen McBride of Apopka, Fla., today won the race for 65 horsepower planes, feature event at the opening of the third annual all-woman air show.

Mrs. McBride, who has been flying 11 years, led the field of five from the start and took $300 first prize money.

Apparent winner of the same event last year, Mrs. McBride was disqualified then for cutting a pylon. Today she took no chances and covered the 12-mile course in 8.55.

Ann Shields, Asheville, N. C., was second; Ann Wilder, Fort Pierce, Fla., third; Kaddy Landry, Coral Gables, Fla., fourth, and Thersa Ricou, Miami, fifth.

Dark clouds and light sprinkles of rain delayed the show's start but an estimated 3,000 persons assembled at Amelia Earhart Field to see the annual event.

The program included aerobatics, sailplane demonstration, and comedy acts.

Meanwhile, it was announced that Laurette Foy and her co-pilot, Sue Kindred, both of North Hollywood, Calif., won the 2,544-mile air race from San Diego, Calif., to Miami in a Piper Clipper.

Second place went to Betty Gillies, San Diego, and co-pilot Barbara London, Long Beach, in a Navion. All four of the women are mothers. De Thurmond of North Hollywood was third. Sixteen competed and all finished.

Tomorrow's program features two air races, one the $1,000 closed course event of five miles and the other a $500 short course race for planes of 75 to 125 horsepower.

Following the show, the women pilots will fly to Havana Monday for a two-day visit in the Cuban capital.

on vessel's departure New York."

He added:

"I sincerely hope the ship, her master and her crew will not become victims of the disappointment over the escape of Mr. Eisler or over the decision of a British court which set him free."

A justice department spokesman said in Washington there are "plenty of statutes" under which a ship could be seized and held if it were found to be involved in a violation of the immigration laws.

The justice department could start such proceedings, however, only if it were found that the steamship line, its officials, the ship's master or others connected with its operation were found to be linked with the violation, the spokesman said.

Eisler was taken off the Batory by British officials at Southampton May 14 at the urgent request of American authorities. A British court freed him May 27 and soon after he flew to Prague.

Then he went to Berlin en route to Leipzig, where he has been offered a university professorship.

The Batory was built in 1936 in Italy in exchange for Polish coal. She was valued at $6,000,000. After service as an allied transport during the conflict, she was rebuilt in Antwerp at a cost of $2,000,000.

The liner gave Poland a foothold in the north Atlantic luxury trade for the first time. Before the war, she also made several West Indies cruise trips. A sister ship, the Pilsudski, was sunk in the war.

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(AP)—The Polish embassy said today it will use "all legal means against any unjustified or illegal action" with respect to the liner Batory, on which Gerhart Eisler fled the United States.

At the same time, Ambassador Jozef Winiewicz said in a statement that the captain of the liner, which returned to New York today, had been instructed to give U. S. authorities "fullest aid" in trying to learn how Eisler boarded the vessel.

The envoy said "no one on the Polish side took any part nor had any knowledge of" Eisler's presence aboard until after the liner had sailed for Europe on May 6.

Winiewicz said "I sincerely hope the ship, her master and her crew will not become victims of the disappointment over the escape of Mr. Eisler or over the decision of a British court which set him free."

ASKS SUPREME COURT EXPANSION FOR MISS.

BILOXI, Miss., June 4.—(AP)—The Mississippi Bar Association today called for expansion of the state supreme court.

The association said in a resolution that the work load of the high tribunal is so heavy it is now one year in arrears in its docket.

To remedy the situation the association urged expansion of the court from six to nine members.

Pending legislative action to that end, the association called on Gov. Fielding L. Wright to appoint three supreme court commissioners. These would have the same authority as justices, under the association plan.

The association closed its annual session after electing Robert W. Thompson, 48, Gulfport attorney, as its president.

He defeated Quitman Ross, of Laurel, in a spirited election.

Gipson Witherspoon, Meridian, was elected vice-president and Merle F. Palmer, Pascagoula, second vice-president.

Biloxi was selected as the 1950 convention site.

Bar commissioners elected were: W. C. Sweat, Corinth; Hanum Gardner, Gulfport; L. A. Smith, Jr., Holly Springs; Jerome S. Haften, Greenville; Charles D. Fair, Louisville; Oliver M. Hornsby, Natchez; John C. Satterfield, Jackson; W. E. McIntyre, Brandon; J. D. Thames, Vicksburg; J. Ray Gupson, Meridian; Vincent Brocato, Clarksdale; J. K. Travis, Hattiesburg; E. A. Turnage, Monticello; Judge F. B. Hewitt, McComb; Robert H. McFarland, Bay Springs; John H. Holloman, Columbus; and J. H. Caldwell, Charleston.

Retiring President Phil A. Stone and President Thompson were named delegate and alternate to the American Bar Association.

RAIN STRIKES PARTS OF NATION SATURDAY

CHICAGO, June 4.—(AP)—There were a number of rainy areas in the nation today.

The wet spots included parts of the south Atlantic coast, the Ohio valley and the plateau state, where showers were scattered and medium to light.

An extensive rain area, heavy in some localities, extended from southern Wyoming southeastward into Colorado and the western portions of Kansas and Nebraska. Lamar, Colo., had a fall of 1.20 inches in six hours and a total of 2.60 inches for a 24 hour period.

Elsewhere, the weather was mostly fair. Warm, humid air continued to flow from Texas into the Ohio valley. It was warm, but not so humid in the east.

The central and northern plains had cool weather, and temperatures went lower in the upper Mississippi and Great Lakes regions. It was rather cool in the Rocky Mountain region and mild along the Pacific coast.

benefits and any military disadvantages that might come from divulging this information," he continued.

He added that he is making a study of this situation, as are some of his colleagues.

President Truman has opposed making public any information on the number of bombs stockpiled.

Lilienthal recently promised a study of McMahon's suggestion, but the Connecticut senator said he had not received any report.

Hickenlooper made it plain that, so far as he is concerned, the number of the bombs will not be divulged as a result of his questioning of Lilienthal with regard to commission policies.

The Iowa senator said he regards the number of bombs as "a matter that should be carefully guarded" because of the "benefits it would bring to a potential enemy" if the world found out.

Fortified with commission documents supplied at his demand, Hickenlooper will resume his case against Lilienthal Monday.

The Iowa senator complained to reporters, however, that he has not yet been supplied with information from the commission, including correspondence with and reports from the F. B. I., about all losses or misplacements of atomic materials. He has said that the fact that four grams of uranium oxide still are missing from the University of Chicago Argone Laboratory makes it impossible to discount the possibility of spy activity.

Hickenlooper criticized as "utter and complete propaganda" what he said was the printing and circulation at the Oak Ridge, Tenn., atomic plant of copies of President Truman's recent statement praising Lilienthal's work and asserting that attacks on him hinged on "relatively trivial" matters.

The Iowa senator said he had been informed of this in an anonymous letter in which was enclosed a copy of the printed statement.

"This is utter and complete propaganda, published at government expense, about an inquiry that is going on and which will produce facts that are not 'relatively trivial,'" he declared.

The commission had no comment.

Hickenlooper also contended that the commission had violated the law in issuing emergency security clearances for employes of contractors. Some 3,500 such clearances have been issued to date, testimony has showed.

The Iowa senator said that as he interprets the law, the commission can issue such clearances only for its own—and not the contractors'—employes.

McMahon said that as yet he has been unable to learn from the commission how many persons given emergency clearances later were disclosed to be poor security risks by F. B. I. investigations.

SCHOOL TIMBER

sold are in Caldwell parish and that the state law, prior to 1948, provides revenue thus derived must be divided between the affected parishes according to the fraction of the township located in a particular parish.

"There has been no controversy between Ouachita and Caldwell school boards, or between Superintendent Johnson (of Caldwell) and myself," Mr. Manning said. "Each board only wishes to abide by the law but wishes to be sure the money is being allocated according to the correct law that applies in this case."

Mr. Manning's statement in full is as follows:

"This statement is made to clear up certain ideas relative to the distribution of the $175,200.00 derived from the sale of timber on five sixteenth sections. First, the sixteenth sections belong to the respective townships in which they are located as a gift of the federal government for the schools of each township. Three townships from which timber was sold lie all in Ouachita parish, the amount received from these being $20,200.00, all legally belonging to Ouachita parish. Deducting the $20,200.00, the balance of $155,000.00 belongs to township 15 north range 2 east, $81,000.00 and to township 15 north range 3 east, $74,000.00.

"One half of township 15 north range 2 east and approximately 5/12 of township 15 north range 3 east is located in Caldwell parish. Under laws prior to 1948 these monies have been divided between parishes according to the fraction of the township located in a particular parish.

"There was an expense of $1,682.96 incurred in selling the timber and this amount was deducted from the $175,200.00 leaving a balance of $173,517.04.

"When the $173,517.04 was turned over to the state treasurer, Mr. Tugwell, he followed the procedure of the past 75 years of requesting the state auditor to check the location of the townships and divide the money. Mr. L. B. Baynard, state auditor, allocated $100,588.83 to Ouachita and $72,928.21 to Caldwell. I received the check for $100,588.83 subject to the action of the Ouachita Parish School Board. This check was deposited with the notation that this in no way affected any claim this parish may have to all or a part of the amount allocated to Caldwell parish. There has been no controversy between Ouachita and Caldwell school boards, or between Superintendent Johnson and myself. Each board only wishes to abide by the law but wishes to be sure the money is being allocated according to the correct law that applies in this case.

"This amount has been in the hands of the Ouachita Parish School Board since 1945. It was invested in U. S. government bonds part of this time and earned $5,676.48 interest, which amount will be divided between the two parishes in the same proportion as was the principal. Had the money, $175,200.00 been forwarded to the state treasurer it would have drawn 4 per cent interest or about $7,000.00 per year. Neither Caldwell nor Ouachita parish schools have lost any money by not sending the money to Baton Rouge.

"Ouachita has drawn from $22,000.00 to $47,000.00 per year during this time from the equalization fund. Caldwell has drawn more. Any interest from sixteenth section funds paid to a parish is subtracted from the amount due a parish from the equalization fund. The Ouachita members of the Ouachita Parish School Board knew this and with no loss to the schools of the parish, decided to hold the money until a law was passed allowing use of the principal. This law was passed by the 1948 legislature, thus Ouachita is able to use at least the $100,588.83 already received from the fund.

"The only reason for this statement is that several conflicting and erroneous statements have been made through the press and verbally.

"In conclusion it is reiterated that the Ouachita Parish School Board has not lost one cent by not forwarding to Baton Rouge but holding same in a local bank."

Taft reportedly feels that gives him a wide leeway to assail the proposed compromise version of the administration bill on the ground that the concessions contemplated are insignificant.

Douglas himself does not regard the amendments he is sponsoring as a compromise program, although most of his colleagues do. Douglas insisted to reporters that his proposals constitute "an attempt to harness the realities."

Backers of the program Douglas is for are known to believe that they probably will lose the votes of about 12 to 14 of the senate's 54 Democrats. That means they will have to pick up the votes of from 6 to 8 Republicans to put their bill across.

So, with three Republicans co-sponsoring the amendments, from 3 to 5 G. O. P. converts still are needed, the Democrats figure.

In the coal association's attack on the seizure proposals, Battle said the owners and operators of the nation's bituminous coal mines "speak from bitter experience" in opposing the idea.

He said the government, under its wartime emergency powers, seized the industries properties five times, and he added:

"These seizures were the vehicle for dictating terms for surrender to the union (John L. Lewis' United Mine Workers) on all the essential points at issue, and for requiring of the mine workers concessions that were uneconomic and the seed for future trouble, as the price for having their mines returned to them."

Jack Heeny, 47; Donald Wurster, 23, and Charles P. Ross, 28.

They had made their way eastward about 10 miles to the farming section near Glen Easton, W. Va.

Taylor, still in prison garb, went to a small grocery operated by Floyd Fritzman and his 22-year-old wife, Twila.

The other three hid in the woods nearby.

The convict ordered "more groceries than three men could eat," Fritzman related. When the grocer started to question him, Taylor made a break for the door.

Fritzman grabbed a pistol and fired five shots. Taylor was not hit, but he stopped dead in his tracks. Then, while Fritzman held him at bay with a shotgun, his wife called officers already in the neighborhood. A search of the woods soon flushed out Taylor's three companions.

State police said they believed a fifth man was hiding in the same area.

Warden Orel Skeen said the men—all described as "dangerous"—used crudely shaped triangular drills and an improvised hack-saw to cut through the bars before dawn yesterday.

He and other officials theorized that some managed to get out of their cells and jimmed open the cells of the others.

Guard Jackie James, the only man on duty in the section, was bound and gagged.

The prisoners then proceeded along a corridor to a barred window in the high, thick-stoned wall, cut through the old medal of those bars, and got to the ground 20 feet below.

At Bellaire, O., where Ables was treated for a gunshot wound in the shoulder, Ohio Highway Patrolman R. A. Jackmas said the convict told him this story of his short-lived freedom:

He and Starcher, old prison pals, paired off together after the gang broke up in the streets of Moundsville.

They sat or dozed in a fringe of woods within sight of the prison all day yesterday. Late last night, the two men made their way across the river in a stolen skiff.

Afterwards, they broke into a coal company wash house and took some clothes.

Ables was foraging for his first food since his last prison meal when he was spotted. Starcher was hiding in nearby bushes.

FIRE DESTROYS S. P. MARSHLAND TRESTLE

ORANGE, Tex., June 4.—(AP)—Fire destroyed 700 feet of a mile-long Southern Pacific railroad trestle over gulf coast marshland near here today.

W. S. Jackson, Orange passenger agent, said the cause of the fire was not known.

He said the damage would cut Orange off from train service for at least 48 hours. Jackson said it would take that long to repair the trestle.

West coast-bound trains from New Orleans are being detoured north of Orange by way of Lake Charles, La., and Beaumont, Tex., on Kansas City Southern tracks.

The trestle runs over Louisiana marshland about 10 miles north of here. It is just east of the Southern Pacific Echo interstate crossing over the Sabine river.

Jackson said all availlable repair crews were sent to rebuild the trestle.

Wheat is the most widely distributed of the cereal crops.

OIL AND GAS NEWS

One Oil Completion, Two Gassers Reported In Week

STATE REPORT

Oil Well Drilled In LaSalle, Gassers In Union; One Dry Hole

Three completions in northeast Louisiana during the past week resulted in one producing oil well, one dry hole and two gassers, according to the weekly report of the department of conservation office here.

The successful oil completion was the Nunes Oil Corporation's S. B. Baldridge No. 5, which flowed 41 barrels a day at a depth of 1498 feet in the Tullos-Urania field of LaSalle parish. The well was brought in as a producer last Monday.

Two gassers were brought in in Union parish. The largest of the two was the Union Producing Company's Fee 122 No. 1 which showed 2,970,000 cubic feet of gas at a depth of 2179 feet. The other well was the Southern Carbon Company's Union Producing Company No. 12, with 192,000 cubic feet. Rock pressure in the first well was 660 pounds and in Southern's, 693 pounds.

The dry hole was drilled by the British American Producing Company in wildcat territory in Franklin parish. It was their G. N. King No. 1, and was dry and abandoned at a total depth of 6,201 feet. The location was in 4-13-7E.

A new oil location was staked out in Tensas parish, 38-12-12E, by the Union Oil Company of California. It was their Weatherly and Anderson No. 1, 660 feet north and 660 feet west of the SE corner of SW quarter of Section 38. In Union parish, the Union Producing Company started drilling of their Grayling No. 18, in Section 32, Township 22, Range 4E, and H. N. Crawford-Shell Oil Company spudded in on a well in Ora field. The location is in 23-22-1W, 330 feet north and 380 feet west of the southeast corner of the northeast quarter of southwest quarter of Section 23.

HUMBLE PLANS TEST OF WILDCAT AT WESTWEGO

NEW ORLEANS, June 4.—(AP)—Humble Oil and Refining Company is ready to test for oil at its Westwego wildcat directly across the Mississippi river from Harahan.

The wildcat—the Texas and New Orleans Railroad No. 1—is off the west side of the old Westwego dome in section 26-13S-22E.

Previous explorations of the dome have developed several wells but none of them sustained production.

The well is now bottomed at 10,129 feet though the project had a planned depth of 11,500 feet. No details have been released on the level of production tests but it is expected results will be known next week.

LARGEST DOCTORS GROUP WILL MEET

Annual Pow Wow Convenes With Expectation Of Hearing Health Program

By Frank Carey

ATLANTIC CITY, June 4.—(AP)—The American Medical Association—world's largest organization of doctors—prepared for its annual Pow-Wow today with indications that President Truman's call for compulsory health insurance would take a terrific lacing.

The A. M. A. declared it expected more than 16,000 doctors from this and other countries to attend sessions officially opening Monday at which the house of delegates — policy-making body of the organization—will consider "such matters as education of the American public against the dangers of compulsory sickness insurance."

The week-long parley, said the A. M. A., "will be one of the most important ever held by the largest medical organization in the world. The decisions will be vitally significant in determining the future of medicine in this country."

The organization said it expected that more than 30,000 persons, including wives and guests of A. M. A. members, would be registered in some 1,000 hotels in this resort city.

The A. M. A. has been outspoken in opposition to President Truman's plan to have the nation's workers pre-pay their sickness costs by deductions from take-home pay.

The organization that represents organized medicine favors "voluntary" pre-payment plans, supervised by state medical societies.

It contends that the Truman plan would "regiment" the practice of medicine in the United States, make doctors "clock-watchers," and reduce the quality of medical care in the nation.

Backers of President Truman's plan contend that millions of Americans lack proper medical care and that a pay-as-you-work system would solve the situation.

The program outlined for the doctors includes some 300 technical reports on medical and surgical advances, and a variety of exhibits ranging from surgery education by color-television to a movie outlining a new attack on rheumatic diseases.

The A. M. A. announced there would be a special session on "the timely topic of air pollution" adding:

"Until the Donora, Pa., episode (in which "smog" proved a hazard) public interest in this subject was casual.

"Now, people are asking about smoke and smog. Engineers and others concerned with measures of control seem to be thinking still of smog in terms of a nuisance rather than a public health problem."

The association indicated that its policy-making body would turn its microscope on the Truman plan and rival proposals for handling the nation's health problem when it said:

"The house (of delegates) will be concerned with current problems of importance to American medicine. A variety of legislation dealing with medical care is under consideration in congress * * *.

"This expected that a report will be made by the coordinating committee which is in charge of the education program for the American people on medical care in the United States."

The A. M. A. has called for a $25 assessment from each of its members to finance this "educational" program.

Critics have labelled it a "lobbying" fund to fight compulsory health insurance.

Oil Well Drilled In LaSalle, Gassers In Union; One Dry Hole

Three completions in northeast Louisiana during the past week resulted in one producing oil well, one dry hole and two gassers, according to the weekly report of the department of conservation office here.

The successful oil completion was the Nunes Oil Corporation's S. B. Baldridge No. 5, which flowed 41 barrels a day at a depth of 1498 feet in the Tullos-Urania field of LaSalle parish. The well was brought in as a producer last Monday.

Two gassers were brought in in Union parish. The largest of the two was the Union Producing Company's Fee 122 No. 1 which showed 2,970,000 cubic feet of gas at a depth of 2179 feet. The other well was the Southern Carbon Company's Union Producing Company No. 12, with 192,000 cubic feet. Rock pressure in the first well was 660 pounds and in Southern's, 693 pounds.

The dry hole was drilled by the British American Producing Company in wildcat territory in Franklin parish. It was their G. N. King No. 1, and was dry and abandoned at a total depth of 6,201 feet. The location was in 4-13-7E.

A new oil location was staked out in Tensas parish, 38-12-12E, by the Union Oil Company of California. It was their Weatherly and Anderson No. 1, 660 feet north and 660 feet west of the SE corner of SW quarter of Section 38. In Union parish, the Union Producing Company started drilling of their Grayling No. 18, in Section 32, Township 22, Range 4E, and H. N. Crawford-Shell Oil Company spudded in on a well in Ora field. The location is in 23-22-1W, 330 feet north and 380 feet west of the southeast corner of the northeast quarter of southwest quarter of Section 23.

The number of wells now drilling was listed as 30 by the report, with six inactive.

HUMBLE PLANS TEST OF WILDCAT AT WESTWEGO

NEW ORLEANS, June 4.—(AP)—Humble Oil and Refining Company is ready to test for oil at its Westwego wildcat directly across the Mississippi river from Harahan.

The wildcat—the Texas and New Orleans Railroad No. 1—is off the west side of the old Westwego dome in section 26-13S-22E.

Previous explorations of the dome have developed several wells but none of them sustained production.

The well is now bottomed at 10,129 feet though the project had a planned depth of 11,500 feet. No details have been released on the level of production tests but it is expected results will be known next week.

CELEBRATE SATURDAY AS 'OLD MAID'S DAY'

NORRISTOWN, Pa., June 4.—(AP)—Today is Old Maid's Day.

At least that is the hope of Marion Richards, 54, who, with 43 other unmarried women celebrated tonight at an "Old Maid's Day" dinner.

The opening of Miss Richard's campaign gained recognition from Indianapolis, Atlanta, Ga., Newark, N. J., Toledo, Ohio and Williamsport, Pa.

Miss Richards said she had received letters from writers in these five cities inquiring about the formation of Old Maid's clubs and congratulating her on her idea.

There are many days set aside for special celebration during the year, Miss Richards said, so why not one for old maids?

LARGEST DOCTORS GROUP WILL MEET

Annual Pow Wow Convenes With Expectation Of Hearing Health Program

By Frank Carey

ATLANTIC CITY, June 4.—(AP)—The American Medical Association—world's largest organization of doctors—prepared for its annual Pow-Wow today with indications that President Truman's call for compulsory health insurance would take a terrific lacing.

The A. M. A. declared it expected more than 16,000 doctors from this and other countries to attend sessions officially opening Monday at which the house of delegates — policy-making body of the organization—will consider "such matters as education of the American public against the dangers of compulsory sickness insurance."

The week-long parley, said the A. M. A., "will be one of the most important ever held by the largest medical organization in the world. The decisions will be vitally significant in determining the future of medicine in this country."

The organization said it expected that more than 30,000 persons, including wives and guests of A. M. A. members, would be registered in some 1,000 hotels in this resort city.

The A. M. A. has been outspoken in opposition to President Truman's plan to have the nation's workers pre-pay their sickness costs by deductions from take-home pay.

The organization that represents organized medicine favors "voluntary" pre-payment plans, supervised by state medical societies.

It contends that the Truman plan would "regiment" the practice of medicine in the United States, make doctors "clock-watchers," and reduce the quality of medical care in the nation.

Backers of President Truman's plan contend that millions of Americans lack proper medical care and that a pay-as-you-work system would solve the situation.

The program outlined for the doctors includes some 300 technical reports on medical and surgical advances, and a variety of exhibits ranging from surgery education by color-television to a movie outlining a new attack on rheumatic diseases.

The A. M. A. announced there would be a special session on "the timely topic of air pollution" adding:

"Until the Donora, Pa., episode (in which "smog" proved a hazard) public interest in this subject was casual.

"Now, people are asking about smoke and smog. Engineers and others concerned with measures of control seem to be thinking still of smog in terms of a nuisance rather than a public health problem."

The association indicated that its policy-making body would turn its microscope on the Truman plan and rival proposals for handling the nation's health problem when it said:

"The house (of delegates) will be concerned with current problems of importance to American medicine. A variety of legislation dealing with medical care is under consideration in congress * * *.

"This expected that a report will be made by the coordinating committee which is in charge of the education program for the American people on medical care in the United States."

The A. M. A. has called for a $25 assessment from each of its members to finance this "educational" program.

Critics have labelled it a "lobbying" fund to fight compulsory health insurance.

New Louisiana Law Code To Simplify Confused Status

Measures Approved By Legislatures Often Are Contradictory

BATON ROUGE, La., June 4.—(AP)—What's the law in Louisiana—about anything?

If you're not an attorney, you'll probably say, "I don't know, offhand. If I ever have to know, about anything important, I'll get a lawyer."

But suppose your lawyer doesn't know, and, about any number of important subjects, can't know without a terrific amount of research. Suppose he has to plow through one or two unofficial compilations of Louisiana statutes, the last official compilation (made in 1870), and the records of the doings of the legislature at its last few sessions, each time thinking of all the possible headings that might cover your problem.

And suppose he comes up at last with one or two laws that contradict each other, one or two that may or may not have been repealed, a few more that at one time or another have been declared unconstitutional, and several that obviously have no relation to present-day life.

All this supposing isn't very far from the truth.

If lawyers agree on anything, it is on the higgledy-piggeldy, unwildy, unpruned and badly arranged condition of the statutes of Louisiana.

But something is being done about it. The council of the Louisiana Law Institute meets in New Orleans next Friday and Saturday to review and approve the last section of a monumental three-year piece of work—the compilation and revision of the general statutes of Louisiana.

If the legislature next year adopts the revision—and it was the legislature that told the institute to make it—your lawyer should be able to look in one book, under one heading, and cite for you the statutes that apply to your problem.

Louisiana laws have been accumulating since the beginning of the 1800's—even before Louisiana was a state. Legislatures have been known to pass more than 500 at a single session. Most laws amend or repeal previous laws. It isn't very hard to overlook some of the previous laws when you are writing new ones to amend or replace them, or to write a law so broadly that it gets into more than one field. That's the way contradictions get on the lawbooks.

There have been efforts in the past to collect the statutes and arrange them in usable form. Official compilations were adopted in 1808, 1825 and 1870. Unofficial compilations, for the convenience of lawyers, have been since. But these were, in the main, only collecting and indexing jobs.

By 1946 the legislature determined to arrange for the slate to be wiped clean, so that all previous statutes could be repealed and a coherent body of law adopted at the same time.

To do the job, it called on the law institute. This body, unique in the United States, is a professional corps of about 250 judges, lawyers, and law professors, devoted to the study of the law. It is non-factional and independent of the state government. Some of its members, such as judges and lawyer-legislators, belong ex officio. The others get in only by invitation.

The legislature asked it to "prepare a comprehensive revision of the statutes * * * to simply their language, to correct their incongruities, to supply their deficiencies, to arrange them in order * * * and to reduce them to one connected text . . . ." It provided funds for a technical staff.

The staff sat down with 95,000 file cards to which were pasted the existing statutes and went to work. The plan was this:

Ten "reporters"—most of them law professors—divided the topics between them. Each reporter was assigned a research assistant and each acquired a group of advisers, lawyers or laymen especially versed in the particular subject for which the reporter was responsible.

Each reporter then undertook to piece together the scattered laws on his subject. Some statutes had to be taken apart and the pieces reasssembled by several reporters according to subject matter.

Co-ordinating the whole project was Dr. Dale E. Bennett of the Louisiana State University law school. Supervising generally was the council of the institute—50 members—which met once a month to review progress and make major decisions. For these members, the work was a labor of love. John H. Tucker of Shreveport headed the council's special committee on the revision.

The council took the position from the start that the institute's workers had to lean over backwards to avoid changing the law which they were authorized to arrange, simplify and correct. It made all decisions that seemed to involve the question whether or not a proposed revision was within the institute's mandate. It earned, from at least some of the institute staff, a reputation for being ultra-conservative in interpreting that mandate.

Nevertheless, in addition to rearranging the laws for clarity and usefulness, the institute has succeeded in reducing their bulk by more than half.

In the first place, all statutes that had been clearly declared unconstitutional by the state or United States supreme court could be eliminated without argument.

Then came the question which ones were obsolete. The institute took the position that only statutes actually unused for many years could be eliminated on this ground. And none of them were eliminated without consultation with the persons who might be interested—state agencies or private associations or individuals. Here's a simple example:

The researchers found two laws, each setting up a state chemist for agricultural work. One placed this position in the state department of agriculture, another in the university experiment station. The institute learned that only the experiment station chemist was functioning. There had been no appropriation for the other chemist—and no other chemist—for 40 years. The university was satisfied with the arrangement. So were the commissioner of agriculture and the advisors who were familiar with farm problems.

The dead-letter law for an agricultural chemist was erased.

Not all questions were as easy as this one to decide, especially those that involved a contradiction between existing laws. In some cases the institute was satisfied that the legislature had plainly expressed its intention in the later law and had only in advertently failed to repeal the earlier.

But whenever there was any real doubt, and especially in matters where a choice between two laws would involve a "legislative decision," the council ordered both the statutes brought forward in the new compilation. This often happened in the case of tax laws. The legislature later can straighten out the misfits, if it likes.

In some cases the institute took still another step. If the conflict between two laws, neither repealed, was so serious as to cause great public inconvenience, but at the same time of such a nature that the institute did not feel it could choose one or the other statute without stepping outside its field of revision and taking on the legislature's responsibility, it prepared a "caveat." "Caveat" means "look out." The institute's caveats, about 75 in all, are in effect messages to the legislature saying, "quick action is needed on this only you can do it." The institute hopes the caveats will be acted on at the same time that the revision is adopted.

Another proposal it hopes will be adopted is one for a permanent continuous revision of the statutes under institute supervision, so that after the future legislatures meet, each new law will be fitted into the orderly pattern and no general revision ever again will be needed.

The revised statutes will go to the printer in several batches, beginning June 15. Printed copies are scheduled to be back, ready for delivery to the governor, early in January. The next steps are up to him and the legislature.

HARD WORK CLIMAXED

Thirty-three youngsters climaxed a year of "hard work" this week. They were members of the kindergarten class of the Lida Benton school. The group were entertained with a picnic Wednesday in Bernstein park. At the lunch hour a picnic lunch was enjoyed by all. SILVER LADEN PLANE EXPLODES IN FLIGHT

CANTON, June 4.—(AP)—A twin-engined C-46 transport, reportedly loaded with silver, exploded on a flight from Canton to Chungking, advices reaching here said today. Presumably all its crew was killed.

The plane took off from Canton Thursday for the flight to the western China city which has been mentioned as the possible nationalist capital should the government flee Canton in the face of the Communists' southward drive.

MARGARET O'BRIEN IS BLAMED BY DON SYLVIO

HOLLYWOOD, June 4.—(AP)—Orchestra Leader Don Sylvio, estranged from movie moppet Margaret O'Brien's mother, today blamed the movies' "Little Miss Pigtails" for wrecking the three-months marriage.

Mrs. Sylvio, the former Mrs. Gladys O'Brien, announced a few days ago she would ask the courts for an annulment on the ground they haven't lived together as man and wife since their marriage in Palm Beach, Fla., February 26.

Sylvio, at first reluctant to discuss 12-year-old Margaret's avowed disapproval of him as a stepfather, told newsmen today:

"One night recently, Margaret said goodnight at 10 o'clock and went to bed. But instead of going to her own bed she went up and curled in her mother's bed. I'm the middleman all the way through in this case. I can't do battle with a little child, but there's just so much a man can take."

The 42-year-old Sylvio said Margaret seemed to like him until her mother announced the engagement, "and after that, whenever Gladys and I tried to go out alone, Margaret seemed hurt." After the wedding ceremony Margaret cried, clenched fists and refused to kiss Sylvio.

The orchestra leader said he has been living here in one of his wife's two apartments, "the three of us have been going to dinner regularly, and at night I'd go back to my place."

"Last Wednesday," he said, "Gladys' manager, Al Blum, told me she did not wish to continue the marriage, and he offered $3,000 if I'd agree to annulment. I was shocked. It was the first inkling she felt that way. I'd been living in separate quarters until Margaret gradually got used to having a man around. I don't know what this is all about, but I'm not going to let my wife or Margaret make a sucker of me."

Margaret and her mother were out of the city for the weekend and relatives said they would not return until Monday.

GIRL SCOUTS TO LEARN TO SWIM

The Girl Scouts, with the aid of Red Cross facilities, are opening a cooking school for all girls ten years or older, who reside in the Twin Cities.

The Red Cross chapter has given permission to use the canteen room and Mrs. Mildred Swift, home demonstrator, will conduct the classes.

There will be a beginner's class called the breakfast series and an advanced class or dinner series. A small fee will be required for registration to cover the cost of supplies. Registration will be held in Red Cross headquarters Monday, June 13, at 10 a.m.

W. M. SCOUT PACK HAS 1ST BIRTHDAY

Cub Scout Pack 13 of West Monroe which is sponsored by the First Baptist Church, will celebrate its first birthday Tuesday at 5:30 p.m. with a picnic at Bernstein Park.

Scout leaders report that fun and games have been arranged to include both the boys and parents.

All who plan to attend are urged to meet their respective dens and inform the den mothers if they and their parents expect to attend, the scout leader explained.

There will be several cubs graduating into various scout troops and their scoutmasters and den chiefs will take an active part in the picnic.

Forty-six scouts have registered again this year in Packs 13 and 18 leaders have registered.

During the months of July and August, the scouts will be building soap box cars which they will run in the annual Cubmobile Derby Race scheduled Tuesday, August 9.

94,000 DISABLED VETS EARN OWN LIVELIHOOD

WASHINGTON, June 4.—(AP)—More than 94,000 disabled World War II veterans have been fully trained to earn their livings, the veterans administration said today.

The men and women who have been rated as rehabilitated represent about 20 per cent of all handicapped veterans who have entered training with government aid, the V. A. said. On May 1 there were 218,957 veterans in training, half of them in schools and colleges.

Of the 94,000, about 50,800 have completed job training courses, 24,800 have completed work in colleges and universities, 18,000 have graduated from schools below the college level and 870 have completed institutional on-farm training courses.

V. A. said it did not know how many of the 94,000 actually are employed now.

New Louisiana Law Code To Simplify Confused Status

Measures Approved By Legislatures Often Are Contradictory

BATON ROUGE, La., June 4.—(AP)—What's the law in Louisiana—about anything?

If you're not an attorney, you'll probably say, "I don't know, offhand. If I ever have to know, about anything important, I'll get a lawyer."

But suppose your lawyer doesn't know, and, about any number of important subjects, can't know without a terrific amount of research. Suppose he has to plow through one or two unofficial compilations of Louisiana statutes, the last official compilation (made in 1870), and the records of the doings of the legislature at its last few sessions, each time thinking of all the possible headings that might cover your problem.

And suppose he comes up at last with one or two laws that contradict each other, one or two that may or may not have been repealed, a few more that at one time or another have been declared unconstitutional, and several that obviously have no relation to present-day life.

All this supposing isn't very far from the truth.

If lawyers agree on anything, it is on the higgledy-piggeldy, unwildy, unpruned and badly arranged condition of the statutes of Louisiana.

But something is being done about it. The council of the Louisiana Law Institute meets in New Orleans next Friday and Saturday to review and approve the last section of a monumental three-year piece of work—the compilation and revision of the general statutes of Louisiana.

If the legislature next year adopts the revision—and it was the legislature that told the institute to make it—your lawyer should be able to look in one book, under one heading, and cite for you the statutes that apply to your problem.

Louisiana laws have been accumulating since the beginning of the 1800's—even before Louisiana was a state. Legislatures have been known to pass more than 500 at a single session. Most laws amend or repeal previous laws. It isn't very hard to overlook some of the previous laws when you are writing new ones to amend or replace them, or to write a law so broadly that it gets into more than one field. That's the way contradictions get on the lawbooks.

There have been efforts in the past to collect the statutes and arrange them in usable form. Official compilations were adopted in 1808, 1825 and 1870. Unofficial compilations, for the convenience of lawyers, have been since. But these were, in the main, only collecting and indexing jobs.

By 1946 the legislature determined to arrange for the slate to be wiped clean, so that all previous statutes could be repealed and a coherent body of law adopted at the same time.

To do the job, it called on the law institute. This body, unique in the United States, is a professional corps of about 250 judges, lawyers, and law professors, devoted to the study of the law. It is non-factional and independent of the state government. Some of its members, such as judges and lawyer-legislators, belong ex officio. The others get in only by invitation.

The legislature asked it to "prepare a comprehensive revision of the statutes * * * to simply their language, to correct their incongruities, to supply their deficiencies, to arrange them in order * * * and to reduce them to one connected text . . ." It provided funds for a technical staff.

The staff sat down with 95,000 file cards to which were pasted the existing statutes and went to work. The plan was this:

Ten "reporters"—most of them law professors—divided the topics between them. Each reporter was assigned a research assistant and each acquired a group of advisers, lawyers or laymen especially versed in the particular subject for which the reporter was responsible.

Each reporter then undertook to piece together the scattered laws on his subject. Some statutes had to be taken apart and the pieces reasssembled by several reporters according to subject matter.

Co-ordinating the whole project was Dr. Dale E. Bennett of the Louisiana State University law school. Supervising generally was the council of the institute—50 members—which met once a month to review progress and make major decisions. For these members, the work was a labor of love. John H. Tucker of Shreveport headed the council's special committee on the revision.

The council took the position from the start that the institute's workers had to lean over backwards to avoid changing the law which they were authorized to arrange, simplify and correct. It made all decisions that seemed to involve the question whether or not a proposed revision was within the institute's mandate. It earned, from at least some of the institute staff, a reputation for being ultra-conservative in interpreting that mandate.

Nevertheless, in addition to rearranging the laws for clarity and usefulness, the institute has succeeded in reducing their bulk by more than half.

In the first place, all statutes that had been clearly declared unconstitutional by the state or United States supreme court could be eliminated without argument.

Then came the question which ones were obsolete. The institute took the position that only statutes actually unused for many years could be eliminated on this ground. And none of them were eliminated without consultation with the persons who might be interested—state agencies or private associations or individuals. Here's a simple example:

The researchers found two laws, each setting up a state chemist for agricultural work. One placed this position in the state department of agriculture, another in the university experiment station. The institute learned that only the experiment station chemist was functioning. There had been no appropriation for the other chemist—and no other chemist—for 40 years. The university was satisfied with the arrangement. So were the commissioner of agriculture and the advisors who were familiar with farm problems.

The dead-letter law for an agricultural chemist was erased.

Not all questions were as easy as this one to decide, especially those that involved a contradiction between existing laws. In some cases the institute was satisfied that the legislature had plainly expressed its intention in the later law and had only in advertently failed to repeal the earlier.

But whenever there was any real doubt, and especially in matters where a choice between two laws would involve a "legislative decision," the council ordered both the statutes brought forward in the new compilation. This often happened in the case of tax laws. The legislature later can straighten out the misfits, if it likes.

In some cases the institute took still another step. If the conflict between two laws, neither repealed, was so serious as to cause great public inconvenience, but at the same time of such a nature that the institute did not feel it could choose one or the other statute without stepping outside its field of revision and taking on the legislature's responsibility, it prepared a "caveat." "Caveat" means "look out." The institute's caveats, about 75 in all, are in effect messages to the legislature saying, "quick action is needed on this only you can do it." The institute hopes the caveats will be acted on at the same time that the revision is adopted.

Another proposal it hopes will be adopted is one for a permanent continuous revision of the statutes under institute supervision, so that after the future legislatures meet, each new law will be fitted into the orderly pattern and no general revision ever again will be needed.

The revised statutes will go to the printer in several batches, beginning June 15. Printed copies are scheduled to be back, ready for delivery to the governor, early in January. The next steps are up to him and the legislature.

Barbara Faulk Becomes Bride Of Haynes L. Harkey, Jr.

Simple Ceremony At Home Of Bride's Parents Followed By Reception For Two Hundred

Miss Barbara Faulk, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis I. Faulk, became the bride of Mr. Haynes L. Harkey, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Haynes L. Harkey, of Lake Providence, in an impressive ceremony performed by the Rev. A. M. Serex at the home of the bride's parents on Saturday, May 28, at 4 p.m. The ceremony was attended by relatives, close friends, and out-of-town guests.

Prior to the ceremony, Miss Camille Hancock, who was accompanied at the piano by Mr. Leon Hammonds, sang, "Beloved," "It Is Morn" and "I Love Thee." Mr. Hammonds played a soft accompaniment of nuptial music throughout the ceremony.

Magnolias were used throughout the house as decoration with an attractive grouping of the flowers on the mantel.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a white organdy frock with tight bodice and long sleeves with self-covered buttons ending in tiny cuffs. The two-tiered skirt of the gown had a scalloped hem. She wore a short organdy veil with scalloped edge, and carried a bouquet of gardenias.

Mrs. J. L. Williams, of Birmingham, Ala., sister of the bride, was her matron of honor. Her dress was a crisp white shadow organdy over mint green taffeta. She carried a bouquet of daisies and wore similar flowers in her hair.

Barbara Williams, niece of the bride, served as flower girl. Her white organdy frock was made on lines similar to those of the matron of honor and she carried a tiny daisy filled basket.

Mrs. Faulk, the mother of the bride wore a dusty rose crepe floor-length frock with a corsage of gardenias, while Mrs. Harkey, mother of the groom was gowned in blue crepe with an identical corsage.

A reception for two hundred guests followed the ceremony. The lace-covered bride's table bore a wedding ring cake surrounded by greenery gardenias, and tall white tapers in silver candelabra.

For traveling the bride wore a mink brown silk suit with dark brown accessories.

Out-of-town guests included: Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Harkey, Miss Aileen Harkey, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Voelker, Jr., Mr. and Mrs. Stephen Guenard, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur S. Guenard, Mr. Sidney Guenard, of Lake Providence; Dr. and Mrs. T. G. Biggs, of Oak Grove; Mr. and Mrs. Sherman P. Noble, of Jackson, Miss.; Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Sadler, of New Orleans; Mr. and Mrs. George M. Foote, Mrs. Ed Voelker, Dr. and Mrs. J. W. Attend the Church of Your Choice Regularly

The trees are preaching! Let's listen! What is that twisted tree saying to you and to me? What is the second and smaller tree telling you of life, as it twists about the other? "Only God can make a tree"; but even God's purpose to make a strong and straight tree sometimes fails. Why did not this tree grow tall and upright and sturdy? Why ill-formed and crooked and misshapen?

And so are some of us. Why do not women and men grow upward toward God and the good? Why have lives become twisted and gnarled and unattractive? Has the tree a lesson for us here? Most twisted trees were bent when they were young; some storm or some accident worked its evil will upon them. They were intended to grow straight and strong and beautiful; the seed was good, the soil was right; but they did not get the right start. When they were young some sinister influence left its mark upon them for all the years; they have grown in twisted shape because some force shaped them that way. How can we protect young human life from such twisting and scarring? The good heritage is not enough; the comfortable home is not enough; unless we elders see that this fine young life gets its chance to grow straight and true.

The neglected child of the street or of the lane gets an early twist; the storm of human wickedness and evil is too great for the young life to take; he is subjected too early to the sights and sounds of the women and men who have wrecked themselves.

The pampered child of the foolish parent who is too busy or too careless to guide the developing spirit gets twisted too soon. There are rules that must be learned if one is to play the game of life successfully; there are good habits that must be formed under patient discipline and by good example.

The frightened child who has been compelled to listen to quarreling and scolding elders gets an unhappy fear and disrespect for human contact. He has a right to live in an atmosphere of patient good will and of forbearance, but he is misdirected by selfish and unkind words and deeds.

The sour and the surly children of loveless homes and communities bear the marks of misdirection forever; every child has need of love and kindness and justice and patient understanding; these make the healthful air of human development.

Prayer and reverence for God and the good, loving fellowship in ways of integrity and of helpfulness make the right soil for straight-growing persons. As the twig is bent, so grows the tree.

The trees are preaching! Let's listen! What is that twisted tree saying to you and to me? What is the second and smaller tree telling you of life, as it twists about the other? "Only God can make a tree"; but even God's purpose to make a strong and straight tree sometimes fails. Why did not this tree grow tall and upright and sturdy? Why ill-formed and crooked and misshapen?

And so are some of us. Why do not women and men grow upward toward God and the good? Why have lives become twisted and gnarled and unattractive? Has the tree a lesson for us here? Most twisted trees were bent when they were young; some storm or some accident worked its evil will upon them. They were intended to grow straight and strong and beautiful; the seed was good, the soil was right; but they did not get the right start. When they were young some sinister influence left its mark upon them for all the years; they have grown in twisted shape because some force shaped them that way. How can we protect young human life from such twisting and scarring? The good heritage is not enough; the comfortable home is not enough; unless we elders see that this fine young life gets its chance to grow straight and true.

The neglected child of the street or of the lane gets an early twist; the storm of human wickedness and evil is too great for the young life to take; he is subjected too early to the sights and sounds of the women and men who have wrecked themselves.

The pampered child of the foolish parent who is too busy or too careless to guide the developing spirit gets twisted too soon. There are rules that must be learned if one is to play the game of life successfully; there are good habits that must be formed under patient discipline and by good example.

The frightened child who has been compelled to listen to quarreling and scolding elders gets an unhappy fear and disrespect for human contact. He has a right to live in an atmosphere of patient good will and of forbearance, but he is misdirected by selfish and unkind words and deeds.

The sour and the surly children of loveless homes and communities bear the marks of misdirection forever; every child has need of love and kindness and justice and patient understanding; these make the healthful air of human development.

Prayer and reverence for God and the good, loving fellowship in ways of integrity and of helpfulness make the right soil for straight-growing persons. As the twig is bent, so grows the tree.

Later Pentecost was observed also in commemoration of the giving of the Law on Mount Sinai.

LIMIT IS SOUGHT ON SCHOOL BOARD

Bill May Be Offered Also To Restrict Police Juries

SHREVEPORT, La., June 4.—(AP)—A bill to limit the membership of police juries and school boards may be introduced at the 1950 session of the state legislature.

L. F. Clawson, secretary of the Caddo parish police jury and the Louisiana Police Jury Association, said here that unless action is taken in 1950, many parishes will have "top-heavy" memberships after the 1952 elections.

Under existing state laws, Clawson said, each ward of a parish is entitled to one police juror. In addition each ward may elect one juror for each 10,000 population or major fraction thereof.

A proposal by Clawson, which he will seek to have introduced at the 1950 session, would limit the ward membership on a police jury or school board to five members.

"Since most parishes have approximately nine wards, with one thickly populated, the jury and school board membership could be held to a maximum 15 under the system," Clawson said.

Clawson pointed out that if the present system is followed after the 1950 census the membership will jump to 25 and 30 in some parishes, and perhaps to 35 and 40 by 1960.

If the legislature approves such measure, "it would bring about an improvement in local government, and would avoid the possibility of an unwieldly membership through an excess of members permissible under the population requirements now existing," Clawson said.

Clawson points out that passage of the proposed measure in 1950 would not affect jurors and school board members serving at that time. The system could be placed in operation with the 1952 election of jurors, he said.

In the case of school board members, Clawson said, the legislation could be so enacted as to become operative as terms of members expire.

METHODIST DATA SHOWING PROGRESS

Some interesting figures are furnished by Methodist pastors who attended the conference in Shreveport last week. The total membership shown is given as 102,922 which is the first time that 100,000 has been exceeded. Total raised by the conference for all purposes, $595,708, of which $127,521 was given to missions and charitable institutions.

The church school membership was given at 61,931. The Woman's Society of Christian Service and Wesleyan Guild totaled 11,640 and the total evulation of churches, parsonages and other property was given as $11,-671,921.

MANY GIFTS FOR MISTREATED BOY

VIDALIA, La., June 4.—(Special)—While plans are proceeding to send little John Carlie Franklin to the hospital for an operation to correct his facial deformity the child has become the recipient of some gifts from the people of Ferriday.

About $50 in cash had been collected by Saturday morning, Sheriff J. Hartwell Love said, and merchants had promised the nine-year-old child some clothes.

However, the sheriff stated, the child had no toys, and had probably never received a toy in his life.

The child was found chained to a bedpost last week in his shanty home on Lake Concordia.

The trial of his father, J. B. Frankline, who tied him in chains to the bedpost to "keep the boy from running away or getting run over," will be held Monday at Vidalia. The father is charged with cruelty to a juvenile.

MRS. SWIFT URGES JOHNNY CAKE USE

Do you like johnny cake made with sour milk? Mrs. Mildred Swift suggests it as an excellent variation from the standard corn meal breads, and the recipe let's you use some of your sour milk. The ingredients you use for making this kind of johnny cake are the kind that you'll have in the kitchen all the time—flour, baking powder, soda, milk, eggs, corn meal, sugar and shortening. You'll find this recipe for making johnny cake sprinkled among many others equally as interesting in a leaflet prepared by Florence Abington, L. S. U. agricultural extension associate nutritionist.

"Summer is coming and one-dish meals will be a welcome shortcut for the housewife. The leaflet containing 14 recipes for hot and cold one-dish meals is ready for housewives," states Mrs. Swift.

The agent says, "There are many ice cream flavors that'll do for a change, but rarely will any give that final satisfaction to a good dinner that you'll find in the standard vanilla ice cream. An ideal recipe for vanilla ice cream that you can make in the refrigerator ice tray is included among many frozen dessert suggestions that is available now. You use only a few ingredients—a couple of eggs, separated; a little sugar, a cup of top milk; some cream, a few grains of salt and some vanilla flavoring. And you can stir up this tasty ice cream recipe in a jiffy. You will get more than a baker's dozen frozen dessert suggestions in the leaflet.

All three mimeographed recipe leaflets are yours for the asking. Just call 3228 and ask for "One-Dish Meals," "Frozen Desserts" and "Bread Recipes." This is a free service from your agriculture extension department.

One type of banana has a single fruit which may be as much as two feet in length and thick as a man's arm, enough to make a meal for three men.

Miss Patricia Sanders, of Neville, and Pat Jenevein, of St. Matthews, have been selected as delegates to the Junior Red Cross Training Center at Camp Mac near Talladega, Ala. They will leave Monday for ten days at the training center. These delegates will receive instructions in safety services, community services, program planning, organiation and activities of J. R. C. councils, international activities, national blood program and other Red Cross activities. While the principal emphasis of the J. R. C. Training Centers is instrumental, there will be a generous measure of recreational activity planned both for sheer enjoyment and an opportunity to those who wish to develop leadership in organized recreation. Under competent adult supervision there will be boating, canoeing and other water skills taught. There are organized informal games such as basketball, horseshoes and softball and many others.

While the students plan their programs they are under the leadership of adults. A competent physician, registered nurse and nutritionist are among the adults on the staff.

LIMIT IS SOUGHT ON SCHOOL BOARD

Bill May Be Offered Also To Restrict Police Juries

SHREVEPORT, La., June 4.—(AP)—A bill to limit the membership of police juries and school boards may be introduced at the 1950 session of the state legislature.

L. F. Clawson, secretary of the Caddo parish police jury and the Louisiana Police Jury Association, said here that unless action is taken in 1950, many parishes will have "top-heavy" memberships after the 1952 elections.

Under existing state laws, Clawson said, each ward of a parish is entitled to one police juror. In addition each ward may elect one juror for each 10,000 population or major fraction thereof.

A proposal by Clawson, which he will seek to have introduced at the 1950 session, would limit the ward membership on a police jury or school board to five members.

"Since most parishes have approximately nine wards, with one thickly populated, the jury and school board membership could be held to a maximum 15 under the system," Clawson said.

Clawson pointed out that if the present system is followed after the 1950 census the membership will jump to 25 and 30 in some parishes, and perhaps to 35 and 40 by 1960.

If the legislature approves such measure, "it would bring about an improvement in local government, and would avoid the possibility of an unwieldly membership through an excess of members permissible under the population requirements now existing," Clawson said.

Clawson points out that passage of the proposed measure in 1950 would not affect jurors and school board members serving at that time. The system could be placed in operation with the 1952 election of jurors, he said.

In the case of school board members, Clawson said, the legislation could be so enacted as to become operative as terms of members expire.

MANY GIFTS FOR MISTREATED BOY

VIDALIA, La., June 4.—(Special)—While plans are proceeding to send little John Carlie Franklin to the hospital for an operation to correct his facial deformity the child has become the recipient of some gifts from the people of Ferriday.

About $50 in cash had been collected by Saturday morning, Sheriff J. Hartwell Love said, and merchants had promised the nine-year-old child some clothes.

However, the sheriff stated, the child had no toys, and had probably never received a toy in his life.

The child was found chained to a bedpost last week in his shanty home on Lake Concordia.

The trial of his father, J. B. Franklin, who tied him in chains to the bedpost to "keep the boy from running away or getting run over," will be held Monday at Vidalia. The father is charged with cruelty to a juvenile.

MRS. SWIFT URGES JOHNNY CAKE USE

Do you like johnny cake made with sour milk? Mrs. Mildred Swift suggests it as an excellent variation from the standard corn meal breads, and the recipe let's you use some of your sour milk. The ingredients you use for making this kind of johnny cake are the kind that you'll have in the kitchen all the time—flour, baking powder, soda, milk, eggs, corn meal, sugar and shortening. You'll find this recipe for making johnny cake sprinkled among many others equally as interesting in a leaflet prepared by Florence Abington, L. S. U. agricultural extension associate nutritionist.

"Summer is coming and one-dish meals will be a welcome shortcut for the housewife. The leaflet containing 14 recipes for hot and cold one-dish meals is ready for housewives," states Mrs. Swift.

The agent says, "There are many ice cream flavors that'll do for a change, but rarely will any give that final satisfaction to a good dinner that you'll find in the standard vanilla ice cream. An ideal recipe for vanilla ice cream that you can make in the refrigerator ice tray is included among many frozen dessert suggestions that is available now. You use only a few ingredients—a couple of eggs, separated; a little sugar, a cup of top milk; some cream, a few grains of salt and some vanilla flavoring. And you can stir up this tasty ice cream recipe in a jiffy. You will get more than a baker's dozen frozen dessert suggestions in the leaflet.

All three mimeographed recipe leaflets are yours for the asking. Just call 3228 and ask for "One-Dish Meals," "Frozen Desserts" and "Bread Recipes." This is a free service from your agriculture extension department.

One type of banana has a single fruit which may be as much as two feet in length and thick as a man's arm, enough to make a meal for three men.

C. councils, international activities, national blood program and other Red Cross activities. While the principal emphasis of the J. R. C. Training Centers is instrumental, there will be a generous measure of recreational activity planned both for sheer enjoyment and an opportunity to those who wish to develop leadership in organized recreation. Under competent adult supervision there will be boating, canoeing and other water skills taught. There are organized informal games such as basketball, horseshoes and softball and many others.

While the students plan their programs they are under the leadership of adults. A competent physician, registered nurse and nutritionist are among the adults on the staff.

BOOK ON FINDING URANIUM ISSUED

Atomic Energy Commission Seeks To Stimulate Prospecting

By Frank E. Carey
(Associated Press Science Reporter)

WASHINGTON, June 4.— (AP) — You've got to have more than a pick and shovel and a hopeful heart to go prospecting for uranium—the "gold dust" of the atomic age.

The atomic energy commission has come out with a booklet giving some of the low-down on how to search for uranium ore—the precious stuff that's used to make bombs as well as peace time products of atomic energy.

The whole idea of issuing the booklet, says the commission, is to stimulate more prospecting for uranium.

But—

You've got to bone up on a little geology.

You'ce got to be a handy-man with a Geiger counter, an instrument for detecting radioactivity.

And, it would be a big help, too, if you'd load into your modern covered wagon such gear as ultra-violet lamps, photographic plates or film, a metal key, an instrument called a "scintilliscope" and another called an "electroscope."

All of these are aids in spotting the pay dirt.

The commission's 123-page booklet goes into some detail on how to detect the stuff and how to identify it when you find it, but it gives only very general information on the big question: Where?

That's something the AEC boys would like to know themselves.

The commission has even set up a kind of jackpot to encourage modern 49-ers to get in there and dig. This is a bonus of $10,000 "for the discovery of a new deposit and the production therefrom of the first 20 short tons of uranium ore * * * assaying 20 per cent or more uranium oxide."

You can buy the booklet for thirty cents from the government printing office. Those three dimes may put you in the chips, because the AEC promises to pay a minimum price of $3.50 a pound for uranium oxide.

Here's a little on the detection tests described in case you want to start laying in equipment.

A Geiger counter gives audible "clicks" when there's radioactive material nearby. But you've got to get some fairly big-league clicking before you can be certain the trail is hot. Cosmic rays in the atmosphere can activate the instrument, too, and these may fool you. (Remember: You can't sell cosmic rays).

If you find some rocks you think might contain uranium, take them into a dark room. Put a metal key on some photographic film and then lay the rock on top of the key. If you get an imagine of the key on the developed film, you may be well on your way to paying off the mortgage.

Another test: If your mineral glows under ultra-violet light, you may have made a strike.

The "scintilliscope" is an instrument that produces bright flashes of light from radioactive material.

The "electroscope" is a gadget that has two leaves of gold which come together in the presence of radioactivity.

Will an AEC cop be after you if you go searching for uranium some place other than your own property? No sir—

Open to prospectors for uranium and thorium (another radioactive material) are the "vacant and unappropriated public lands" in the states of Arizona, Arkansas, California, Colorado, Florida, Idaho, Louisiana, Mississippi, Montana, Nebraska, Nevada, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oregon, South Dakota, Utah, Washington and Wyoming, and the territory of Alaska. So are certain national monuments and one national park—Mt. McKinley.

You can even dig on your neighbor's land, if you get his permission.

If you make a strike on a public land and establish a claim, the commission reserves the right to go in and remove the uranium or thorium itself. It says this right "protects the government from, among other things, a claimholder's refusal to work a deposit."

You'd get paid for any damage or injury caused by this action—and for your services of discovery but you wouldn't get paid for the uranium or thorium the AEC removed.

Discover New Method To Freeze Eggs Inside Shell

By Warren Rogers, Jr.

BATON ROUGE, La., June 4.—(AP)—A new discovery may soon be sending Junior to market with instructions to "get the frozen eggs, not the fresh ones."

And chances are Junior and the eggs would have the same birthday But the eggs frozen in the shell would look and taste fresh and for certain purposes like baking and making mayonnaise would be even better.

The discovery was hit by Dr. Socrates Kaloyereas of Louisiana State University. Dr. Kaloyereas is associate food preservationist at the university's department of agricultural chemistry and biochemistry.

His method, developed during two years of experiments, is the first under which eggs have been successfully frozen in the shell. Before, the shell always broke. This was because the water content turning to ice expanded about ten percent and cracked the shell.

Dr. Kaloyereas says today's frozen eggs are not really eggs but egg products—a mixture of yolk and white plus other ingredients like salt and sugar. They are frozen in cans and sold at the rate of about 2,000 tons annually, chiefly to bakeries.

These eggs, as well as the cold storage variety, are a long way from being the real McCoy, Dr. Kaloyereas says. They lost weight, pick up odors and new flavors, fracture yolk membrane and develop mold. All this is minimized, he says, under his method.

When he started, Dr. Kaloyereas explains, he found two chief problems. First, space had to be gained inside the egg for expansion when it froze. Second, the white froze faster and was cracked when the inner yellow turned to ice.

Here's how Dr. Kaloyereas solved the problems:

The egg is placed in a box with a dehydrating agent such as phosphorous pentoxide. The air is pulled out of the box creating a vacuum. Then the egg is frozen in the vacuum at 15 to 20 degrees Fahrenheit.

Several things happen to the egg. Primarily, between two and three per cent of its free water is taken out. And the proportion of its bound water clings to the surface of some substance of the eggs so that it does not freeze. Thus it does not expand.

A molecular change in the white also comes about. Some of the natural jelly-like portion turns to liquid, which has less volume. This gives more room for expansion.

The freezing rate of the yellow and white reverses so that the yellow freezes and takes up what space is left within the shell.

The loss of some air and of the two to three percent of water, plus the other changes, makes enough room inside the egg for everything to freeze without cracking the shell.

With the problem of freezing eggs in the shell as food out of the way, the scientist is now concerned with other matters. The big question: How long can an egg be frozen and still retain its hatchability?

Dr. Kaloyereas is reluctant to discuss the question. He maintains he can not be sure until every loophole has been plugged, until the frozen eggs are subjected to every conceivable test under all possible conditions. He will say, however, that chickens have been hatched from eggs frozen up to two months, showing the process did not kill the embryo. Previously, the embryo died instantly at 21 degrees Fahrenheit and lived only a few hours at below 32 degrees Fahrenheit.

Anybody who eats one of Dr. Kaloyereas' eggs can not tell it from the barnyard variety, he says. But his biggest boost, he adds, came from the home economics department at the university.

The department was given a batch of fresh eggs and another of Kaloyereas-frozen eggs. Without knowing which was which, the kitchen experts whipped up angel food cakes and mayonnaise. The fresh eggs came out second test.

"The home economists told us," Dr. Kaloyereas says, "that the cake and mayonnaise made from our eggs were better in texture and in taste."

Dr. Kaloyereas was born near Athens, Greece, in 1902. He was graduated from the university there, received his master's degree at the University of California, his doctorate from the University of Salonika, Greece, and did graduate work at Cambridge in England.

He first became interested in freezing eggs here, but for over a decade before he had worked at preserving fruits and vegetables.

He joined the Louisiana State University faculty in 1946 and has lived here on the campus with his wife since then.

NOVEL DICTIONARY EXHIBIT IN STORE

On exhibit for the next week at Ferd Levi Stationery Company is a display of miniature three-dimensional historical models, arrestingly portraying the ancient lineage of Merriam-Webster dictionaries from the time that "grandmother was a girl" down to the present.

Nine dioramas show Webster dictionaries in three different settings: The home, the office and the schoolroom. The first series portrays the big unabridged dictionary in the home surroundings of 1828, 1890 and today; the second shows the dictionary in use amid office settings of the same eras; the third, in the schoolroom. Each reproduces in miniature a setting typical of its time. Period furniture and decorations have been carefully authenticated, and in each diorama there are several human figures, each costumed in exact detail.

DR. SACHS GIVES BRILLIANT TALK

Declares American Way Of Life Must Be Maintained At All Hazards

That democracy must be preserved against the inroads of communism, whatever may be the cost, was the compelling statement of Dr. H. J. Sachs, of the English department of Louisiana Tech, in his address to the graduating class of Ouachita Parish High School Friday night. The commencement was held in the school's auditorium. The speaker declared that our Democratic way of life can not be continued should we be subjected to another depression and a third world war.

Dr. Sachs' took three dates as his starting point, 1929, 1949, and 1969. He contrasted the unlimited confidence in the future which we had in June, 1929, with the uncertainty and skepticism of June, 1949. He asserted that we must solve the problems of depressions and war, or else there would be no graduating classes of 1969.

The speaker asserted that the last two decades should have taught us two lessons. First, that the future will see ever-accelerating changes, and, second, that faith in three principles would carry us successfully through the decades to come if we apply them intelligently to a changing world. The first principle is faith in the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. The speaker challenged his audience to make that a living faith, to apply it to the problems of races and nations. He quoted from John, "If a man say I love God and hateth his neighbor, he is a liar. For he that loveth not his neighbor whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen?"

Dr. Sachs then went on to explain that political democracy was really an extension of the principle of the brotherhood of man, and gave various illustrations of our timidity in applying democratic principles. His third principle was economic democracy, which finds best expression in freedom of enterprise. He warned his audience, however, that the phrase freedom of enterprise was frequently used to mean the right to cheat the public without fear of interference.

The speaker concluded with a prophecy that failure to use these principles might lead to the end of democracy, capitalism and even civilization. Intelligent application of these principles would assure peace, prosperity and a happier world.

The valedictory address was delivered by Tommy Starnes, on "The Hope of Democracy," while the salutatory address was by Joe Monroe on "Worthwhile Thinking."

Bailey Grant presented the American Legion awards to Duncan D. Burford and Beverly Hatchell.

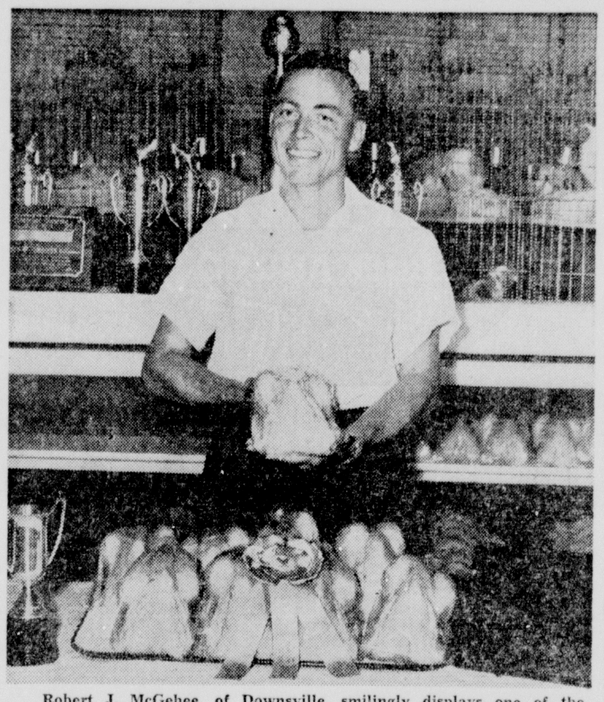
SOME CHICKEN!



Robert J. McGehee, of Downsville, smilingly displays one of the 15 New Hampshire chickens that won him the adult reserve championship in the 1949 Louisiana Chicken-of-Tomorrow contest at Alexandria Friday. McGehee's outstanding record in the state show won him $40 cash, the trophy and certificate of quality shown in the picture, and made him eligible for possible participation in 1951's national finals when A & P Food Stores will award $5,000 to poultrymen producing the Chicken-of-Tomorrow. Object of the nation-wide contest is a better meat-type chicken, one that will grow faster on least feed. McGehee's New Hampshires averaged a little more than five pounds each at 12 weeks of age—two pounds heavier than the average commercial broiler weighs at that age.

HENS IN THIS AREA GIVEN TOP HONORS

ALEXANDRIA, La., June 4.—(AP)—The Prize chickens of Louisiana are 15 white-laced Red Cornish birds bred and raised at Montgomery, in Grant parish.

The fowls, averaging nearly four pounds at twelve weeks, were awarded the grand championship here yesterday at the annual Louisiana "chicken-of-tomorrow" contest.

The birds were bred by Everett Nelms and raised by J. W. Bryant, both of Montgomery. Nelms won the contest last year at New Orleans.

Robert J. McGehee, of Downsville, won the adult reserve championship with 15 New Hampshire Reds averaging more than five pounds at 12 weeks. Bobby Fallin, of Choudrant, won the junior title with White Plymouth Rocks averaging nearly five pounds. Elmer W. Moses, of DeRidder, took the junior reserve title with Dark Cornish chickens.

Thickness of breast and thigh is a major factor in the competition, which is a nation-wide endeavor intended to develop chickens with more meat.

Mr. Rhymes was issued a replica of his old diploma by Dr. Rufus Harris and, after the graduation ceremony, attended a luncheon given in honor of the class of 1899.

Discover New Method To Freeze Eggs Inside Shell

By Warren Rogers, Jr.

BATON ROUGE, La., June 4.—(AP)—A new discovery may soon be sending Junior to market with instructions to "get the frozen eggs, not the fresh ones."

And chances are Junior and the eggs would have the same birthday But the eggs frozen in the shell would look and taste fresh and for certain purposes like baking and making mayonnaise would be even better.

The discovery was hit by Dr. Socrates Kaloyereas of Louisiana State University. Dr. Kaloyereas is associate food preservationist at the university's department of agricultural chemistry and biochemistry.

His method, developed during two years of experiments, is the first under which eggs have been successfully frozen in the shell. Before, the shell always broke. This was because the water content turning to ice expanded about ten percent and cracked the shell.

Dr. Kaloyereas says today's frozen eggs are not really eggs but egg products—a mixture of yolk and white plus other ingredients like salt and sugar. They are frozen in cans and sold at the rate of about 2,000 tons annually, chiefly to bakeries.

These eggs, as well as the cold storage variety, are a long way from being the real McCoy, Dr. Kaloyereas says. They lost weight, pick up odors and new flavors, fracture yolk membrane and develop mold. All this is minimized, he says, under his method.

When he started, Dr. Kaloyereas explains, he found two chief problems. First, space had to be gained inside the egg for expansion when it froze. Second, the white froze faster and was cracked when the inner yellow turned to ice.

Here's how Dr. Kaloyereas solved the problems:

The egg is placed in a box with a dehydrating agent such as phosphorous pentoxide. The air is pulled out of the box creating a vacuum. Then the egg is frozen in the vacuum at 15 to 20 degrees Fahrenheit.

Several things happen to the egg. Primarily, between two and three per cent of its free water is taken out. And the proportion of its bound water clings to the surface of some substance of the eggs so that it does not freeze. Thus it does not expand.

A molecular change in the white also comes about. Some of the natural jelly-like portion turns to liquid, which has less volume. This gives more room for expansion.

The freezing rate of the yellow and white reverses so that the yellow freezes and takes up what space is left within the shell.

The loss of some air and of the two to three percent of water, plus the other changes, makes enough room inside the egg for everything to freeze without cracking the shell.

With the problem of freezing eggs in the shell as food out of the way, the scientist is now concerned with other matters. The big question: How long can an egg be frozen and still retain its hatchability?

Dr. Kaloyereas is reluctant to discuss the question. He maintains he can not be sure until every loophole has been plugged, until the frozen eggs are subjected to every conceivable test under all possible conditions. He will say, however, that chickens have been hatched from eggs frozen up to two months, showing the process did not kill the embryo. Previously, the embryo died instantly at 21 degrees Fahrenheit and lived only a few hours at below 32 degrees Fahrenheit.

Anybody who eats one of Dr. Kaloyereas' eggs can not tell it from the barnyard variety, he says. But his biggest boost, he adds, came from the home economics department at the university.

The department was given a batch of fresh eggs and another of Kaloyereas-frozen eggs. Without knowing which was which, the kitchen experts whipped up angel food cakes and mayonnaise. The fresh eggs came out second test.

"The home economists told us," Dr. Kaloyereas says, "that the cake and mayonnaise made from our eggs were better in texture and in taste."

Dr. Kaloyereas was born near Athens, Greece, in 1902. He was graduated from the university there, received his master's degree at the University of California, his doctorate from the University of Salonika, Greece, and did graduate work at Cambridge in England.

He first became interested in freezing eggs here, but for over a decade before he had worked at preserving fruits and vegetables.

He joined the Louisiana State University faculty in 1946 and has lived here on the campus with his wife since then.

NOVEL DICTIONARY EXHIBIT IN STORE

On exhibit for the next week at Ferd Levi Stationery Company is a display of miniature three-dimensional historical models, arrestingly portraying the ancient lineage of Merriam-Webster dictionaries from the time that "grandmother was a girl" down to the present.

Nine dioramas show Webster dictionaries in three different settings: The home, the office and the schoolroom. The first series portrays the big unabridged dictionary in the home surroundings of 1828, 1890 and today; the second shows the dictionary in use amid office settings of the same eras; the third, in the schoolroom. Each reproduces in miniature a setting typical of its time. Period furniture and decorations have been carefully authenticated, and in each diorama there are several human figures, each costumed in exact detail.

DR. SACHS GIVES BRILLIANT TALK

Declares American Way Of Life Must Be Maintained At All Hazards

That democracy must be preserved against the inroads of communism, whatever may be the cost, was the compelling statement of Dr. H. J. Sachs, of the English department of Louisiana Tech, in his address to the graduating class of Ouachita Parish High School Friday night. The commencement was held in the school's auditorium. The speaker declared that our Democratic way of life can not be continued should we be subjected to another depression and a third world war.

Dr. Sachs' took three dates as his starting point, 1929, 1949, and 1969. He contrasted the unlimited confidence in the future which we had in June, 1929, with the uncertainty and skepticism of June, 1949. He asserted that we must solve the problems of depressions and war, or else there would be no graduating classes of 1969.

The speaker asserted that the last two decades should have taught us two lessons. First, that the future will see ever-accelerating changes, and, second, that faith in three principles would carry us successfully through the decades to come if we apply them intelligently to a changing world. The first principle is faith in the fatherhood of God and the brotherhood of man. The speaker challenged his audience to make that a living faith, to apply it to the problems of races and nations. He quoted from John, "If a man say I love God and hateth his neighbor, he is a liar. For he that loveth not his neighbor whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen?"

Dr. Sachs then went on to explain that political democracy was really an extension of the principle of the brotherhood of man, and gave various illustrations of our timidity in applying democratic principles. His third principle was economic democracy, which finds best expression in freedom of enterprise. He warned his audience, however, that the phrase freedom of enterprise was frequently used to mean the right to cheat the public without fear of interference.

The speaker concluded with a prophecy that failure to use these principles might lead to the end of democracy, capitalism and even civilization. Intelligent application of these principles would assure peace, prosperity and a happier world.

The valedictory address was delivered by Tommy Starnes, on "The Hope of Democracy," while the salutatory address was by Joe Monroe on "Worthwhile Thinking."

Bailey Grant presented the American Legion awards to Duncan D. Burford and Beverly Hatchell.

Mrs. Gladys Sperry, on behalf of Fort Miro Chapter of the D. A. R. made presentation to Barbara Jean Franklin of the chapter's award to the student who made the best grade in American history.

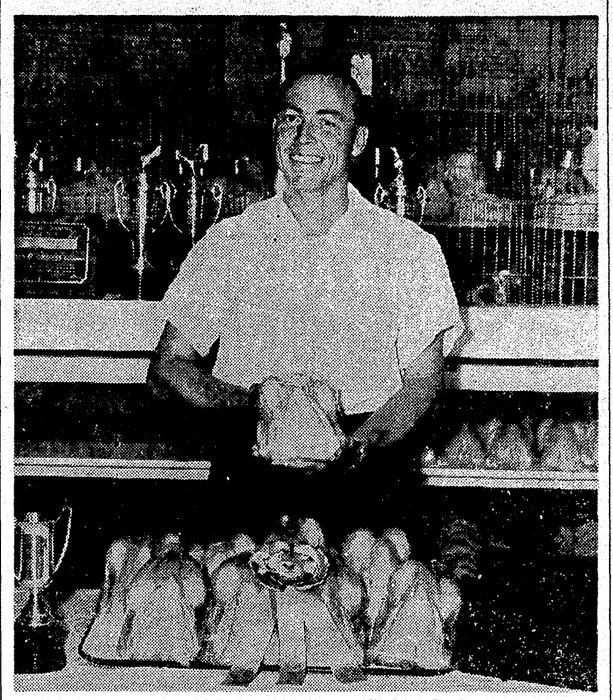
SOME CHICKEN!



Robert J. McGehee, of Downsville, smilingly displays one of the 15 New Hampshire chickens that won him the adult reserve championship in the 1949 Louisiana Chicken-of-Tomorrow contest at Alexandria Friday. McGehee's outstanding record in the state show won him $40 cash, the trophy and certificate of quality shown in the picture, and made him eligible for possible participation in 1951's national finals when A & P Food Stores will award $5,000 to poultrymen producing the Chicken-of-Tomorrow. Object of the nation-wide contest is a better meat-type chicken, one that will grow faster on least feed. McGehee's New Hampshires averaged a little more than five pounds each at 12 weeks of age—two pounds heavier than the average commercial broiler weighs at that age.

HENS IN THIS AREA GIVEN TOP HONORS

ALEXANDRIA, La., June 4.—(AP)—The Prize chickens of Louisiana are 15 white-laced Red Cornish birds bred and raised at Montgomery, in Grant parish.

The fowls, averaging nearly four pounds at twelve weeks, were awarded the grand championship here yesterday at the annual Louisiana "chicken-of-tomorrow" contest.

The birds were bred by Everett Nelms and raised by J. W. Bryant, both of Montgomery. Nelms won the contest last year at New Orleans.

Robert J. McGehee, of Downsville, won the adult reserve championship with 15 New Hampshire Reds averaging more than five pounds at 12 weeks. Bobby Fallin, of Choudrant, won the junior title with White Plymouth Rocks averaging nearly five pounds. Elmer W. Moses, of DeRidder, took the junior reserve title with Dark Cornish chickens.

Thickness of breast and thigh is a major factor in the competition, which is a nation-wide endeavor intended to develop chickens with more meat.

The PHANTOM

By LEE FALK and WILSON McCOY

SURVIVING THE LONG PLUNGE OVER THE FALLS, THE PHANTOM TAKES GWENA TO A LEDGE BEHIND THE WATERY CURTAIN--HERO REACHES HIM--AND THEY GALLOP OFF~

--CHASED BY THE MECHANIZED MIGHT OF TWO ARMIES! PLANES BUZZ OVER THEM, UNABLE TO FIRE FOR FEAR OF HARMING GWENA.

SPEEDY WHIPPET TANKS AND ARMORED CARS TAKE UP THE CHASE AND ALMOST REACH THEM AT THE JUNGLE'S EDGE~

BY THE TIME WE GET THRU THAT STUFF, HE'LL BE TO CHINA.

THIS IS AS FAR AS WE CAN GO WITHOUT BUILDING A ROAD! MECHANIZED CAVALRY! HUH!

THEN HE IS GONE—INTO THE JUNGLE FASTNESS! THE VEHICLES HALT--

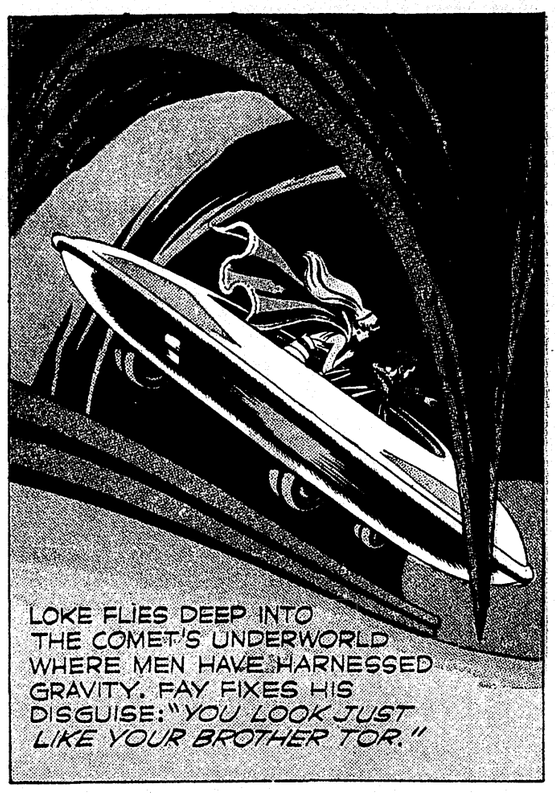
FLASH GORDON

by MAC RABOY and DON MOORE



LOKE FLIES DEEP INTO THE COMET'S UNDERWORLD WHERE MEN HAVE HARNESSED GRAVITY. FAY FIXES HIS DISGUISE: "YOU LOOK JUST LIKE YOUR BROTHER TOR."

LOKE BLUFFS HIS WAY INTO THE CONTROL ROOM, ANNOUNCING: "YOUR KING WILL RUN THE PLANET, HIMSELF, TODAY." THE SCIENTISTS AND ENGINEERS BOW. "YES, KING TOR."

LOKE BARS THE ENTRANCE, THEN SWITCHES OFF ALL OUTSIDE GRAVITORS, GLOATING: "THAT LEAVES TOR POWERLESS. NOW TO DESTROY HIM AND HIS CITIES."

FLASH IS FLYING IN HOT PURSUIT OF LOKE WHEN HIS GRAVITOR SUDDENLY GOES DEAD. HE CRASHES HEADLONG NEAR THE UNDERGROUND ENTRANCE.

LOKE PULLS THE COMET'S TAIL AROUND LIKE A SCORPION STINGING ITSELF. THE COMET SHUDDERS AS METEOR-FIRE RAINS DOWN UPON IT --AND FLASH!
